ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

First of all, I would like to thank my thesis supervisor, Dr. Margana, M.Hum, M.A., who has given valuable time, comments and suggestions during the completion of this thesis. Thanks are also due to the lecturers of English Education Department, Siti Sudartini M.A. and Emi Susanti, M.Hum who have given their help in the process of the data triangulation of this thesis.

I also would like to dedicate my gratitude to the big family of SMAN 1 Wates, particularly the English teachers, Drs. Kojrat Wiyana, Drs. ZA Fauzan, M.Pd., Camayanti Room, S.Pd., and Reti Sudarsih, S.Pd, and the students in class X and XI, for the cooperation, the support, and the help during the research.

My huge gratitude is also expressed to my beloved parents, Wijotomo and Sri Lestari, and my only little sister, Distya Kusuma Wardani, who have given a lot of material and mental supports during the process of doing this thesis.

A great appreciation is devoted to my friend in Unsoed Purwokerto, Erwita Nurdianto, M.A. for being my consultant in giving me idea, support, and help during the process of writing this thesis. A big thank is also presented to my friends in PBI 2010 especially my close friends Yunus Purwowibowo, Kunto Laksono Hadi, Ikba Zudinta Ady, Adi Purwono, and Dimas Syaefan Bayu Samudera, who have accompanied me for more than four years.

Finally, I hope that this thesis is useful for the readers. However, I realize that this thesis is far from being perfect; I greatly appreciate any criticism, ideas, and suggestions for the improvement of this thesis.

ABSTRACT

The aims of this research are (1) to seek out the types of illocutionary acts; and (2) to investigate the types of illocutionary functions used by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates, Kulon Progo.

This research was descriptive qualitative. The data of this research were the English utterances performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates. The research instrument was the researcher himself. The researcher obtained the data by means of note-taking technique. First, the researcher recorded the English teaching and learning process in the class using a video camera. Next, the researcher made transcripts of the dialogues. Then, the transcribed dialogues were recorded into the data sheet. Finally the data were classified according to Searle’s classification of illocutionary acts (1979). In the data analysis the researcher applied interactive qualitative method by Miles and Huberman (1994) and pragmatic identity method by Sudaryanto (1993). Additionally, the researcher applied coding system. In this research, there were two validity principles applied by the researcher. They were credibility and dependability. To test the credibility the researcher applied investigator triangulation. Meanwhile, to obtain the dependability the researcher gave the detail explanations on the data.

The results of the research show that there are four types of illocutionary performed by the English teachers in classroom communication. They are representatives, expressives, directives, and commissives. The directives are the most frequent acts (278 from 438 data), while the commissives are the fewest frequent acts (6 data). Next, there are 23 types of illocutionary functions used by the English teachers. They are stating an opinion, stating a fact, informing, explaining, agreeing, greeting, thanking, complimenting, joking, apologizing, stating surprise, commanding, requesting, suggesting, forbidding, warning, questioning, permitting, encouraging, wishing, promising, and threatening. The questioning is the most frequent function (149 data), while threatening is the fewest frequent function (1 datum). In conclusion, the dominant use of directive acts implies that the teachers dominate the conversation. Meanwhile, the purpose of the use of questioning is to activate students’ background knowledge and critical thinking.

CHAPTER I
INTRODUCTION

In this chapter, the researcher discusses the introduction of the study. This chapter consists of four parts. They are background of the study, focus of the study, objectives of the study, and significance of the study.

A. Background of the Study

English is the most widely learned language all over the world because of its status as an international language. As an international language, therefore, English has a special function for being a lingua franca among people with different languages in the world. In other words, English is a language which is able to link people with different nations and languages to communicate in international scope.

The impact of implementation of English as a lingua franca leads to the use of English in various fields such as technology, politics, economy, social, culture, and education. All those fields need English to be used especially in this era of modernization and globalization for communication purposes. Among those field, education seems to be the primary than other fields. Through education, ones are capable to develop their competence before implementing their roles in the global area.

In educational field, English is one of the compulsory subjects to learn. The purpose of learning English is to acquire the communicative competences of the native speakers of English. Communicative competences are defined as competences that a learner has to acquire in associated with the main function of language as a means of communication. The communicative competences are composed of linguistic or grammatical competence, discourse competence, sociolinguistic or sociocultural competence, and strategic competence (Richard and Schmidt, 2003: 10).

One of the elements of communicative competence is sociolinguistic competence. According to Savignon (Brown, 2007: 220), sociolinguistic competence is the knowledge of sociocultural rule of the linguistic and discourse elements. The understanding of the use of the language in the real environment, in line with the social context, role of the participant, the function of the interaction, is an essential part in language learning.

In line with the notion of sociolinguistic competence, we can also discuss that phenomenon of the use of language through other perspective, the study of language. In the study of language or linguistics, how the language is used in context is investigated in pragmatics. Pragmatics is a part of linguistics which deals with meaning in context. In other words, pragmatics can also be defined as the study of the relationship between the linguistic form (structure) and the user of that form (Yule, 1996: 4).

As stated in the previous paragraph, pragmatics essentially deals with the use of the language in the context. In English teaching and learning, it is clearly realized by the implementation of the language function in the materials. This view emerged in 1970s when some language experts started to criticize the ineffectiveness of teaching the formal or grammatical elements in second language teaching (Nunan, 1993: 66).

Furthermore, the implementation of language function is not only directly realized in the materials because the teaching and learning of English in school involves the use of English in the classroom. The teacher not only teaches the language through the material but he or she also uses the language directly in the classroom. The teacher’s instruction itself is also realized by means of language functions such as greeting, sequencing, giving instructions, asking questions, and replying to questions (Hughes, 1984: 6-8).

The language functions themselves are essentially the purposes that speakers accomplished with language. The speaker may use the language for stating, requesting, responding, greeting, thanking, and so on. Under the discussion of pragmatics, the language function is studied in speech acts (McCarthy, 1991: 9-10) Speech acts deals with the utterance to perform a specific action. In simple words, speech acts is often said as language in action (Kreidler, 2002).

If we refer to other concept of speech acts, every utterance essentially contains three dimensions: locution, illocution, and perlocution. Locution is what the speaker says, illocution is the purpose of what speaker says, and perlocution is the effect of what the speaker says (Cutting, 2002: 16). From those three acts, Yule (1996: 49) states that the illocution are the most often discussed acts in pragmatics. Even, the concept of speech acts is narrowed down to the illocutionary acts.
SMA N 1 Wates is one of the state senior high schools in Kulon Progo Regency. The English teaching-learning process in that school is conducted by four English teachers. From July-September 2013 the researcher had a teaching practicum at SMA N 1 Wates. Before having teaching practicum the researcher observed the English teachers’ performance in the classroom in February 2013. One of the results is that all the English teachers of SMA N Wates implement classroom English most of the time. Even, one of them uses almost full English in the classroom.

The classroom English implemented by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is, of course, to make the students familiar with the use of English. It is expected that the students practice the English language at least at the school during the English lesson. In the classroom, the English teachers give various instructions to ask the students to open the textbook, do the task, to collect the homework, and so on. All the instructions are mostly in English.

Those teachers’ instructions are in the form of language functions. In pragmatic study, it is related to the concept of speech acts, or narrowly, illocutionary acts. Therefore, the researcher is interested to investigate the illocutionary acts implemented in classroom conversation. Another reason of the choice of this topic is that the other researchers in English Education Study Program of Yogyakarta State University rarely conduct any research in illocutionary acts in English language teaching area. Most focus on the methodology (classroom action research) and the materials development (research and development).
In this study, it is impossible for the researcher to investigate the whole aspects of illocutionary acts in English teaching at SMA N 1 Wates. Also, since it is English language subject, the researcher limited the scope of the research only on the illocutionary acts and illocutionary functions of English utterances performed by the English teachers of SMA N Wates.

B. Focus of the Study

Based on the problems mentioned in the background of the study, there are two main problems to be investigated by the researcher. Those problems are presented in two questions.

1. What are the types of illocutionary acts used by the English teachers in teaching-learning process at SMA N 1 Wates?

2. What are the illocutionary functions used by the English teachers in teaching-learning process at SMA N 1 Wates?

C. Objectives of the Study

In line with the focus of the study above, the objectives of the study are:

1. to identify the types of illocutionary acts used by the English teachers in teaching-learning process at SMA N 1 Wates; and

2. to identify the illocutionary functions used by the English teachers in teaching-learning process at SMA N 1 Wates.

D. Significance of the Study

This study gives benefits for several parties. First is for the English teachers. Theoretically, this study enriches teachers’ knowledge about the theory of illocutionary acts as well as its implementation as a part of communicative competences in English as Foreign Language Teaching-Learning (TEFL) context. Next, practically, for the English teachers the results of study help the English teachers to apply the illocutionary acts appropriately in English teaching. Second advantage is for the other researchers. It is hoped that the findings of this research can be used as a reference for further research of pragmatic study in classroom conversation in English language education.
CHAPTER II
LITERATURE REVIEW

In this chapter, the researcher discusses the relevant theories related to the study, the previous researches related to the study, and the researcher’s conceptual framework in conducting the research. This chapter is divided into three parts: theoretical description, previous studies, and conceptual framework and analytical construct.

A. Theoretical Description

This chapter discusses some relevant theories which are associated with the study. It is divided into six sessions: pragmatics, speech acts, illocutionary acts, context, communicative competence, and classroom discourse.

1. Pragmatics

People use language in order to communicate with other people around the world. The component of language is studied in a science called linguistics. It deals with all internal and external aspects of language. For instance, sounds are discussed in phonetics and phonology, morphemes and words in morphology, phrases and sentences in syntax, meanings in semantics, and text in discourse.

Pragmatics itself is a branch of linguistics covering meaning in use. Meaning is formally studied in semantics. However, there are some aspects of meaning cannot be captured by semantics particularly meaning in use or meaning in context. It is because semantics deals with meaning without reference to the users and communicative functions of sentences (Aitchison, 2003: 104).
Pragmatics, therefore, is concerned with the way of speaker using language in context which cannot be predicted from purely linguistic knowledge, particularly semantics, which deals with the internal structure of the language (Griffiths, 2006: 153).

Similarly, Kreidler (2002:18) explains the differences between semantics and pragmatics. According to him, both semantics and pragmatics are related to the human ability to use language in meaningful way. The difference is that semantics deals with the speaker’s competence in producing meaningful utterance, while pragmatics the person’s ability to interpret meanings from particular kind of speech situations (context). However, Kreidler adds that nowadays the boundary between semantics and pragmatic is very often overlapped.

Other definition of pragmatics is proposed by Yule (1996: 4). In his explanation of the differences among syntax, semantics, and pragmatics, he defines pragmatics as the study of relationship between linguistic form and the user of those forms. The user of the linguistic forms, that is human being, is the characteristic which makes pragmatics different from syntax and semantics. The role of the language user leads the scope of pragmatics to the context of the language itself (Cutting, 2002: 1).

The study of pragmatics covers several subfields or domains, such as deixis, reference, presupposition, implicature, and speech acts. Deixis is concerned with the referring expressions which indicate the location of the referents along certain dimensions. Reference deals with the linguistic forms used by the speaker to enable the listener to identify something. Presupposition is related to the things that the speaker assumes as the case of an utterance. Implicature is associated with the existence of norms for the use language in context. Speech acts are concerned with the use of utterance to perform an act. (Griffiths, 2006)

2. Speech Acts

a. The Concept of Speech Acts

Speech acts are one of the five main topics in the study of pragmatics. The concept of speech acts is firstly developed by a philosopher, John L. Austin in his book How to Do Things with Words (1962). Austin defines speech acts simply as the action performed by saying something. By means of utterances, ones are able to get others to do something. In other words, speech acts are actions which are performed via utterances (Yule, 1996: 48; Cutting, 2002: 16).

In speech acts theory, the utterance as a unit of communication has two types of meaning: propositional and illocutionary meaning. Propositional meaning is also called as illocutionary meaning. This deals with the basic literal meaning of an utterance which is associated with its structural aspects. Next, the illocutionary meaning is related to the effect of the utterance to the readers or the listeners. This meaning is realized by the function or the illocutionary function such as requests, orders, commands, complaints, and promise (Richard and Schmidt, 2003: 449).

In relation to the concept above, in every speech act we can distinguish three things, following Austin’s theory. What is said, the utterance, can be called the locution. What the speaker intends to communicate to the addressee (the purpose) is the illocution. The message that the addressee gets, his interpretation of what the speaker says, is the perlocution. If the communication is successful, the illocution and the perlocution are alike or nearly alike (Kreidler, 2002: 181).

b. The Classification of Speech Acts

Based on the concept of locution, illocution, and perlocution in every utterance, Austin divides the speech acts into three major categories. They are locutionary, illocutionary, and perlocutionary (Yule, 1996: 48; Cutting, 2002: 16).

1) Locutionary acts

Locutionary acts are the production of utterances, with a particular intended structure, meaning, and reference. In other words, locutionary acts deal with linguistic meaning or grammatical (or phonological) form of an utterance. This kind of speech acts is also called as the act of saying something (Wijana, 1996: 17).

2) Illocutionary acts

Illocutionary acts are acts performed by speakers in saying something (with an appropriate intention and in an appropriate context), rather than by virtue of having produced a particular effect by saying something. This type of speech acts is also called as the act of doing something (Wijana, 1996: 18). The purpose of expression and the speaker’s specific purpose are called as locutionary force or locutionary function.

3) Perlocutionary acts

Perlocutionary acts are speech acts which depend on the production of a specific effect. This effects is produced by the hearer This type of speech acts is also called as the act of affecting someone (Wijana, 1996: 19). In perlocutionary, there is an influence affect because the speaker tries to influence the hearer to do what he or she wants to do. This is called by as perlocutionary effect.

Those three acts can occur in an utterance. Austin in Laurence and Ward (2005: 55) illustrates locutionary, illocutionary, and perlocutionary in an utterance “Shoot her!,” as follows.

Act (A) or Locution
He said to me “Shoot her!” meaning by shoot “shoot” and referring by her to “her.”

Act (B) or Illocution
He urged (or advised, ordered, etc.) me to shoot her.

Act (C) or Perlocution
He persuaded me to shoot her.

In Act (A) the concept is concerned with what is said by the speaker aspects. The grammatical and phonological aspect is the main topic. The focus is that whether the utterance is meaningful or not so that the hearer is able to capture what the speaker says. Next, the Act B or illocutionary is concerning the speaker’s purpose or intention when performing this utterance. Therefore, the illocutionary functions (ordering, advising, or requesting) are the important point here. Finally, in Act (C), both locution and illocution of the utterance are interpreted by the hearer. The effect of the utterance that speaker performs to the hearer is the main focus.

In addition to the classification of speech acts based on the locution, illocution and perlocution, there is also other classification proposed by the Searle. This classification of speech acts is based on the syntactic and semantic aspects of an utterance. In other words, it is the relation between literal sentence meaning and intended speaker’s meaning. Viewed from the relationship between the three general types of basic sentence types/ moods (declarative, interrogative, and imperative) and the three general communicative functions (statement, question, and command), speech acts are classified into two main types (Yule, 1996: 54).

1) Direct speech acts

   In direct speech acts, there is a direct relationship between its grammatical structure and its communicative function. For instance, an affirmative sentence is used to give a statement; an interrogative sentence to ask a question; an imperative sentence to give an order or command.

   Example:

   A: How many children do you have?
   B: Four.

   In the above utterance performed by A, the form and the function are the same. A as a speaker produces a question to B. Syntactically, the question uses interrogative with question word ‘how many’ as well as the question mark at the end of it. The function of that utterance is to question or ask for information, viewed from B’s reply. In other way, the speaker expects an answer from the listener. Both the mood and the function of A’s utterances are the same. Therefore, it is classified as direct speech acts.

2) Indirect speech acts

   In contrast to the direct speech acts, in indirect speech acts, there is no direct relationship between its grammatical structure and its communicative function. For instance, an interrogative is not only used to question or to ask for an answer from the listener, but it can also convey a request or warning.

Example:

Mother   : Where is the broom?
Daughter : Wait for a minute, Mom.

Syntactically, the utterance that the mother performs is in the form of interrogative or question, function of which is to ask for information. However, if we see from the answer the daughter replies it is clear that the utterance ‘Where is the broom?’ is used to request her daughter to bring her a broom. The mother’s request is realized indirect way since it is conventionally realized in imperative mood, e.g.: ‘Bring me the broom, please.’ From that reason the mother’s utterance is categorized as indirect speech acts.

That explanation above has been summarized by Wijana (1996: 32) into several basic rules of direct and indirect speech acts in relation with their sentence type (moods) as shown in Table 1.

Table 1: Relationship between moods and speech acts

<table>
<thead>
<tr>

<tr>

<td>Commanding</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

As shown in Table 1, declarative moods are conventionally performed by the speaker to give the information to the listener. In written form, it is indicated by the use of full stop (period) at the end of the sentence. For example is ‘It’s so hot here.’ Syntactically, the purpose of the utterance is only to make a statement of the condition of the weather around the speaker. But if it is uttered by a teacher in the classroom who feels the classroom condition is so hot, it is not only to inform that the weather is so hot but also to order the student to turn on the air conditioner. In short, it depends on the context of utterance.

Next, interrogative moods traditionally are used by the speaker to ask a question to the addressee. In written form it is indicated by the question mark ‘?’. For instance, ‘Do you know where the broom is?’ is considered as yes/ no question. Conventionally, the speaker expects the answer ‘Yes, I do’ or ‘No, I don’t’ from the listener. Nevertheless, if that is uttered by a mother to her daughter, the purpose may not only to ask the existence of the broom, but also to order the listener to find the broom or to bring the broom to the speaker.

Finally, imperative moods, syntactically, are used by the speaker to give command, order, or request to the listener. In written form usually it is indicated by the use of exclamation mark ‘!’; for example ‘Be on time!’ Clearly, that is uttered by the speaker to ask the listener to be on time. Different from the two other moods, the imperative mood can only be used to express direct speech acts.

From those explanations, it can be concluded that the determination of direct and indirect speech acts is not merely based on its syntactical structure. However, it is based on the implied meaning and purpose of the utterance which rely on the context of use.
3. Illocutionary Acts

a. The Concept of Illocutionary Acts

As stated in the previous section, illocutionary acts are one of the three types of speech acts proposed by Austin which deal with the purpose, function, or force of utterances. This type of speech acts is generally said to be the central of speech acts and even said as the speech acts themselves (Yule, 1996: 49).

The criteria of illocutionary acts are based on the contexts which determine the forces or functions of the utterances (Mey, 2001:110-111). Same utterances can be categorized as different illocutionary because of different forces or functions which are greatly influenced by context of use. According to Nunan (1993:65) forces are the characteristics that differentiate speech acts from one another. Forces are mainly about the different ways the content propositions are involved in speech acts. Some examples of forces are pronouncing, stating, commanding, thanking, and promising. Those forces are the functional intentions of speaker when performing an utterance.

To determine the illocutionary functions, Yule (1996: 49) proposes two important points: illocutionary function indicating device and felicity condition.

1) Illocutionary function indicating device

Illocutionary function indicating device (IFID) is a formal, literal expression which explicitly indicates the illocutionary function of utterance (Laurence and Ward, 2006: 60). The clearest example is the use of specific verb in an utterance. This verb is usually called as speech act verbs or performative verbs. It is in line with the concept of performative hypothesis. Some verbs such as ‘to order, to warn, and to promise’ can be used to make the illocutionary function explicit, e.g. ‘I order you to leave now’ (Cutting, 2002: 16).

Nevertheless, this condition is somewhat difficult since in normal usage the utterances are expressed mostly without performative verbs. The speaker chooses using implicit performative, for instance ‘I’ll be back’ can be interpreted as ‘I promise that I’ll be back’ or ‘I warn you that I’ll be back’. Furthermore, some verbs are not normally used in full sentence, e.g. to thank ‘Thank you.’, and to congratulate ‘Congratulation on your success’ (Mey, 2001: 111).

2) Felicity conditions

Felicity conditions are defined as several conditions to be meet in order that the illocutionary acts are successfully performed. Austin states that the speakers have to fulfill three conditions: that the participants must understand the roles and the context, that the participants must perform the acts completely, and that the participants have to have clear purposes (Cutting, 2002: 18).

Elaborating Austin’s concept, Yule (1996: 50) the felicity follows at least general condition is that the participants have to understand the language and the speakers do not pretend. He also adds content condition, preparatory condition, sincerity condition, and essential condition, all of which deals with the characteristics of illocutionary acts itself.

b. The Classification of Illocutionary Acts

As stated in the previous section, illocutionary act is one of the three types of speech acts proposed by Austin which contain purpose, function, and force of utterances. Austin categorizes illocutionary acts into five types. This classification is based on the performative verbs in any utterances (Searle, 1979: 8-9).

a. Verdictives

   Verdictives are typified by giving of verdict, for instance: verdicts done by jury, judge, arbitrator, or umpire. Performative verbs indicating these acts are to acquit, to hold, to calculate, to describe, to estimate, to analyze, to date, to rank, to assess, and to characterize.

b. Exercitives

   Exercitives are typified by exercising power, rights, or influence. Performative verbs indicating these acts are to appoint, to order, to beg, to recommend, to order, to advise, to dismiss, to nominate, to veto, to announce, and to warn.

c. Commissives

   Commissives are typified by promising or undertaking. It commits the hearer to do something. Performative verbs indicating these acts are to promise, to vow, to pledge, to convenant, to contract, to guarantee, and to swear.

d. Expositives

   Expositives are acts by which the speaker makes plain how the utterances fit into the course of an argument. Performative verbs indicating these acts are to affirm, to deny, to emphasize, to illustrate, to answer, to report, to accept, to describe, to identify, and to call.
e. Behavitives

Behavitives are acts of reactions in relation with the people’s attitudes or social behavior. Performative verbs indicating these acts are to apologize, to thank, to curse, and to condole.

Other experts also propose other concept of illocutionary acts. Searle, for instance, revised and enlarged Austin’s concept of illocutionary acts. Different from Austin which focuses only on performative or speech acts verbs), Searle uses twelve criteria in categorizing the illocutionary acts. Four main criteria of them are the differences in illocutionary point (force), direction of fit between word and world, expressed psychological state, and content (Searle, 1979: 2; Mey, 2001: 119).

a. Declaratives

Declaratives are illocutionary acts by which the speaker is able to change the state of affair in the world via the utterances. The speaker has to have institutional role in a specific context when employing these acts (Yule, 1996: 53). Some performative verbs indicating these speech acts are to beg, to pronounce, to sentence, to state, to declare, to resign, to fire, and to appoint.

Examples:

I find you guilty as charged.
I hereby pronounce you man and wife.
I declare the meeting cancelled.
Furthermore, several illocutionary functions included in this type of illocutionary acts are baptizing, marrying, and firing (Cutting, 2002: 16).

Examples:

Priest in a marriage ceremony:
   I now pronounce you husband and wife. (Marrying)
Referee in a football court:
   You are out! (Firing)
Jury Foreman in a court:
   We find this defendant guilty. (Sentencing)

b. Representatives

Representatives or assertives are illocutionary acts that state what speakers believe to be factual (true) or not (false). By using these acts, the speaker makes words fit the world or belief (Yule, 1996: 53). To describe, to call, to classify, to identify, to claim, to diagnose, to hypothesize, to insist, to predict, and to boast are some performative verbs indicating these types of acts.

Examples:

I call him a liar.
I diagnose his case as appendicitis.
I describe John as a Fascist.

Yule (1996: 53) states some functions of representatives such as statements of fact, assertions, conclusions, and descriptions.

Examples:

The earth is flat. (Stating a fact)
Chomsky didn’t write about peanuts. (Stating an opinion)
It was a warm sunny day. (Describing)
Furthermore, Cutting adds other forces beyond representative or assertive acts. They are claiming, hypothesizing, insisting, and predicting (2002: 17).

c. Expressives

Expressives are illocutionary acts that state the speakers’ feelings or attitudes about something. These acts involve psychological states of the speakers. When performing these acts the speakers makes words fit the worlds or feeling (Yule, 1996: 53). Performative verbs denoting to these illocutionary acts are to thank, congratulate, apologize, condole, deplore, and welcome.

Examples:

I congratulate you on winning the race.
I apologize for stepping your toe
I thank you for giving me the money

(Searle, 1979: 15)

Yule (1996: 53) gives some examples of illocutionary functions on expressives. They are statement of pleasure, pain, likes, dislikes, joy, or sorrow.

Examples:

I’m really sorry! (Apologizing)
Congratulations! (Congratulating)
Mmmm.. Sssh. (Stating pleasure)

(Yule, 1996: 53)

Cutting also adds several other illocutionary functions denoting expressive acts. They are thanking apologizing, welcoming, praising, congratulating, deploring, and regretting (2002: 17).

d. Directives

Directives are illocutionary acts that the speakers use to get something done by the hearers. These acts express what the speaker wants and the speakers attempts to make the world fit the words via the hearer (Yule, 1996: 54).
Performative verbs denoting to this category are to ask, order, command, request, beg, plead, pray, entreat, invite, permit, advise, dare, defy, and challenge.

Examples:

I order you to leave.
I command you to stand at attention.
I advise you to leave.

(Searle, 1979: 14)

Yule (1996: 54) mentions some illocutionary functions in directive acts, namely commands, orders, requests, and suggestions.

Examples:

Gimme a cup of coffee. Make it black. (Commanding or ordering)
Could you lend me a pen please? (Requesting) Don’t touch that. (Forbidding)

(Yule, 1996: 54).

e. Commissives

Commissives are illocutionary acts used by the speakers to commit actions in future. These acts express what the speaker intends to do. By means of comissives, the speakers undertake to make the world fit with the words via the speaker (Yule, 1996: 54). Some performative verbs belong to these speech acts are to promise, to pledge, to offer, to threat, to refuse, and to vow.

Examples:

I promise to pay you the money.
I promise that I will see it.
I pledge allegiance to the flag.
I vow to get revenge.

(Searle, 1979: 22)
The illocutionary functions on this type of illocutionary acts include promises, threats, refusals, and pledges.

Examples:

I’l be back. (Promising)
I’m going to get it right next time. (Promising)
We will not do that. (Refusing)

(Yule, 1996: 54)

To sum up, from the explanation above all the types of illocutionary acts with their general functions are summarized in Table 2 (adapted from Yule, 1996: 55).

4. Context

As mentioned in the previous part, context factors are important point in studies of speech acts particularly in relation with discourse in study pragmatics (Cutting: 2002). In other words it can be said that speech acts are context dependent since the context also influences the illocutionary functions.

David Nunan states that “context refers to the situation giving rise to the discourse and within which the discourse is embedded.” (1993: 7). From that statement, context is simply defined as the circumstance or situation around which influences the conversation. Thus, it is an essential factor in the interpretation of utterances and expressions.

Furthermore, Nunan (1993: 8) categorizes the context into two types: linguistic and nonlinguistic context. The first one is related to the language surrounding the discourse, while the second one is associated with the other-than-language or experimental context within which the discourse takes place. The non-linguistic context includes:

a) the types of communicative events (e.g.: joke, story, lecture, sermon, conversation, and greeting);

b) the topic;

c) the purpose (function, e.g. stating, describing, thanking, and praising);

d) the setting (physical aspects, such as location and time, and psychological aspects: emotional situation);

e) the participants and the relationship within them; and

f) the background knowledge and the assumption of the participants.

Dell Hymes uses the acronym SPEAKING to introduce the context in the use of language which is often associated with communicative competences (Wardhaugh, 2006: 247-248).

a) Setting and scene (S)

Setting refers to the time and place or physical condition where the conversation takes place. Meanwhile, scene refers to the abstract, psychological situation or cultural definition of an event.
b) Participants (P)

Participants refer to the various relationships of speaker-listener, addressee-addressee, or sender-receiver. It includes social specified role in the choice of language, such as the levels of formality and informality.

c) Ends (E)

Ends refer to the expected outcomes or the purposes and the goals which are resulted in the conversations.

d) Act sequence (A)

Act sequence refers to the actual form and content of what is said, the utterances which are used and how they are used, and the relationship of what is said to the actual topic.

e) Key (K)

Key refers to the tone, manner, or spirit where the particular message is conveyed. It is also in relation with the nonverbal actions such as behavior, gesture, or posture.

f) Instrumentalities (I)

Instrumentalities refer to the choice of channel used in the conversation, such as spoken or written, as well as the choice of actual form of speech such as register, dialect, or code which is chosen by the speakers.

g) Norms of interaction and interpretation (N)
Norms of interaction and interpretation refers to the specific behaviors and properties associated with the conversational exchange, such as the way to open the conversation in a specific language which is related to its cultural aspects.

h) Genre (G)

Genre refers to the forms or the types of utterances, such as poems, proverbs, jokes, sermons, prayer, lectures, or editorials.

Holmes (2001: 8) also proposes that a conversation occurs by the influence of social factors. Those social factors are commonly shortened as 5W (Who, Whom, Where, What, and Why).

a) The participants (Who or Whom)

‘Who is speaking?’ and ‘To whom are they speaking?’ refer to the participants of the conversation speaker and listener or addressor and addressee. It also includes the relationship occurring between the participants.

b) The setting or social context (Where)

‘Where are they speaking?’ refers to the settings – physical or psychological contexts - around the conversation. The physical aspect includes the location, time, season, and year. Meanwhile, the psychological aspects involve the feeling of the speaker.

c) The topic (What)

‘What is being talked about?’ refers to the topic being discussed in the conversational exchange. The understanding of the topic by the participants is necessary to maintain the conversation. Consequently, the same background knowledge and assumption is a must for both the speaker and the listener.
d) The function (Why)

‘Why they are speaking?’ refers to the purpose of conversation, such as informing, commanding, inviting, suggesting, promising, greeting, congratulating, and thanking.

5. Communicative Competence

The goal of teaching and learning of any languages, including English, is to master the communicative competence. This term was firstly proposed by Dell Hymes in early 1970s instead of the term linguistic competence. Communicative competence is defined as an aspect of one’s competence that enables them to convey and interpret messages and to negotiate meanings interpersonally within specific contexts (Brown, 2007: 219).

Communicative competences enlarge the concept of mastery of linguistic competence by means of which a learner acquires the grammatical and phonological elements. The linguistic competence covers only the language form and knowledge in terms of structural aspects. In contrast, communicative competence is broader because it includes not only linguistic (grammatical or formal competence), but also discourse competence, sociolinguistic or sociocultural competence, and strategic competence (Richard and Schmidth, 2003: 90).

a) Linguistic or grammatical competence

Linguistic or grammatical competence is related to the pure linguistic factors. It deals with how language is structuralized in systematic arrangement, phonetically and graphically. It consists of phonetics and phonology (sounds), morphology (morphemes, words), syntax (phrases, clauses, and sentence), and semantics (meaning). The scope of grammatical competence is only up to the syntactic level (sentence).

b) Discourse competence

Discourse competence is related to the textual aspects above the syntactical levels. It deals with how the sentences and/or paragraphs are combined and arranged to be a text (discourse). Consequently, the cohesion system, coherence features, and positional significance in text are some important aspects to be discussed in this level. Text types with different structure and purposes, which are realized as several genres, also become the topic under the discussion of this area.

c) Sociolinguistic or sociocultural competence

Sociolinguistic competence is associated with the use of language appropriately in social context or situation. Language is composed of different functions of the real uses such as greeting, introducing, opening and closing of conversation, questioning, ordering, complaining, praising, and so on. Those are used in appropriate situation and context so that the discussion deals with the social use of language is also correlated with the discussion of cultural aspects in. Accordingly, it is clear that both sociolinguistic and pragmatic competences play important role here.

d) Strategic competence

Strategic competence is a part of communicative competence which is concerned with the way of how the learners organize the language in effective manner. Communicative strategy is another important aspect for learners to express the language properly and appropriately, in term of organized speech, with no misunderstanding, so that the communication runs well.

The concept of communicative competences is then developed, elaborated, enlarged, and revised by various experts, although the core remains same. Bachman in Brown (2005: 224) proposes another categorization. Instead of using terms communicative competence, she chooses using term language competence. The language competence is subdivided into two components, organizational competence and pragmatic competence.

Organizational competence comprises knowledge of linguistic units and the rules of joining them together at the levels of sentence (grammatical competence) and discourse (textual competence). Pragmatic competence subdivides into illocutionary competence and sociolinguistic competence. The illocutionary competence or the knowledge of the sociolinguistic conventions in pragmatic competence is used to perform language functions appropriately in a given context (Canale via Krisnawati, 2011: 106).
In reference with the previous explanation, illocutionary is a part of pragmatic competence dealing with the knowledge of communicative action and the way of using it in the communication. The implementation of illocutionary in ELT can be seen from the functional use of language taught in the classroom. Stating, requesting, thanking, complimenting, greeting, arguing and so on are some of language functions found in the ELT materials.

Those language functions are actually the realization of illocutionary functions, as a part of illocutionary competence, in the teaching and learning of English (Brown, 2007: 225). Those are needed to be taught in the language teaching and learning in the form of materials printed in the textbooks. In addition to that, the indirect way of teaching functional language is by means of teacher’s language used. This is due to the fact that the English is also used by the English teacher as a medium language in the classroom.

6. Classroom Discourse

In teaching any languages, including English, teacher is required to use the language he or she teaches directly. In the same way, English is not only taught but also used as medium language in the classroom. The varieties or registers of language used in the classroom is narrowed and different from the general language because it deals with special functions used implemented in the classroom. This type of language is called as classroom language or classroom discourse.

Classroom language is the type of language used in classroom situations. Richards and Schmidt (2003: 74) simply define classroom discourse as “a variety of language sometimes used by teachers when they are in the process of teaching”. Classroom discourse is different in form and function from language used in other situations because of the particular social roles students and teachers have in classrooms and the kinds of activities they usually carry out there. Wardhaugh (2006: 306) explains that in classroom conversation the teacher is said to own the conversation itself. The teacher controls most of the important aspects of the communication such as topic and turn-taking.

In line with that, The Cambridge Teaching Knowledge Tests (TKT) Course Paperback lists some common classroom functions used by teacher during teaching and learning process (Spatt, Pulverness, and Williams, 2005: 134-135).

a) Instructing is used by the teacher to tell the students what to do at different stages of lesson. This function commonly uses imperative form, e.g.: ‘Please open page five,’ and ‘For this activity, you’ll work in pairs.’

b) Explaining is used to give more details of an activity or task, e.g.: ‘We will put your project in the wall so make sure that yours is easy to read.’

c) Narrating is used when the teacher tells the students about the story or experience in the past. This function is commonly used in elementary levels, e.g.: ‘Before I start the lesson, I would like to tell you my experience during the holiday.’

d) Eliciting is used by the teacher to get the information from the learners, rather than to give them directly, e.g.: ‘What can you see from this picture?’ and ‘How can you arrange these jumbled paragraphs?’
e) Prompting is a function to help the students think of ideas or to remember a word or phrase by giving them part of it, e.g.: ‘You may start the story by this picture.’

f) Correcting is used by the teacher to indicate that the students make a mistake, e.g.: ‘Use ‘went’ not ‘gone’ when telling your experience.’

g) Checking is used to make sure whether the students have been correct or not. The use of concept question can be a way to check the students’ understand, e.g.: ‘Can anyone give me a sentence using this word?’

h) Conveying the meaning is used by the teacher when there is a new word or expression in order that the students understand. This can use mime, bring realia or picture, or use spoken language which is easier to understand.

B. Related Studies

A pragmatic research titled Pragmatic Knowledge for Second Language Learners was held by Margana in 2011. It discusses the implementations of several pragmatic aspects which are important in Teaching English as Foreign Language. That study is conducted in several secondary schools in Yogyakarta Regional Province. The researcher investigates two aspects of pragmatics: illocutionary acts and conversational implicature. The result is that there are four types of illocutionary acts (representatives, directives, expressives, and commissives) and two types of conversational implicature (generalized and particularized implicature) used by the English teachers of secondary schools in Yogyakarta.
Another research by Iwan Khairi Yahya (2013) titled Tindak Tutur Direktif dalam Interaksi Belajar Mengajar Mata Pelajaran Bahasa Indonesia di SMAN I Mlati, Sleman (Directive Speech Acts in Indonesian Teaching-Learning Process in SMAN Mlati, Sleman) investigates the directive speech acts used by the teachers of Indonesian language in the classroom conversation. Using classifications of directive speech acts as proposed by Bach and Harnish, the research results that the use of question in classroom discourse is the most dominant (315 out of 826) of other directive functions. The research reveals that the use of questions in directive speech acts aims at raising the students’ activeness in the teaching and learning process.

Another pragmatics research on language functions and speech acts in ELT is conducted by Afsin Moradi, Alireza Karbalaei, and Shahram Afraz (2013) in their research entitled A Textbook Evaluation of Speech Acts and Language Functions in High School English Textbooks (I, II And III) and Interchange Series, Books I, II, And III. Using Searle’s classification of speech acts and Halliday’s functional language, they compare the use of speech acts in New Interchange and some Iranian English textbooks. Their research results 1100 data containing speech acts, with 507 assertives as the dominant acts in New Interchange. On the other hand, in Iranian English textbook for high school they found 275 speech acts, with 122 directives as the most frequent acts. This study implies that the use of speech acts in Iranian high school textbook has not been implemented well compared to the textbooks composed by the native speakers of English, New Interchange I, II, and II.
Those three studies are concerned with the pragmatic aspects in the language education. It is similar to the study that the researcher conducts. However there are some differences. First, in the pragmatic research done by Margana the scope of the topics is broader. It deals not only with the illocutionary acts but also the implicature. Additionally, the object is broader, the English teachers of secondary school in Yogyakarta Special Region.

Second, the research conducted by Iwan Khairi Yahya has more specific topic. It deals only on a type of speech acts: the directives. The theory used to classify the illocutionary acts is also different from the theory used by the researcher in this research. Yahya applied illocutionary acts classification as proposed by the Bach and Harnish; the researcher uses Searle’s. Moreover, the teachers’ utterances that Yahya investigated are those in Indonesian language, whereas the researcher investigates the English utterances.

Third, in the study conducted by Moradi, Karbalaei, and Afraz, the object of the research is the English textbooks. They focus on the speaking dialogues used in those textbooks. They applied comparative study since they compared the textbooks issued by the English nativers with those issued by the local (Iranian) publishers.

C. Conceptual Framework and Analytical Construct

1. Conceptual Framework

Conceptual framework is a guideline done by the researcher to investigate the problems of the study. In this research, the researcher conducts the classroom communication research. Classroom communication can be investigated from several aspects. It can be phonology, grammar, discourse, sociolinguistics, or pragmatics. The researcher investigates the pragmatic aspects of the classroom communication, particularly the teacher’s utterances.

Pragmatics itself has several main aspects such as deixis, reference, presupposition, speech acts, and implicature. One of that pragmatic aspect is speech acts. Speech acts consist of three main topics: locutionary acts, illocutionary acts, and perlocutionary acts. This research focuses on illocutionary acts performed by the English teachers in teaching-learning process.

Illocutionary acts are categorized into declaratives, representatives or assertives, directives, expressives, and commissives. They are the five types of illocutionary acts proposed by Searle (1979). Each of those acts consists of illocutionary functions. Some of those functions here are declaring, describing, predicting, agreeing, disagreeing, thanking, greeting, congratulating, sympathizing, apologizing, commanding, requesting, suggesting, advising, inviting, warning, encouraging, promising, offering, threatening, and refusing.

The results of the research reveal the types of illocutionary acts and illocutionary functions performed by the English teachers in classroom conversation at SMAN 1 Wates, Kulon Progo.

Analytical Construct of the Study
CHAPTER III
RESEARCH METHODS

In this chapter, how the research is conducted is explained in detail. This chapter is divided into five sessions: research type, data and data sources, research instrument, research procedures, and data trustworthiness. Each of them is presented in the following discussion.

A. Research Type

This research used descriptive qualitative methods. It means that the researcher applies a set of procedures used for problem solving based on the factual data. Bogdan and Taylor in Moleong (2004: 3) state that in descriptive qualitative study, the data investigated by the researcher are in the form of oral or written words. It is qualitative since it is concerned with nonnumerical data and it is descriptive since it aims at describing the facts of the analysis systematically based on actually they are.

Furthermore, Lodico, Spaulding, and Voegtle (2010: 143) summarize several primary characteristics or principles of descriptive qualitative research:

1) Naturalistic setting used by the researcher when conducting the research
2) Board research question used by the researcher to explore, interpret, and understand the social context
3) Nonrandom methods used by the researcher to select the participants in order to find the individual with important information
4) Observation and interview used by the researcher as data collection techniques in order to make the researcher in a close contact and interaction with the participants.

5) Interactive role used by the researcher to understand the participants and their social context.

6) Hypotheses proposed by the researcher after the data collection and able to be revised in the data analysis.

7) Narrative form rather than numerical one used by the researcher in the report of the research.

In line with those statements, the researcher applied descriptive qualitative method. It was because the data to be investigated were the utterances of English teacher in the classroom and the aim of the research was to describe the factual data supported by the theories of pragmatics which are proposed by several experts.

B. Data and Data Sources

Qualitative research involves non-numeric data. The data of this research were the English teachers’ utterances used when communicating with the students in the classroom. The researcher obtained the data from the classroom conversation in English teaching-learning process in SMAN 1 Wates, Kulon Progo. The data were obtained from four English teachers on 1-13 September 2014.
C. Research Instrument

This research is qualitative, so the primary instrument is the researcher himself. The qualitative study cannot be separated from the role of the researcher because it is the researcher himself who determines the scenario of the research. The researcher plays role as a planner, implementer, of data collection and data analysis, data interpreter and finally as a pioneer of the research result (Moleong, 2004: 168).

D. Research Procedures

1. Data Collection Technique

The data collection technique the researcher used in this study was note-taking technique. In note-taking technique the researcher used recording instruments, video camera and sound recorder, to record the classroom dialogues. Next, the researcher noted the data in the data sheet. The most important thing that the researcher has to notice is that the recording process must be conducted as naturally as possible in order that the utterer does not realize that his or her utterances are still being recorded (Sudaryanto in Kesuma, 2007:45). However, because the subject of the research was classroom conversation, situation of which is simulated, that condition could not be fully fulfilled. The researcher only tried to act as naturally as possible in order that he did not participate in the classroom communication. The role researcher here was only as an observer.

The data collection process applied in the research were divided into several steps, as followed.
a. Recording the English teaching and learning process in the class using video camera and/or video recorder.

b. Making transcript of the dialogue from the recording.

c. Selecting the collected data

d. Recording the data into the data sheet

e. Classifying the data.

The collected data was recorded in the data sheet. The data sheet used by the researcher was presented in Table 3 below.

2. Data Analysis

After collecting the data, the researcher obtained the raw data. The data were then analyzed. The data analysis in qualitative research, according to Bogdan and Bilken, is an effort conducted by the researcher in order to organize the data by reducing the data into the organized units, synthesizing the data, finding the pattern, finding the important data, and deciding what to present to the others (Moleong, 2008: 248).
Miles and Huberman (1994: 15) suggest four steps of data analysis in qualitative study: data collection, data reduction, presentation, and conclusion. This process is called as interactive analysis. In data collection the researcher collected the data through the recording process. The collected data were then simplified on the important points and then were classified in relation to the focus of the research. In data reduction, the researcher conducted data selection, classified the data, made the focus, omitting the non-used data. This process was done continuously during the data analysis. Then, the researcher presented the analyzed data in order to give an effort to draw a conclusion. To draw the data conclusion, the researcher verified the data to make sure the validity of data. Additionally, the researcher had a discussion of the data with the experts.

In addition to the interactive analysis method, the researcher used identity method in analyzing the data. Sudaryanto in Kesuma (2007: 47) states that identity method is a method used when the researcher determines the identity of linguistic units by means of determining tools outside the linguistic aspects. Sudaryanto also states that there are five types of identity method which can be applied in linguistic study. They are referential method, articulatory phonetic method, translational method, orthographic method, and pragmatic method.

Because the topic of the research is concerned with pragmatic, in this study the researcher applied pragmatic identity method. This method is used to identify linguistic units according to the linguistic units and the effects which are uttered by the speakers. The researcher implemented this method since the research is concerned with the pragmatic phenomena occurring in the teaching-learning process of English in the classroom which involve the communication between teacher and students.

In the data analysis process, the researcher applied coding system. The purpose was not to number the data, but was to make the researcher easier in selecting and classifying the data from the data sheet. The coding system was as followed.

E. Data Trustworthiness

In order to reach the trustworthiness of the data in qualitative research, Moleong (2004: 324) suggests four criteria: credibility, dependability, transferability, and confirm-ability. In this study, the researcher focused only on credibility and dependability.

The credibility of the data obtained by means of triangulation. The triangulation that the researcher applied was researcher or investigator triangulation. It was conducted by consulting with the experts. In this case, the researcher discussed the data with two lecturers of linguistics courses of English Education Study Department of Yogyakarta State University. The researcher had the data discussion with Siti Sudartini, M.A., from English Education Study Program, and Emi Nursanti, M.Hum., from English Language and Literature Study Program. The investigators’ roles were checking and validating the data.
To meet the dependability, the researcher gave detail explanation of the data collection and data analysis. Moreover, the use of video-recorder to record the more detail data was applied during the data collection process. It was conducted since the data to have been observed were in the form of the utterances used in the classroom communication which is context-dependent. Accordingly, the videotaping enabled the researcher to re-observe the data if necessary.
CHAPTER IV
FINDINGS AND DISCUSSIONS

In this chapter, the results of the research that has been conducted are explained in detail. Similar to its title, this chapter is divided into two main parts: findings and discussions. All are explained in the following parts.

A. Findings

Based on the research, there are four types of illocutionary acts performed by the teachers in English teaching-learning process at SMA N 1 Wates, Kulon Progo. They are representatives, expressives, directives, and commissives. The declarative acts are not found. The results of the data findings are presented in Table 4.

Table 4 shows that there are 438 data containing illocutionary acts. The directives serve the dominant frequency of all five types of illocutionary acts. There are 278 data (63.47%) containing directives acts. The lowest-rank frequency of illocutionary acts are the commissives with only 6 data (1.369%). The declaratives were not found in this research.
Additionally, there are 23 types of illocutionary functions employed by the teachers in the English teaching-learning process at SMA N 1 Wates. The results of the data findings are presented in Table 5.

Table 5 shows that 438 data contain illocutionary functions. Questioning is the most frequent illocutionary function used by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates, Kulon Progo. There are 149 data (34.01%) containing questioning function. On the other hand, the threatening function has the fewest frequent function with only 1 datum (0.22%). The threatening is a by-chance datum due to its frequency which is less than 3 data.

B. Discussions

This part contains the explanations of the data findings in reference to data analysis. There are four types of illocutionary acts found in this research. Each of them contains several particular functions. All are discussed in this following part.

1. Declaratives

The declaratives are not found in the research. This type of illocutionary acts is special. The performers of these illocutionary acts must have the institutional role in specific context to perform these acts appropriately. Also, the declaratives have specific uses in very specific place and events (settings) e.g. a judge in a court when sentencing a defendant guilty or not, a director of a company when firing his employer, and a major when opening a new city bridge. Furthermore, the declarative uses specific illocutionary force indicative device, e.g. ‘I declare that...’, ‘I pronounce that...’

In educational setting, such as in school when teaching-learning process is conducted, this type of illocutionary acts is rarely found. It can be performed, for instance, when the teacher appoints a student as a leader of the class ‘I appoint you a leader of this class’ or when he or she close the class ‘I declare the today’s meeting ends.’ Nevertheless, there is no class leader election during the research. Also, teachers’ utterance when opening and closing the class does not fulfill IFID of declaratives because in this research the teachers simply use greeting and leave-taking function (expressive acts) to open and close the class.
2. Representatives

Representative acts deal with the teachers’ statement whether it is true or false. Quantitatively, representative acts are in the second rank of the illocutionary act performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates. In classroom conversation, teachers deliver their teaching materials. The teaching materials contain factual or nonfactual statements. Pragmatically, those true and false statements, of course, belong to representative acts.

There are five types of representative functions found in the data. They are stating an opinion, stating a fact, informing, explaining, and agreeing.

1) Stating an opinion

This function is used to tell own thoughts, ideas, or opinions rather than facts to the listener. In the classroom, teacher uses this function to express their view of a particular topic or phenomenon. Datum (4:1) is an example of stating an opinion the English teachers performed.

(4:1)  T : Is it clear? The picture is clear. The pictures are good enough, I think. Funny, perhaps. What do you think about the pictures? For the students who have finished, please look at the picture. O.K Now. What do you think about the picture? What do you think?
    Ss : Cartoon

As shown in Datum (4:1), the bold expressions present the teacher’s own opinion about the pictures shown in the display. He stated that the picture was a clear, good, and funny. The use of expression ‘I think’ indicates the stating opinion expression because ‘think’ is one of the performative verbs of stating one’s opinion.
Next example of representative function of stating an opinion performed by the teachers in English teaching-learning process is presented in the Datum (4:2).

| (4:2)  | T : O.K. From now on if you get compliment among you or di antara satu kelas ini ya among this class, you must be careful. You apply the English culture if the compliment is in English, but if in Bahasa perhaps you think twice whether it’s sincere or not. I think it’s because the oriental culture tends to be wise –you know. We have to differentiate which one we apply. Then the last one of English compliment. OK, all together read.
Ss: (reading aloud the text) |

(T-2/CR/04.09.14/6/11)

In Datum (4:2), the English teacher warned the students about the cultural awareness in expressing compliment in English language which was different from that in Indonesian. She stated an opinion ‘I think it’s because the oriental culture tends to be wise –you know’ as a reason of explanation she had stated. It is classified as stating an opinion because the speaker used expression ‘I think’ to indicate the speaker’s own idea, thought, or believe of particular phenomenon.

Other expression which contains illocutionary function of stating an opinion used by the English teachers in classroom conversation at SMA N 1 Wates, Kulon Progo is presented in Datum (4:3).
In Datum (4:3), the teacher requested the students to see the dialogue. She expressed the bold expression it because she thought that she could easily correct any mistakes. The bold expression in Datum (4:3) is classified as stating an opinion since it shows teacher’s opinion as a reason for her previous statement.

2) Stating a fact

This illocutionary function is expressed by the speaker to state a fact or a truth which is accepted in general. Datum (4:4) is an example of stating a fact performed by the English teachers in classroom communication.

The bold expression in Datum (4:4) ‘There are 24 hours a day’ is a general truth. It is believed by people all over the world and it is scientifically correct. Consequently, the bold expression is classified as stating a fact.

Other example of stating a fact employed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is shown in Datum (4:5).
Datum (4:5) occurred when the teacher checked students’ attendance list. He stated the date, and the month for that day ‘It is now 3 September.’ This expression is a statement of fact. That the day was 3 September is in line with the general truth. The bold expression, accordingly, is classified as stating a fact.

Other example of representative function of stating a fact is presented in Datum (4:6).

The bold expression in Datum (4:6) is classified as stating a fact because the speaker mentioned the day, date, month, and the year when she conducted an activity. The bold expression she stated is in conjunction with the statement of fact or general truth.
3) Informing

Informing is expressed by the teacher to give the students information what the students are going to do in relation with the teaching and learning process. Datum (4:7) is an example of informing function performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>(4:7) T: O.K. Class. We have finished our first topic or basic competence that is about politeness. Right? Now our agenda is that we will learn about utterances or expressing gambit. Perhaps you find it in your daily life even when you converse with your friend. Let me take example I see you wear your new glasses; then I say something. Ayu, oh what a new glasses? S: Thank you</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(T-2/CR/06.09.14/1/2)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

As presented in the bold expression in Datum (4:7), the teacher informed the students that they had finished their previous materials about the politeness in English. Now the teacher was willing to continue the topic about expressing gambits or language function in speaking English. Those bold expression are informing because they contain information related to the past and future activities done by the students in teaching-learning process.

Other example of representative function of informing can also be found in Datum (4:8).

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>(4:8) T: Next unit, we will discuss your exercise about noun phrases. Please read, for you that have book. There are six types of noun phrases. Read, Galih. Number one. Yang nomer satu. S: ‘I saw a bird fly high.’</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(T-1/RS/02.09.14/3/12)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The bold expression in Datum (4:8) is classified as informing because it contains information for the students concerning what the class would do. That they were going to discuss the exercise about noun phrase are the information.

Other example of informing function expressed by the English teacher is as presented in Datum (4:9).

(4:9) T: O.K. Listen. Perhaps, you can do it at home, but you have to type it and then you submit in one folder in a class, satu kelas dalam satu folder. Submit it when you have the first test. We wil have the test after we discuss the procedure text. Next meeting, we will still have Mbak siapa itu?
Ss: Nisa
T: ... Mbak Nisa to discuss to discuss formal but not official. And then, next Friday we discuss the procedure text. Then we will have the first test. And you have to submit. Then the next you may have the mid-test. Thank you. See you next meeting.
Ss: See you.

The bold expressions in Datum (4:9) show that the teacher informed the students the activities they were going to have. Next meeting, they would continue discussing formal invitation. On Friday they would discuss the procedure text and that was the time to submit the homework. Then, after the meeting on Friday they were going to have midterm test. All contains information for the students. Therefore, those bold expression are classified as informing.

4) Explaining

Explaining is expressed when the speaker wants to make something clear or easy to understand by describing or giving more information about it. In classroom settings, this function is frequently used when teacher explains the teaching-learning materials. An example of explaining function is presented in Datum (4:10).

(4:10) T: O.K. Class, We have finished our first topic or basic competence that is about politeness. Right? Now our agenda is that we will learn about utterances or expressing gambit...... Let me take example; I see you wear your new glasses; then I say something. ‘Ayu, oh what a new glasses.’
S: Thank you

Datum (4:10) presents the use of example of a particular gambit used by the English teacher by giving the situation and an utterance. ‘Let me take example; I see you wear your new glasses; then I say something. ‘Ayu, oh what a new glasses.’ It is explaining function as it provides the students more information about the topic they are going to discuss: giving compliment in English. The use of expression ‘Let me take example’ is the way of explaining through exemplifying.

Next example of explaining function used by the English teacher is found in Datum (4:11).

(4:11) T: ..... What is ‘compliment’ in Bahasa?
Ss: ‘Pujian’
T: ‘Pujian or? ‘M emoji’. Actually between the verb and the noun, the English of the two words are same. The part of speech of compliment is verb and noun. Compliment itself as a noun is ‘p u j i a n ’. So the same.....

Datum (4:11) shows that the English teacher gave the more explanation on definition of compliment. She explained the similarities as well as the differences in grammatical aspects, that the word ‘compliment’ could be used as both noun and verb. Its purpose is to provide the students with more explanation of a particular thing, issue, or phenomenon, so the students would understand more on that topic. Consequently, the bold expression is categorized as explaining.

Next example of explaining function performed by the English teachers in classroom conversation is presented in Datum (4:12).

(4:12) T: ‘Wake up’ or ‘get up’? What is the difference? Apa? Orang Jawa nggomong aku mau esuk jam 4 wis tangi ning durung tangi. Tangi ning rung tangi. ‘Wake up’ means you open your....
Ss: Eyes
(T-3/ ZF/06.09.14/5/13)

Datum (4:12) shows that the teacher and the students were discussing the difference between ‘wake up’ and ‘get up’. The teacher illustrated the difference using Javanese’s concept. Then, as shown by the bold expression, he also described the definition of ‘wake up’ and ‘get up’. Since it gives the listeners additional information of something, the bold expression is categorized as explaining.

5) Agreeing

Agreeing is illocutionary function which is expressed when the speaker has same opinion with the listener or when the speaker accepts the listener’s suggestion or idea. Datum (4:13) is one of the examples of agreeing functions in English teaching-learning process.
Datum (4:13) presents that the teacher asked for students’ opinion about the picture displayed on the projector. The question was to what age the picture is proper. The students expressed their opinion that the picture was suitable for kids. The teacher replied ‘OK’; followed by repeating what the students have said. ‘O.K’ is an expression that means ‘Yes’. From this, obviously the teacher agreed on the students’ answer, so the bold expression is categorized as agreeing.

In addition to the previous example, there is other datum containing illocutionary function of agreeing as exemplified in Datum (4:14).

In Datum (4:14), the English teacher asked the students to provide another idea of an end of the narrative story, as one of their friends had done. However, they replied ‘The same’ which means they had no answer. The teacher asked a question again but the student’s answer was still the same. Consequently, teacher agreed on student’s answer by ‘The same. O.K.’
The bold expression in Datum (4:15) is another example of agreeing function. It was expressed by the teacher as a comment of student’s answer. It is agreeing because it contains expressions ‘Yes’ and ‘Right’ which indicate that the participant has same opinion with other participants.

3. Expressives

Expressive acts deal with the statements of speaker’s feeling or attitude of particular situation. Based on the research results, expressives are in the third rank of illocutionary act frequency found in classroom communication in English teaching-learning process at SMA N 1 Wates. There are five types of expressive functions found in the data. They are greeting, thanking, complimenting, joking, apologizing, and stating surprise.

1) Greeting

Greeting is an expression used to welcome someone. In classroom situation it is commonly found when a teacher starts the process of teaching and learning. An example of greeting is shown in Datum (4:16).
As shown by the bold utterance in Datum (4:16), the teacher applied expression ‘Good morning, students.’ This expression is a greeting used to greet people in the morning, from 00.00 to 12.00. As the English lesson started at 08.45, the teacher applied this greeting expression. The students responded the teacher with the same expression ‘Good morning.’

Next example of greeting expression employed by the English teachers at SMA N 1 Wates can also be found in Datum (4:17).

(4:17) T: Good morning, class?
    Ss: Morning
    T: How’re you today?
    Ss: Excellent
    T: Really?
    Ss: Yes.

(T-2/CR/04.09.14/1/1)

Similar to that in Datum (4:16), the bold expression in Datum (4:17) is classified as greeting. It was performed in the morning to greet the students when the teacher opened the lesson. It also has same form with that of Datum (4:16). The difference is only on the direct address that the teacher point at the whole class.

The bold expression performed by the English teacher in Datum (4:17) also contains greeting function.

(4:18) T: Morning.
    Ss: Morning, Sir

(T-3/KW/06.09.14/1/1)
The simple expression in datum (4:18) is a greeting function which is actually a short form of ‘Good morning.’ Here, the word ‘good’ is omitted. However it still has same meaning and same purpose: to greet the students.

2) Leave-taking

Leave-taking is expressed by the speaker to close a conversation. In teaching-learning process, the teacher applies this function in the end of the lesson to close the lesson. The Datum (4:19) is one of the examples.

| (4:19) | T: ... You may continue it at home. Don’t forget Friday you will have a test, four materials. And next Tuesday, next Tuesday you perform your report text. O.K. Thank you. Good bye.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ss:</td>
<td>Good bye.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In Datum (4:19), as presented by the bold expression, the teacher applied an expressive function ‘Good bye’. The teachers closed the lesson by saying ‘Good bye.’ and the students replied with the similar expression, ‘Good bye.’ Since the teacher used that expression to close the conversation it is classified as leave-taking.

Different leave-taking expression performed by the English teacher is also found in Datum (4:20).

| (4:20) | T: O.K. Class thank you very much for now. Do your task. See you next week. Assalamualaikum wr wb.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>

</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ss:</td>
<td>Walaikumsalam wr. Wb.</td>

The bold expression ‘see you’ is one of the common expressions of leave-taking other than ‘Good bye.’ It is usually performed by the speaker to end up a conversation. In Datum (4:20) ‘See you next week’ was performed to close the lesson and it means that the teacher and the students would meet again in the following week.

Datum (4:21) also exemplifies the leave-taking function used by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates.

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(T-6/RS/05.09.14/3/8)

In Datum (4:21), the bold expression ‘See you next meeting’ was performed to finish the English lesson that day. It means all the participants would meet again in the following English lesson.

3) Thanking

Thanking is illocutionary function uttered by the speaker when he/she feels gratitude for what the listener does or says. The Datum (4:22) presents an eexample of thanking.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>(4:22)</th>
<th>T: Yes? Anybody wants to read this for me?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>S: Me (raising her hand)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>T: O.K. Thank you. Please.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(T-2/CR/06.09.14/4/7)

In Datum (4:22), the teacher performed thanking expression ‘Thank you’ as a response of student’s willingness to do what teacher has requested. The English teacher asked any students to read a short dialogue in the printed material. Then, a student replied ‘Me’ while raising her hand. ‘Thank you’ is one of thanking expression to express speaker’s gratitude.

Next example of thanking function employed by the English teacher in the teaching-learning process is presented in Datum (4:23).

(4:23) (Some students entered the classroom. They collected the recording of speaking dialogue to the teacher)
S: Sudah, Pak.
T: Thank you. Thank you. Good. Nice. That’s correct. (T-4/KW/03.09.14/2/9)

Datum (4:23) presented other example of thanking. The teacher used common expression ‘Thank you’ two times. He expressed his gratitude because the students had collected their assignments: creating a recording of speaking dialogue.

Other datum containing expressive function of thanking employed by the English teachers at SMA N 1 Wates is presented in Datum (4:24).

(4:24) (School bell rang)
T: In interrogative there is a question mark...... If you haven’t finished I give you another. Thank you very much for attention and joining. Assalammualaikaum wr wb.
Ss: Walaikumsalam wr wb. (T-4/KW/03.09.14/4/12)

In Datum (4:24) as shown in the bold utterance, the teacher performed thanking function with expression ‘thank’. He thanked the students for their attention and attendance in the lesson today.
4) Complimenting

Complimenting is an expression which shows approval, admiration, or respect of what someone does. Datum (4:25) is an example of complimenting functions performed by the teachers in English teaching-learning process.

(4:25) (Two students finished performing a speaking dialogue)
T: Thank you for Khoirul and Rahma. Big applause for them.
Ss: (clapping their hands)

(T-4/CR/06.09.14/6/14)

The thickened expression in Datum (4:22) was employed by the English teacher to give comment on the students’ performance. The expression ‘Big applause for them’ actually implies that the teacher praised the students’ performance and he asked the other students to do so. Therefore, the bold expression is categorized as complimenting.

Next example of complimenting function used by the English teachers in the teaching and learning process is in Datum (4:26).

(4:26) T: Different idea, please. Come on.
S: Maybe the fishermen will quite happy but their wife becomes a fish and they’re life
T: The man lives happily with the fish but his wife become fish. Then?
S: And then the fish turns back into the prince
T: Thank you very much. That’s a good idea.

(T-5/KW/.09.14/2/8)

The bold expression in Datum (4:26) presents that the teacher gave a comment on student’ answer. A student expressed his idea about the possible end of narrative story “The Enchanted Fish”. The teacher felt happy and proud of that student’s answer. Therefore, he expressed ‘Thank you very much’. Additionally he praised ‘That’s a good idea’. That expression is not only a description or opinion but it conveys complimenting function.

Datum (4:27) also exemplifies expressive function of complimenting performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates.

(4:27) T: Do you know the word ‘mess’?
   Ss: Berantakan
   T: Good. Berantakan. What a beautiful garden it is. Ih bagus banget tamannya. Oh berantakan kok.

Datum (4:27) shows the expression containing expressive function of complimenting. The bold expression ‘Good’ is expressed by the English teacher to praise on students’ response in answering her question. She asked whether they knew the Indonesian translation of word ‘mess’ or not. The students’ answer was ‘berantakan.’ It was true answer, so the teacher praised them.

5) Joking

Joking is an expression that is said by the speaker to make the listener laugh. In teaching-learning process, the English teacher generally applies this function to relax the strained situation in the classroom. An example of joking is presented in Datum (4:28).

(4:28) T: If the compliment is not sincere they will refuses it as well. For example, Don’t try to flatter. ‘Gombal ah. Gombal.’ But in English it’s not gombal, you know – It’s cloth
   Ss: (laughing)
   T: ‘Gombal’ is cloth.

(T-2/CR/04.09.14/4/7)

(T-2/CR/06.09.14/5/11)
As shown in Datum (4:28), the English teacher explained the cultural differences between Indonesian and English when expressing compliment. She gave an example the way Indonesian refuses the compliment by using 'Gombal ah. Gombal’ (Don’t be kidding). However, when explaining the English translation of the similar expression, she literally translated the Javanese word 'gombal’ (cloth). This made all students in the classroom laugh. The teacher strengthened her joke by adding other utterance ‘Gombal is cloth.’ Therefore, those bold expressions are categorized as joking.

Different joking expression found in the teaching-learning process is shown in Datum (4:29).

(4:29) (Two male students practiced a dialogue)
S: ‘Hey Mike, you look so handsome today’.
T: Hey you must be careful if your friend says you’re handsome (laughing).
S: (laughing)

(T-2/CR/06.09.14/8/18)

The bold expression in Datum (4:29) contains expressive function of joking. It occurred when two male students performed a dialogue of compliment. He said ‘Hey Mike, you look so handsome today’. Suddenly, the teacher interrupted and said ‘Hey you must be careful if your friend says you’re handsome’. It implies that the students should be aware that one of the students practicing the dialogue might have abnormal sexual orientation because one of them praises his male partner to be a handsome boy. Then the response from the other students was laughing.
The bold expression in Datum (4:30) contains expressive function of joking. As shown by the bold expression, the teacher changed the title of a traditional folktale. The real title was actually ‘The Mousedeer Stealing the Cucumber’, but he changed it into ‘The Cucumber Stealing the Mousedeer’. It is a joke because normally a mousedeer eats cucumber. The teacher’s purpose when uttering that expression is to relax the situation since it was a sunny afternoon and he saw a lot of student feeling so sleepy. Therefore, this expression is classified as joking.

6) Apologizing

This illocutionary function is expressed by the speaker for saying sorry for the fault he or she has done. An example of this function which is performed by the English teacher is shown in Datum (4:31).

(4:31) T: ...Suppose Mas Askhar. Which one Mas Askar?
Ss: Laska Ma’am.
T: Oh I’m sorry, Laska, Alaska? Haha. For example Mas Laska got 10 in English and I give compliment: what a high scores. What is the function? To? What is the purpose?
Ss: Motivasi

(T-2/CR/06.09.14/3/5)
Datum (4:31) presents an expressive function of apologizing. It is apologizing since it contains ‘sorry’ which indicates apologizing function. The purpose is to express teacher’s apology for miscalling a student’s name.

Other datum which contains expressive function of apologizing performed by the English teachers at SMA N 1 Wates is following.

(4:32) T: Yes. Mmm. In your textbook page 1. Page 6. O.K. You have question about the story of the fisherman. The question 1, what is your answer? Yes or no?
Ss: No.
T: How do you know? Yes or no? No ‘How did he feel about this?’ ‘How did he feel about it?’
Ss: He felt... (saying something unclear)
T: Sorry? The fisherman... Aloud please.
Ss: ‘The fisherman felt ashamed of the fish.’

Datum (4:32) shows that the English teacher performed expression ‘Sorry’. It is a common expression (illocutionary force indicating device) to express one’s sorry or apology. In the datum, the teacher saying sorry for not catching what the students had said.

Other expressive function of apologizing which is used by the English teachers is exemplified in Datum (4:33).

(4:33) T: Apa yang? ‘Might’ means?
Ss: ‘Mungkin’
Ss: (saying something unclear)
T: Yes. Any reason?
Ss: Animal and.....
T: The place might... Sorry, what did you say?
Ss: (saying something unclear)
The bold expression in Datum (4:33) presents an expressive function of apologizing. Similar to those in previous datum, this utterance uses common apologizing expression ‘sorry’. The teacher’s purpose when performing this function is saying sorry for not catching the utterance that the students said because they said it unclearly.

7) Stating surprise

This function is expressed when the speaker feels shocked because of something or someone. An example of this function is presented in Datum (4:34).

(4:34) T: Good morning class?
   Ss: Morning
   T: How’re you today?
   Ss: Excellent
   T: Really?
   Ss: Yes.

As presented in Datum (4:34), the bold expression shows that English teacher said ‘Really?’ with rising intonation and wrinkle face. When she asked for students’ condition, the students’ response is ‘Excellent’. It made the teacher so surprised with what the students’ condition really was. Therefore, the bold expression is classified as stating surprise.

Next example of stating surprise used by the English teacher is presented in Datum (4:35).
(4:35) T: I do hope that you are all safe and sound. What is ‘safe and sound’?
T: Yups. Good. ‘Safe and sound’ means ‘sehat walaflat’. Have you heard this term before?
S: Yes. In song.
T: Oh song? What kind of song?
S: (mentioning a name of singer)

As shown by the thickened expression in Datum (4:30), the teacher was surprised because a student could know the meaning of a difficult expression through a song. The teacher said ‘Oh song?’ in raising intonation and in wrinkle face. Therefore, the bold expression is classified as stating surprise.

Next, Datum (4:36) presents other example of stating surprise expressed by the teacher in English teaching-learning process.

(4:36) T: Are you ready now, Galih?
S: Not yet. Aku rung apal.
T: Not yet?

In Datum (4:36), the teacher’s employed expression ‘Not yet?’ in raising intonation and wrinkle face. It shows that she felt so surprised why the student was not ready to perform the dialogue although it had been delayed for more than a week. The teacher raising intonation and wrinkle face shows that the bold expression is stating surprise.

4. Directives

Directives are illocutionary acts used by the speaker to get something done. These acts is the highest rank frequency because in classroom discourse, the English teachers use a lot of instructions for the students to do a particular thing, such as asking the students to do the task, to collect the assignment, to open the textbook, or to erase the whiteboard.

Nine types of directives function are found in the data. They are commanding, requesting, suggesting, forbidding, warning, questioning, permitting, and encouraging.

1) Commanding

Commanding is the function used to ask or order someone to do something in direct way. An example of commanding performed by the English teacher is shown in the Datum (4:37).

(4:37) T: Look at the example. ‘I am hoping for good weather tomorrow.’ Hope plus for plus noun phrases. Frase kata benda. Good weather tomorrow. Number two I’m hoping for a good grade in English. Good grade?

Ss: Nilai baik

The bold expression in Datum (4:37) is obviously a commanding function. The expression ‘Look at the example’ is created by means of imperative form: verb 1 + object / adverb. That is the basic formula in performing a commanding function. The reason of the teacher performed this function was to order the students to look at the example shown in the textbook.

The following datum, Datum (4:38), is other example of commanding performed by the English teachers in teaching-learning process.
(4:38) T: Write down any folklore, legend myth or anything about the stories in this space in short but clear but complete idea. Right? Remember. Fiction or non fiction.
Ss: Non
T: You can create. You can imagine. You can create by yourself. (T-4/KW/12.09.14/3/11)

As shown in Datum (4:38), the English teacher ordered the students to write down a short narrative text. Obviously, he used imperative mood ‘Write...’. It is an illocutionary force indicating device to perform illocutionary function of commanding. As shown with the bold font, syntactically the expression is composed of verb 1 + object + adverb.

Other datum containing directive function of commanding employed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is shown in Datum (4:39).

(4:39) T: Just prepare yourself. Prepare a compliment. Note in your mind a compliment to your friend any topic then you throw it to your friend at random – sembarang- and your friend should accept, respond spontaneously. Are you ready with it? Stand up too. Are you ready class?
Ss: Ready. (T-2/CR/ 04.09.14/7/15)

The bold expressions in Datum (4:39) use imperative mood: verb 1 + object/adverb. Those are the formula of commanding. The addition of word ‘just’ is to soften the strength of command. In Datum (4:39) the teacher performed commanding function to instruct the student to make a speaking dialogue of expression of compliment.
2) Requesting

Requesting is an illocutionary function which is used to ask or order someone to do something in indirect or polite way. Request can also be defined as polite or indirect command. An example of directive function of requesting performed by English teachers in classroom communication at SMA N 1 Wates is presented in Datum (4:40).

(4:40) T: Then, now besides expressing compliments, actually we still have the other one. Usually when we are not in a good condition when your friend’s not in good condition and unhappy or sad, so of course you show cares or show.
Ss: Sympathy
T: Sympathy. In what situation you express this?
Ss: (silent)
T: Badmood, sad, gloomy. Right. And then what do usually do when you heard this someone else feels unhappy of get accident have bad scores for a test and then other sitation that tends to be bad. What do you usually say to other people in this kind of condition?
Ss: Sympathy
T: Sympathy. Could you give me examples?
Ss: Take a pity

The requesting expression, as shown by the thickened fonts, in Datum (4:40) uses formula: could + subject + verb + object. It is in interrogative form and implies request from seeing its context since the teacher politely asked the students to mention expression of sympathy. A student responded teacher’s utterances by mentioning an example of expressions of giving sympathy ‘Take a pity.’

Next requesting function performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is exemplified in Datum (4:41).
Datum (4:41) contains an example of requesting function. The bold expression ‘So would you please collect it if you are finishing?’ is requesting because it is in interrogative mood and it has auxiliary verb ‘would’ and exclamation ‘please’. Construction ‘would + subject + verb + please’ in interrogative form is a way to express a requesting function. The teacher’s purpose of those expressions is to politely order the students to collect the recording.

Other example of requesting function performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is shown in Datum (4:42).
In Datum (4:42) as shown by the bold expression, there are three requesting functions in interrogative form. The first and the third one use expression ‘would like’, would + subject + like + to + verb 1. The second uses auxiliary verb ‘can’, can + subject + verb 1. All have specific characteristics of requesting function; therefore, they are categorized as requesting.

3) Suggesting

Suggesting is a directive function performed by the speaker to put forward an idea or plan for the listener to think about. The example of suggesting function is shown in Datum (4:43).

(4:43) T: Ilham, your group, kelompokmu yang group giving suggestion, untuk yang memberikan saran kemarin. Who is the member of the group? Who is the member?
   S: Luqman, Wildan, Rachel, and I.
   T: Four. How about Estu, Galih?
   S: Nanda
   T: Ya ehhh. How if you change the dialogue? Diubah dialognya. Then Ilham’s group consists of four people. Kan lebih dari 4 orang toh kelompokmu? Ya? How if you change the member? Diubah anggotanya. The member of the group will be three. Tiga saja. Eta wis. O.K. Galih’s will be three. Ya ta? Ya? O.K
   S: Yes.
   S: Lha Nanda gimana, Bu?
   T: Oh. It better if Nanda is replaced by another. OK? Are you ready now, Galih?
   S: Not yet.

In Datum (4:43) the English teacher suggested the members to change some parts in their dialogue by saying ‘How if you change the dialogue?’ and ‘How if you change the member?’ ‘How if’ is a common expression of suggesting. This expression gives the listener other idea to think about.
Consequently, that expression is classified as suggesting. Next, she also said ‘It better if Nanda is replaced by another’. This expression contains ‘had better’ (The auxiliary ‘had’ is deleted). ‘Had better’ is an illocutionary force indicating device of suggesting (or advising).

Following is other datum containing directive function of suggesting employed by the teachers in English teaching-learning process.

(4:44) T : O.K. Mbak Mega and Herna, would you like to explain, I mean back to the character of invitation letter? Kembali ke presentasimu yang tentang undangan formal itu tadi. Perhaps, you can explain using your own language what you have shown you cite from the internet. Perhaps, the language is too difficult for us. So, can you make it simple so that your friends can understand more?
S: Mmmmm. I’m trying to explain it with our daily language. I think basically the structure is just the same with the invitation letter in Indonesia.

Bold expression in Datum (4:44) shows that the teacher expressed an utterance using auxiliary verb ‘can’ and adverb ‘perhaps’. Those expressions, ‘perhaps’ and ‘can’ are illocutionary force indicating device of suggesting. As a result, the bold expression in Datum (4:44) is classified as suggesting.

Datum (4:45) presents other example of directive function of suggesting used by English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates.

(4:45) (Students repeated practicing the speaking dialogue)
T: Sit down O.K. This is interesting, you know, because one makes another model theme or topic by promoting a compliment that is not sincere, for example: Oh you’re like ariel Noah. Jawabannya harus?
S: No...
T: ‘Are you kidding?’ But the way they express the compliment should be natural tidak naik. Jangan terlalu serius. I want you to be natural.

(T-2/CR/ 04.09.14/7/17)
Datum (4:45) presents the use of directive function of suggesting. The bold example contains auxiliary verb ‘should’. ‘Should’ is an illocutionary force indicating device of suggesting. Therefore the bold expression in Datum (4:45) is classified as suggesting.

4) Forbidding

This function is the opposite of commanding function. It is used to order the listener not to do something. An example of forbidding function is in Datum (4:46).

(4:46) T: Now, I give you some situations with the expressions and response ya. There’s two students Nina and Dina...eh Nina and Dino. Nina’s father... He has been dismissed from his job. What is ‘dismiss’?
Ss: Dipecat
T: Ya, dipecat. And then your friend’s sad. So you can start with ‘Dino you look so sad what’s wrong with you.’ And then Dino say that ‘Mmm you know that my father... my father has been dismissed from the job’. And then your answer is? First, the first thing that you say is ‘Oh my God.’ ‘Really?’ ‘Is that true?’ ‘Are you sure?’ And then?
Ss: Sympathy
T: ‘You have my sympathay.’ What else?
S: ‘Poor you’
T: Don’t say ‘Poor you’ ‘Poor you’ It is Indonesian style. Kasian deh, Lu
Ss: (laughing)

As presented in Datum (4:46) the teacher reminded a student, ‘Don’t say poor you’. The teacher uttered that expression because a student gave an inappropriate responding expression of giving sympathy. That student said ‘Poor you.’ The teacher said that it was Indonesian style, not English. ‘Don’t’ is an illocutionary force indicating device of forbidding. As a result, the bold expression in Datum (4:46) is classified as forbidding.
Other illocutionary function of forbidding performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is found in Datum (4:47).

(4:48)
T: What else? ‘I hope to get a nice day.’
S: ‘I hope I get nightmare.’
T: Don’t use ‘nightmare’. What is’ nightmare’?
Ss: Mimpi buruk.

The dialogue in Datum (4:48) occurred when the class was still discussing formula of expressions of hope to someone wanting to go to bed. The teacher asked the students to mention the expression of hope other than ‘I hope to get a nice day.’ A student jokingly answered ‘I hope I get a nightmare’. The teacher than corrected the student’s inappropriate expression by uttering ‘Don’t use nightmare.’ This expression is forbidding because it contains illocutionary indicating device ‘don’t’. ‘Don’t’ is an illocutionary force indicating device of forbidding.

Other than those in Datum (4:47) and Datum (4:48), the example of forbidding function is shown in Datum (4:49).

(4:49)
...... (The students and the teacher discussed the answer)
S: (going back to their chair)

Syntactically, the thickened expression in Datum (4:49) uses imperative form with negative auxiliary verb ‘don’t’. This is a characteristic of forbidding function, ‘don’t + verb 1 + object. ‘Don’t’ is an IFID of forbidding function. The purpose of this expression is to order the students not to close the PowerPoint slide because the teacher would discuss the slide.

5) Questioning

This illocutionary function is expressed by the speaker in order to get the reply, answer, or information from the listener. The example of this function is presented in Datum (4:50).

| (4:50)  | S: Excuse me Sir. May I join the class?  |
|        | T: Please yes.                         |
|        | S: Thank you, Sir                      |
|        | T: What are you doing?                 |
|        | S: I had a trouble in traffic, Sir.    |

As shown in Datum (4:50), there was a student asking for permission due to coming late to the class. The teacher allowed him, but he asked the reason of his coming late. The teacher expressed ‘What are you doing?’ in interrogative mood in rising intonation. That student then provided the reason of his lateness.

Next, illocutionary function of questioning used by the teacher in the English teaching-learning process is exemplified in Datum (4:51).

| (4:51)  | T: O.K Mas. Mbak Fauzan. Who made this dialogue? |
|        | S: Nanda.                                    |
|        | T: O.K. Did he ask you to discuss this before you write down? |
|        | S: Yes.                                      |
|        | T: And you just say agree with him?          |
|        | S: Yeah                                     |

There are three expressions containing directive function of questioning as shown by the bold fonts in Datum (4:51). First is subject question which is formed by question word + verb + object. It is a question used to ask for the doer of an action. Here, the teacher asked for the writer of the speaking dialogue which had been performed. Second expression is a yes/no question which is formed by auxiliary verb + subject + verb + object. In this type of question, the speaker asked for yes or no answer. In Datum (4:51), the teacher asked whether the member of the group discussed the speaking dialogue created by one of the members. Third is a question which is formed by means of speaker’s rising intonation. This question is generally performed in spoken language.

Other example of questioning function performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is presented in Datum (4:52).

(4:52) T: Today we have homework ... Opinion number one up to number? How many?
Ss: Five
T: What page? Number one apa? Ardiyanto, what is the answer for number one?
S: ....
T: Number four?
S: ‘Wearing earing for male students.’
T: Apa? ‘Wearing earing for male students.’ Number five? ....
S:‘Wearing short skirts for female students.’

(T-3/ZF/06.09.14/2/5)

As shown by the bold expression in Datum (4:52), there are 6 questions. First question is formed by raising intonation. The teacher used it to ask to what number the homework was. Second question is short question. The original form is actually ‘How many homework do you have?’ but the speaker shortened it because he considered the listeners had understood the meaning. Third is also shortened question. Its complete form is ‘In what page is the homework?’ Four is WH question. The speaker used ‘what + to be + subject’. Meanwhile, question five and six is short form of WH question like question four. All the questions were performed by the teacher because she wanted information from the students.

6) Permitting

Permitting is an illocutionary function expressed by the speaker to allow the listener to do or to say something. One of the examples of permitting functions is presented in Datum (4:53).

(4:53)  (A male student suddenly entered the classroom)
S: May I join the class, Sir?
T: Please do.

(T-3/ZF/06.09.14/2/7)

In Datum (4:53) there was a student who came late. When entering the classroom, he asked for permission from the English teacher. The teacher allowed her to join the class by responding ‘Please do’. Viewed from the relationship with the previous utterance expressed by the student, the teacher’s response belongs to permitting. It is permitting because by means of it he allowed the student to join the lesson.

Similarly, other example of directive function of permitting performed by the English teacher is presented in Datum (4:54).

(4:54)  (A student entered the classroom)
S: Excuse me Sir. May I join the class?
T: Please yes.
S: Thank you, Sir.

(T-5/KW/13.09.14/2/6)
As shown in Datum (4:54), the dialogue happened when there was a student came late. He asked whether he was permitted to join the class or not. The teacher allowed his by saying ‘Please yes.’ Viewed from its context, that bold expression is categorized as permitting.

Beside the previous example, other permitting function is also found in teaching-learning process as shown in the Datum (4:55).

(4:54)  S: Pak boleh cari tempat tenang nggak?
        T: O.K. You may... you can find a quiet place to record your dialogue.
        Outside is OK. Fifteen minutes. Remember right fifteen minutes. If you finish, you can collect, submit to me.

Datum (4:55) above shows an example of permitting function. The expressions in the bold fonts apply exclamatory ‘O.K.’ and declarative mood with auxiliary verbs ‘may’ and ‘can’. From the first expression uttered by the students that he asked for permission to find a noiseless place to record her dialogue, the use of exclamatory ‘O.K.’ and auxiliary ‘may’ and ‘can’ indicate that the teacher allowed her. Accordingly, the bold expressions belong to permitting function.

7) Encouraging

Encouraging is an illocutionary function used by the speaker to give the listener support or courage to do something. An example of illocutionary function of encouraging performed by the English teachers in classroom communication at SMA N 1 Wates is shown in Datum (4:56).
As presented in Datum (4:56), the teacher read the question in the textbook. But, the students remained silent. The teacher repeated the question again and added expressions ‘come on’ to encourage the students to answer. ‘Come on’ is one of expressions belonging to encouraging function and its purpose is to motivate listener to do something.

In addition to the example in Datum (4:56), there is also other example of encouraging, as shown in Datum (4:57).

The bold expression in Datum (4:57) indicates the use of exclamatory ‘come on’. Similar to the previous datum, this bold expression belongs to directive function of encouraging. The teacher enforced the students to quickly present the descriptions of the pictures.
In Datum (4:58), the bold expressions is performed by the English teacher when she offered a chance for the students, especially the male ones, who had not performed the dialogue. But, the students remained silent. Thus, the English teacher enforced them by saying ‘The boys. Are you boys? Are you boys? So please. No one? So, is that means that you are not boys?’ Those bold expressions are encouraging function because its purpose is to motivate the male students to practice the dialogue.

8) Wishing

When wishing, the speaker hopes something good to happen in future. An example of wishing functions performed by the English teacher in English teaching and learning process is presented in Datum (4:59).
The bold expression in Datum (4:59) contains verb ‘hope’ in passive voice which indicates the directive function of wishing. This expression means that the teacher wished the students would be automatic in speaking English. He expected his students to use English automatically without thinking and worrying too much.

Other directive function of wishing performed by the English teacher is shown in Datum (4:60).

(4:60) T: Alright. O.K. I think I gave you some assignments to collect to make a home recording. Have you finished doing?
   Ss: No.
   T: Why not?
   Ss: Nothing. Busy.
   T: Very very busy. So would you please collect it if you are finishing? You can revise you can record if you have. You haven’t?
   Ss: Yes
   S: Skripnya ditulis nggak Pak?
   T: The recording is O.K. But I hope you make a very good dialogue, a very good script, very good pronunciation, intonation…..

In Datum (4:60), as shown by the bold expression, the teacher said ‘I hope you make a very good dialogue …’ the construction of this utterance is S + hope + O. The verb ‘hope’ is an illocutionary force indicating device of wishing. Hence, the bold utterance is categorized as wishing.

Other example of directive function of wishing expressed by English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is also presented in Datum (4:61).

(4:61) T: How’re you today?
   Ss: Excellent
   T: Really?
   Ss: Yes.
   T: I do hope that you are all safe and sound.
In Datum (4:61), as shown in the bold expression, the teacher expressed her wish ‘I do hope that you are all safe and sound.’ She expected that the students would be always in the good health so that they could join in the lesson today. The use of verb ‘hope’ indicates that the expression conveys wishing function.

9) Warning

This function is uttered by the speaker to tell the listener about danger. Datum (4:62) is an example of directive function of warning.

(4:62) T: Do you have any remotes please? No? Get me a stick.
   (A male student turned on the projector by climbing up the table)
   T: O.K. Be careful. Be careful. Awas.

The bold expressions in Datum (4:62) show that the teacher said ‘Be careful,’ when he saw his student turning on the projector by standing up on the table. The expression that he used is in imperative form (be + adjective) and it contains adjective ‘careful’. Adjective ‘careful’ is used to give the listeners a caution of warning. Therefore the bold expression is categorized as warning.

Next warning expression performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates is exemplified in Datum (4:63).

(4:63) T: O.K. From now on if you get compliment among you or di antara satu kelas ini ya, you must be careful. You must apply the English culture if the compliment is in English, but if in Bahasa Indonesia perhaps you think twice whether it’s sincere or not. I think it’s because the oriental culture tends to be wise – you know. We have to differentiate which one we apply. Then this is the last one of English compliment. OK, all together read.
   Ss: (reading aloud the text)
In Datum (4:63), as shown by the bold utterances the teacher warned the students to be careful when they practiced expression of compliment in real situation. The students had to be aware of the cultural differences between English and Indonesian which influenced the way of expressing and responding expression of compliment. The use of phrase ‘must be careful’ indicates the directive function of warning.

Datum (4:54) presents other example of directive function of warning employed by the English teachers in classroom communication.

(4:64) T: O.K. Saya sekadar mengingatkan saja. I know that you don’t want what happened to Davin happens to your friends anymore. I warn you. That’s only about the problem of attitude. Itu hanya masalah sikap. Paham ta maksudnya?
Ss: (silent)

(T-6/RS/05.09.14/1/1)

From bold expressions in Datum (4:64) it shows that the teacher performed an utterance ‘I warn you’. That expression is clearly a warning expression because of the verb ‘warn’ as an illocutionary force indicating device. In the whole expression, the teacher warned the students that they have to be aware with their attitude to the school institution. He said that because in the past one of their friends was left the school and moved to another school due to his bad attitude.

5. Commissives

Commissives are illocutionary acts dealing with speaker’s commitment in doing an action in future time. Commissive acts are in the lowest rank of other illocutionary acts found in the research. From the data there are only two types of commissive function performed by English teachers at SMA N 1 Wates. They are promising and threatening.

1) Promising

Promising is a function used by the speaker to tell the listener that the speaker will definitely do or not to do something. The example of promising function in classroom communication is in Datum (4:60).

(4:60) (School bell rang)
T: O.K class, now for coming week, I’ll give you by the end of the session, setelah jam ke-8 kalian mungkin... you can bring your book. First make expression of compliment and then followed by the expression of sympathy, two dialogs. And underline the utterances. O.K. Class, thank you very much for now. Do your task. Assalamualaikum wr wb.
Ss: Walaikumsalam wr. Wb.

In Datum (4:60) the English teacher reminded the students to collect the works in their notebooks. She used auxiliary verb ‘will’ which indicates future time expression. The bold expression is not only an information but it conveys that the teacher committed the she would return the students’ books. Since the speaker commits to do an action in future, therefore, the bold expression is classified as promising.

Next, the Datum (4:61) presents other example of promising function performed by the English teachers at SMA N 1 Wates.

(4:61) T: In interrogative there is a question mark...... If you haven’t finished I’ll give you another. O.K? Thank you very much for attention and joining. Assalamualaikum wr wb.
Ss: Wa’alaikumsalam wr wb.

(T-2/CR/06.09.14/9/23)
The bold expression in Datum (4:61) conveys a promising function that the teacher would give another example of present continuous tense. That dialogue when he explained interrogative sentence in present continuous tense. But the school bell rang. It made the English teacher finished the class with the unfinished explanation. As a result, he committed that he would provide another explanation in the next meeting if the students needed. The use of future marker ‘will’ also indicates the promising function.

In addition to Datum (4:60) and Datum (4:61), Datum (4:62) also contains commissive function of promising.

(4:62) T: Sympathy. Could you give me examples?
   Ss: Take a pity
   T: Take a pity? O.K. The sympathy is close to our society. So, you must have culture awareness. Both expressions are different. So, later I’ll give you all together sympathy and compliments.
   (T-2/CR/06.09.14/8/19)

As presented in Datum (4:62), the teacher said that she would give the students all together expressions of sympathy and compliments. The bold expression uttered by the teacher is in the form of declarative mood or affirmative sentence. It contains auxiliary verb ‘will’ and adverb ‘later’ which indicates future meaning. Furthermore it can be seen that the speaker committed that she really would do that act. So, from that reason, the bold expression is classified as promising.

2) Threatening

Using this function, the speaker will cause trouble to the listener if the speaker does not get what he or she wants. The example of threatening function which the teachers perform in English teaching-learning process is presented in Datum (4:63).

(4:63) T: O.K. I remind you, two people, two students. Handayani, you must do all the work like the other friends. Mereka belum pernah masuk pelajaran saya. Anda ingin tertinggal apa tidak? Kalau tidak mau tertinggal berarti you must do like other friends ya. Kalau tidak sama berarti Anda tertinggal sebab Anda belum pernah masuk Bahasa Inggris. Bukan berarti Anda kegiatan terus Anda tidak perlu Bahasa Inggris. Bukan. Tugas Anda di sini kan belajar. This includes those who didn’t attend the previous meeting, Tristi. Later, I want to check your work: task 1, task 2, and other. ... Kalau ingin pinter ya harus berlatih. Kalau malas ya...
Ss: (silent)

As shown in those bold expressions in Datum (4:63), the teacher reminded two students who had never attended English lesson because of joining extracurricular activities. The English teacher said that those two students must not left behind from their other friends because the primary activity in school was studying. He threatened those two students that if they did not do their tasks, he would be responsible. Also, to make sure they would do all their tasks, he promised to check the works of those two students. The commissive function of threatening applied in Datum (4:63) is in the form of declarative mood with rising intonation.

Based on the findings of the research, the directives serve the most dominant illocutionary acts performed by English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates. Directives acts are the types of illocutionary acts concerned with getting things done. The English teachers perform these acts since in classroom conversation teachers play significant or dominant role. They give various instructions to the students to do a particular thing during the teaching-learning process. For example, the teachers ask the students to do the task, to collect the assignment, to open the textbook, or to erase the whiteboard. Those instructions are mostly in directive acts such as commanding, requesting, suggesting, or questioning.

Next, questioning, a function of directive acts, is the most frequent (34.018%) illocutionary function performed by the English teachers of SMA N 1 Wates. Questioning is an illocutionary function of directive acts used by the speaker to get an information from the listeners. In classroom communication, most of the questions are pseudo-questions since the teachers have already known the answer. Teachers apply questioning to enhance and involve the students into the teaching-learning process. Furthermore, the underlying purpose of use of questioning is to activate the students’ background knowledge and to raise the students’ critical thinking of a particular phenomenon in a teaching-learning subject.

Threatening, a function belonging to commissive acts, is the fewest function performed by the English teachers at SMA N 1 Wates. This illocutionary function is used to tell the listener that the speaker will cause a trouble if he does not get what he wants. This function is usually performed in emotional way. In classroom communication, it is used when the students are not cooperative with the teacher, so the teacher threatens the students with particular expressions. Since the students of SMA N 1 Wates are cooperative enough during the lesson, the English teachers rarely perform this function.
CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS, IMPLICATIONS, AND SUGGESTIONS

In this chapter, the researcher divides the content into three points. They are conclusions, implications, and suggestions. The explanation of each point is presented below.

A. Conclusions

This research is concerned with the pragmatic analysis of illocutionary acts used by the English teachers in the teaching-learning process at SMAN 1 Wates. In line with the objectives of the research, to identify illocutionary acts and illocutionary functions used by the English teachers in classroom conversation at SMAN 1 Wates, the research results can be concluded as follow.

1. There are four types of illocutionary acts used by the English teachers at SMAN 1 Wates. They are representatives, expressives, directives, and commissives. The declaratives are not found. The directives are the most frequent illocutionary acts, while the commissives are the fewest.

2. There are 23 types of illocutionary functions performed by the English teachers at SMAN 1 Wates. They are stating an opinion, stating a fact, informing, explaining, agreeing, greeting, thanking, complimenting, joking, apologizing, stating surprise, commanding, requesting, suggesting, forbidding, warning, questioning, permitting, encouraging, wishing, promising, and threatening. The questioning is the most frequent function, while threatening is the fewest frequent function.
B. Implications

If we draw a relationship of the results of the research with the position, function, and role of the teacher in teaching and learning process, we can say that the teachers’ role in English teaching-learning process of SMA N 1 Wates is as an agent of change. Despite their dominations in the conversation, they try to raise students’ critical thinking by expressing illocutionary function of questioning. As the agent of change, the English teachers expect the students to change from being passive learners into the active ones as well as to change their thoughts and attitudes to be more critical. Therefore, the teachers still should decrease his dominations in teaching-learning process.

C. Suggestions

Based on the conclusion and implications that have been explained above, some suggestions will be directed toward the English teachers and the other researchers.

1. To the English teachers

The English teachers should take into account on illocutionary acts in English teaching. The illocutionary acts are so important in the classroom that the instructions uttered by the teacher are understood by the students. The appropriate implementation of illocutionary acts in teaching-learning process will indirectly help the students to master the communicative competences. Moreover, the use of particular illocutionary functions, e.g.: questioning, can be so essential for helping the students to activate their background knowledge and critical awareness.
2. To the other researchers

a. The subjects of the research are the utterances expressed by the English teachers in the classroom. The students’ utterances, as a part of classroom communication, have not been investigated. The next researchers, therefore, may enlarge the subjects of their research into the teachers and students’ utterances.

b. The focuses of the research are only on illocutionary acts. Other aspects of speech acts such as locutionary and perlocutionary acts may be investigated by the next researchers. Furthermore, they can investigate other major topics of the study of pragmatics, e.g. deixis, presupposition, reference, conversational implicature, cooperation, or politeness in the classroom communication in English language teaching.

T : Good morning, students.
Ss : Good morning, Ma’am.
T : How are you today?
Ss : I’m fine.
Not so bad, Ma’m.
I’m so speechless today.
T : Let’s check our presence today. Who’s absent today? Rachel?
Ss : Ijin ke TVRI. Ikut lomba.
(She’s absent, going to TVRI station to join a competition)
T : Oh yang ikut lomba itu ya.
(Oh I see, she’s the one who join that competition.) Arif?
S : Arif. Mengantar ibunya
(He’s accompanying his mother)
T : O.K. Mengantar ibunya ya.
Anisa?
Beta?
Dini?
Dwi Indani?
Endang?
....
Ima Latifah?
Luqman?
Ilham?
T : Ilham, your group kelompokmu yang group suggestion, giving suggestion, untuk yg memberikan saran kemarin. Who is the member of the group? Who is the member?
(Ilham, your group is that of giving suggestion, for the previous materials).
S : Luqman, Wildan, Rachel, and I.
T : Four. Sudah How about Estu, Galih?
S : Nanda
T : Ya ehh. How if you change the dialogue? Diubah dialognya. Then Ilham’s group consists of four people. Kan lebih dari 4 orang toh kelompokmu? Ya? How if you change the member? The member of the group will be three. Tiga saja. Eta wis. O.K. Galih’s will be three. Ya ta? Ya O.K
(Just change the dialogue. His group consists of more than four people, right? Only three people. Eta please. Alright?)
S: Berarti buat lagi, Bu?
(Do we need to rewrite it again, Ma’am?)
T: Kan kelompokmu sudah tiga
(No, your group has consisted of three people)
S: Lha Nanda, Ma’am? (How about Nanda, Ma’am?)
T: Oh, Berarti yang punyake Nanda diganti saja.
(Oh I see. It means you should change Nanda’s dialogue.)
T: It better if Nanda is replaced by another. OK? Are you ready now, Galih?
S: Not yet. Aku rung apal ki.
(I haven’t learned it by heart)
T: Not yet?
(Better now than next week)
T: Let me see the dialogue. Saya lihat dialognya. It’s neccessary for you to show it.

(Some students prepared the LCD to present the speaking dialog)
(Do you want to use the script? You replace him)
S: Yes Ma’am.
T: Come on. Greet your friends first. Biasa dibuka dulu.
(Greet your friend first, as usual)
S: O.K. Assalamualaikum wr wb.
(Peace be upon you)

Ss & T: Walaikumsalam wr wb.
(Peace be upon you)
S: Good morning friends.
Ss & T: Morning.
S: I will show you my, eh our dialogue, about what staying in boarding house is good or not.
T: O.K.

(A group of students practiced a dialogue)
T: O.K Mas. Mbak Fauzan. Who made this dialog?
S: Nanda.
T: O.K. Did he ask you to discuss this before you write down?
S: Yes.
T: And you just say agree with his dialog?
S: Yeah
T: Can you go up? The third line. Baris yang ketiga. (The third line) ‘We just only playing play station about this afternoon.’ What do you mean by this sentence?
S: ‘Kita sedang bermain game pada siang ini. ’ (We’re playing a game, this afternoon)
T: ‘About this afternoon.’ What is about this afternoon? Kenapa harus ada kata ‘about’ kemudian ‘this afternoon’?
(Why do you use ‘about’ followed by ‘this afternoon’?)

Ss : (laughing)

T : O.K. ya. Jadi Wiji itu ‘we are only playing play station.’ About is omitted and the just too.
(Oh I see. So what Wiji means is we are only playing play station.’)

T : ‘Oh my God.’ God-nya itu gedhe apa cilik?
(The ‘g’ in word ‘God’ is in capital letter or not?)

Ss : Besar (Capital letter, Ma’am)

T : Kemudian ‘so is that activity mainly to do in this enjoyable boarding house?’ What does it mean? Arti kalimat ini apa? ‘Jadi iki ta gaweannya, gitu?’ Ya?
(What does the sentence mean?)

Ss : Iya
(Yes)

T : Oh. ‘So, is that the... THE.. activity that you do in this enjoyable boarding house.’ Berarti yg enjoyable itu kos-kosannya ya? OK. Terus njawab: ‘unbelieveable.’ ‘Buang-buang waktu,’ gitu ta?
(Oh, so you means the enjoyable thing is the boarding house, right?.. Then B answer ‘unbelieveable’. It wastes the time, right?)

T : It wastes, wastingsnya ilang. Wastes. So-nya ilang. It wastes, tambahi es’ time. You just spending. Ing-nya ilang. ‘Over like that.’ What does it mean?
(Omit the word ‘wasting’... Omit the ‘ing’. It wastes, delete ‘wasting’. With no ‘ing’...)

Sa : Lebih seperti itu.
(More than that)

Ss : Kelebihannya.
(More than that)

Ss : Ya seperti itu
(Like that)

T : As you see. ‘What we must do? So ‘What should we do?’ Yang we have known this. Go on. ‘You wastes much money joining the course’ hilangkan kata-kata classnnya. (Omit that word). That’s most useful...Indepency using I not Y. Ya wis ‘That’s a good advice’ Bawahnya Galih itu dialognya. but Im. Im, itu ada apostrofnya. ... alone and all alone. O.K. Thank you.

S : Thank you for your attentions. Assalamualaikum wr wb.
(Peace be upon you)

Ss & T : Walaikumsalam wr wb
(Peace be upon you)

T : Next unit we will discuss your exercise about noun phrases. Please read for you that have book. There are six types. Read, Galih. Number one. Yang nomer 1.
(Number 1, please.)

S : ‘I saw a bird fly high.’

T : ‘I saw a bird fly high.’ Berarti as an object.
(It is as an object)
T : As a subject?
S : ‘A bird can fly.’
T : ‘A bird can fly.’ Ya. O.K.
S : ‘I saw a donkey running.’
T : ‘I saw a donkey running.’ As an object?
S : They can fly.
T : Itu sebagai artikel. Now as a possessive noun.
(That is as an article).
S : The principle takes her sister’s
T : O.K. Her sister’s. Berarti as an object. As a subject?
(It’s as an object)
S : I take teacher’s book.
(It’s as an object, again. Come on. It’s as an object)
T : Sekarang sebagai subject. Belum? O.K. as... masih nganu, possessive noun.
. (Now, still on possessive noun. Now, as a subject, please Not yet?)
S : ‘The neighbor’s cat is Molly’s friend.’
T : ‘The neighbor’s cat’, berarti kucingnya tetangga?
(It means neighbor’s cat, isn’t?)
T : ‘Is Molly’s friend.’ That is a subject. As an object?
S : The neighbor’s cat...
(Ha? Why do you say as neighbor’s cat again?What have you mentioned first is noun as a subject. How about as an object? What do yo mean? Not yet? O.K. It’s still possessive noun)
S : ‘Nana borrows Nani’s book.’
T : O.K. Next.
S : ‘Her sister has already passed away.’
T : O.K. Her sister has already passed away. As an object?.... Itu masih subject. Yang object? Object itu posisinya kan di belakang. Yang punyamu itu semuanya di depan ta? Her her her, ya ta? (It is still as a subject. How about as an object. Yours are all in the front position, right? Her, her, her, right?)
(My sister is as a subject. How about as an object? Later, you omit word ‘mine’. Is it Galih’s or Irma’s wrong? Kiki? The possesive please. Try it. Mention your sentence. Noun as a subject.)
S: I take teacher’s book
T: O.K. Ini menurutmu sebagai subject. Sebagai object?
(S: In your opinion, it’s a subject. How about as an object?)
S: Object. The principle takes her sister’s book.
(Hold on. Subject is in initial position. Then it is followed by verb. Meanwhile, if it is as an object, the subject is here, then followed by verb, then the object is in initial position. We discussed possesive pronoun last meeting. Examples of noun are father, mother, etc. Added with apostroph, it has possesive case, e.g. mother’s book, father’s car. You do it like that, do you?)
S: Ya
(Yes)
T: Kalau seperti ini teacher’s book, ini bener possesive noun tapi ini posisinya as an?
(If in teacher’s book, it is a possesive noun, but it is as an object or as a subject?)
Ss: Object
(It’s an object, since it is behind the verb. If we change ‘teacher’s book’ into object, we put a verb behind, right? We need possesive noun. Can you differentiace them? It’s possesive noun.)
Ss: Pronoun
(Pronoun is to replace noun. This is noun. So, what is pronoun for this? ‘He’ right? ‘He’ is pronoun. The possesive form for ‘he’ is ‘his’.)
Ss: Yes
T: Kalau ‘her’?
(How about ‘her’?)
Ss: He
(How about mother and father?)
Ss: They
T: They. Possessive-nya?
T: Their. Paham ya? Pamane, mother, father, and I possessive, eh kok possessive. Pronoun-nya?
(Do you understand? Suppose we take ‘mother, father, and I’ what is its possessive form. Oh sorry, I mean what is its pronoun?)

Ss: They.... We....

T: We, karena kita ikut di dalamnya. Kepunyaanya?
(We, because ‘we’ are included in. How about its possessive form?)

Ss: Our

T: Our. Kalau cat?
(How about cat?)

Ss: It

(‘Its’ is without ‘s’. ‘Saya’ is ‘I’. Is that clear? O.K. Now go on to the sentence containing relative pronoun. Let’s repeat. Come on.)

Ss: (silent)

(That’s as a subject. How about as an object? Is ‘her’ noun or pronoun? Her must be noun)

.... (Teacher and students used Indonesian and Javanese).............

T: You may continue it at home, ya. Don’t forget Friday you will have a test, 4 materials. And next Tuesday, Selasa depan, you perform your text report. O.K. Thank you and good bye.

Ss: Good bye.
TRANSCRIPT 2

Subject : B.Inggris Wajib
Class : X MIA 4
Topic : Expression of Giving Compliment and Sympathizing
Teacher : Camayanti Room, S.Pd
Date : 4 September 2014
Time : 08.45-10.20

T : Good morning, class.
Ss : Morning.
T : How’re you today?
Ss : Excellent.
T : Really?
Ss : Yes.
T : I do hope that you are all safe and found. What is ‘safe and sound’?
S : Sehat wal afiat.
(Very healthy)
T : Yups. Good. ‘Safe and sound’ means sehat walafiat. Have you heard this term before?
S : Yes. In song.
T : Oh song. What kind of song?
S : (mentioning a name of singer)
T : O.K. Class we have finished our first topic or basic competence that is about politeness. Right? Now our agenda is that we will learn about utterances or expressing gambit. Perhaps you find it in your daily life even when you converse with your friend. Let me take example I see you wear your new glasses. Then I say something. Ayu. Oh what a new glasses?
S : Thank you
T : Aah. The response is thank you. What is the meaning of the utterances?
Ss : Compliment
T : Pujian or? Memuji. Actually between the verb and the noun. The English of the two words are same. The part of speech of compliment are verb and noun. Compliment itself as a noun is pujian. So the same..... It is spontaneously. Suppose I see a new veil. What is veil?
S : Jilbab
T : Yes, kerudung, or jilbab..... You can say: You look so different today. You look so beautiful with your new veil. The answer - It can be like this. Really? Oh yes. Thank you. I’m glad you like it. But the other answer oh no. Its the old one. It’s very, you know, very cheap. It can happen to Indonesian people, right? Oh How beautiful sandals? Oh no I have bought it since last year. Right? So, which one you heard? The first or the second on? Or both?
Ss : Both.
T : Why both? Kenapa kok dua-duanya?
(Why both?)

Ss: Different

T: Because people are different. Any other opinion or ideas?

This phenomena is reality in our culture in indonesian or even in javanese people who likes to be basa-basi. It is our reality......Which one is true in the reality? It must be suit to the the situations. The fact si that there are two phenomenon......... The first response tends to accept. The second it has to be. The question is why? Any reason? There must be a reason.

Ss: Merendah
(To be humble)

T: Good. We tend to be humble. This is for Indonesian or Javanese people right? Second reason?

Ss: Polite
T: O.K. Politesness. It will be more polite. Lebih sopan. O.K. The third reason? Any other ideas or opinions?

Ss: (silent)
T: Those who response: Oh thank you. I’m glad you like it. What do you think of this? Why do people use this utterance?

Ss: ....
T: Pardon?
Ss: Gratitude
T: Berterima kasih. That’s good. You have paid attentions to me that the response is thank you. The second reason? It is polite too. It sounds like - you know - proud. It’s kind of proud. So, what is proud?

Ss: Bangga.
T: So which one you choose? The first or the second?
Ss: The first. The second.
T: Yes. It’s Javanese style. But we now start learning English right. We have to try to the international paradigm... because English is to be accepted by everyone all around the world. Suppose you go to Italy, Japan or even to Egypt.................So, what do you choose? The first or the second?

Ss: (silent)
T: It depends where you are whether you in Javanese or English. In English you can express the compliment just the way it is - apa adanya. But sometimes for Javanese it quite ignores the norm for Javanese people to proud themselves. O.K? And then when we learn English we focus on the standardized English. Take on one paradigm, one rule, OK that we have to change this kind of phenomenon.... If the other say: Oh you look so proud of yourself, we have to explain why we always obey the English rule. But if you speak in Bahasa, I mean Bahasa Indonesia or in Javanese: ‘Oh boten kok. Punika sampun dangu’ Suppose you come to my house. ‘Hey you have nice garden? Oh yes thank you. I like gardening so much.’

Oh nggak kok Mbak ini cuman untuk hijau-hijau.
(Oh no. It’s only to fill up my empty garden)
Ss : (laughing)
T : O.K. And now because there are mmm two cultures that is English and Indonesian so we have to be aware. We not only learn about language but also culture. Right?
O.K. Well there are two examples of compliments that we have here and the response can be thank you. So, what is compliment?
Ss : comply...
T : It’s actually a function, O.K, to express our feeling. What kind of feeling?
Ss : Something good
T : O.K. Something good. What is the function? The purpose? When you give compliment to someone you have purpose, right? What is the purpose? Show me.
Yes. It is to appreciate other work, achievement. What else?
Suppose Mas Askhar. Which one Mas Askar?
Ss : Laska, Ma’am.
T : Oh I’m sorry, Laska. Alaska? Haha. For example Mas Laska got 10 in English and I give compliment: what a high scores. What is the function? To? What is the purpose?
Ss : Motivasi
(Motivation)
T : Yes to motivate, to give motivation, to encourage the students to be better or to? To maintain the score, right? So to encourage, to appreciate. Do I give something positive?
Ss : Yes
T : Right. So by giving compliment the children the child the students will understand which one is better which one is not good. ... If you have some achievements then no one does not give you compliment you will feel sad? That is why I always appreciate you: I like the activeness. I like teaching in this class because you are active. Got it?
Ss : Yes
T : So a compliment is to?
Ss : To appreciate.
T : To praise, to appreciate, to motivate to encourage somebody else, to encourage, right, what people did or do. So far it’s so good. Later you have to converse with your friends. You give compliment and you should response. But the point is that the compliment should meet the fact.
Ss : (laughing)
T : Suppose oh you are like Sophia Latjuba. The people will be uninterested. So in English language it is based on the fact. You have to know the situation, the proper, based on the fact. Before you make the dialog, i will explain the cultural awareness, because we will be in the MEA. You can be a soldier, you can be a lecturer, you can be a teacher, you can be public worker. O.K class. One for two. Satu buat dua (giving a printout) Enough?
Ss : ....
T : O.K Class please, Are you still with me? Now focus. On page 121...
(Reading the printout)
Any question? O.K. Next. (reading the print out) O.K. On page 121.

(Reading the printout)

Now you understand. It’s a little bit strange or wagu right?

Ss : (laughing)
T : So. Now you all understand. And nevertheless What is nevertheless.
Ss : Meskipun demikian.
(However)
T : Yes. you know it’s not appropriate, tidak cocok. Then, it will be wagu right?
Ss : (laughing)
T : (reading the printout) What is accept?
Ss : Menerima
T : Menerima or mengakui
(reading the printout) based on the fact?
Ss : ...
T : Based on the fact?..... Tulus. Tidak mengada-ada. (reading the printout).
So it agrees or accept what other people do. (reading the printout).
So agree what the other people say. What is quiet?
Ss : Diam
(To be silent)
T : We tend to disagree but actually agree.
Ss : (laughing)
T : It’s not fair. Do you think that it is good?
Ss : No
T : No. So why do you still keep silent when your friend’s wearing something new, something gorgeous. And you know that in Moslem, in Islam, giving compliment is ibadah, right?
Ss : Yes.
T : Smile. Smiling to everyone.
Ss : (laughing)
T : Since it is sincere Based on the fact. If your smile is to everyone anytime, perhaps it will be crazy
Ss : (laughing)
T : Now, you understand which is better?
Ss : English
T : Yes English culture because we learn English, so not only language but the culture. Right? So, the importance of culture awareness is that we can learn about the other culture and also we can be – fix with other. And now we go to something – you know in page 132. O.K. You can differentiate two utterances from native speakers and nonnative. Conversation one, it is by Indonesian speakers. Ya. Anybody wants to read this for me?

S : Me.
T : O.K. Thank you Mbak. Please.
S : (reading the print out)
T : Do you know the word mess
Ss : Berantakan
T : Good. Berantakan. What a beautiful garden it is. Ih bagus banget tamannya. Oh berantakan kok. It’s so contradictory with the question.
When your garden is so messy you will not say oh your garden is so messy. So you pretend this. This is not English culture.

S : (Reading aloud the print out)
T : You are a great cook. What is cook?
Ss : Juru masak
T : Chef atau juru masak. It can be verb ‘memasak’ but it can be noun ‘juru masak’. Arjuna... O.K?
No, it’s tasteless. Ini nggak ada rasanya kok, padahal delicious. Saya baru belajar masak.
(It’s tasteless. I just learned how to cook)
Ss : (laughing)
T : So now you understand which one you have to choose. And anybody wants to be the volunteer? Rahma please. Conversation 1
Ss : (reading aloud)
T : You are good if you read the dialogue... with your soul, So it’s not reading a text, so read it like a real dialog...... You have the soul on it. O.K. Don’t be too fast. You know, with your soul..... Please
So in this dialog the answer is ‘Thank you. I like gardening.’ ‘Makasih. Aku suka berkebun kok.’
(Thank you. I like gardening)
Ss : (laughing)
T : Which one do you like? The native or the Indonesian?
Ss : Native
T : But you are Indonesian.
Ss : (laughing)
S : (reading aloud)
T : (repeating)
And now what is your conclusion? Which one you will choose? Both? It can be. It depends on the situation.
Ss : Yes
T : When I got a compliment in Bahasa or in Iavanese language, of course, mmm if I have to say in English culture – you know – it’s not appropriate right? Bu niku kok sae sanget nggih sepatunipun? ...Injih menika (laughing)
(What a nice shoes. Of course)
Ss : (laughing)
T : So that we can learn the other countries nations’ culture. We have still Japanese and then some other countries. Now class if the compliment is not sincere. Kalau tidak tulus to native gimana?
(What is the response if it is not sincere?)
T : If the compliment is not sincere they will refuses it as well. For example Don try to flatter. Gombal ah. Gombal. But in English it’s not gombal you know - It’s cloth
Ss : (laughing)
T: ‘Gombal’ kan cloth. It’s like you’re just kidding me. Ah cuman ngejek aja.
(You’re just kidding me)
Itu gadgetnya 6 juta. Ah You’re kidding me. Kamu tuh cuma ngomong aja. It’s not sincere. Naturally it’s just pulling around. Nggak ada gunanya. Pulling around means menggoda. It’s not sincere. So, we need to be able to judge whether it is sincere or not. You got it? Any question about the compliment? Anybody wants to ask something?
No? O.K. From now on if you get compliment among you or di antara satu kelas ini ya, you must apply the English culture if the compliment is in English, right? But if in Bahasa perhaps you think twice whether it’s sincere or not. I think it’s because that the oriental culture tends to be wise – you know. We have to differentiate which one we apply. Then, the last one English compliment. Ok all together, read.

.... (Students and teacher read aloud the text)....

T: You will have a roleplay with you friends each other conducting dialogue expressing compliment in English culture. It can be with your neighbor. And then the topic is free up to you. Anybody can be the volunteer. You’re still in your seat and choose the volunteer. Any questions? No? Right. Please do now.

T: Finish. Finish. Well now. I want you to be the volunteer to come to the class. O.K. Khoirul please.

.... (Two students practiced a dialogue)....

T: That’s all? That’s all? What do you think, class, with this model? Are they so natural in expressing compliment? I want you to be serious but it’s like a joke. O.K. Say it clear. Clear word clear sentence but expressively

.... (Two students repeated the dialogue)....

Ss: (laughing)

T: I think it’s good enough but perhaps you have to converse naturally, you little bit surprised with... You keep smiling. You keep laughing. O.K. Right? As natural as possible. Focus.

.... (Two students practiced a dialogue)....

.... (Two students practiced a dialogue)....

Ss: (laughing)

T: What do you think about the second volunteer?

Ss: Nervous creepy.

T: You can repeat... Speak louder then you know that mmm a little bit surprised and naturally OK. Even not in a distance but you can close to our friend. Please.

.... (Two students practiced a dialogue)....

T: Right. This is thank you. Well, mmm the two groups or the two pairs mmm they have – you know – they are resemble practicing about the topic about the someting new right and then watch and then what else?

S: Glass
T: Glasses and what else? Thank you for Khoirul and Rahma. Big applause for them.

.... (Teacher and students clapped their hands)

T: Anybody wants to be the next volunteer? The third one. The volunteer. It’s O.K. The boys. Are you boys? Are you boys? So please. No one? So that means that you are not boys.

Ss: (silent)

T: Now class, the second activity is that you stand and you give compliment to anyone you choose. And the one you point out you try to answer. Suppose you stand up, Fani, and then you say something and then you answer spontaneously. Everybody, you are ready for that?

Ss: Yes

T: Just prepare yourself. Prepare a compliment. Everybody hear? Note in your mind a compliment to your friend any topic then you throw it to your friend at random – sembarang – and your friend should accept, respond spontaneously. Are you ready with it? Stand up too. Are you ready class?

Ss: Ready

T: Now starting from number 4. It’s now 4 September. Who is number 4? Yak Mbak Ani. You can stand up and mention your friend. Yak, stand up..... Just go to Fani. Hey Fani something like that.

.... (Two students practiced a dialogue)

T: Repeat, Mbak Ani please.

.... (A student repeated the dialogue)

T: O.K. ‘Ada yang beda deh.’ I think you want to say like that. But it should be more specific, Mbak Ani. Just go on. The things, Pakai benda apa itu. O.K? So just say about something and the compliment then the response. And then, after Ani and Fani who else? Anybody?... O.K. Fani point a student. Stand up. This is like a chain. Stand up.

S: Who?

T: Up to you

.... (Two students then practiced a dialogue)

T: Just mention one thing that you think is O.K. What a lovely bag you have

.... (Two students continued the dialogue)

T: At random. Please anybody. Just stand up.

.... (Two students practice a dialogue)

T: Kalau nggak seperti Ariel, what is your response? It is sincere or not? Kalau tidak serius jawabannya apa. Repeat. (If your face is unlike Ariel’s, what is your response....If the compliment is not sincere, what is the response?)

.... (Two students repeated the dialogue)

T: Looks like means seperti. It is sincere?

Ss: No

T: Kalau tidak serius responsnya apa? I don’t like. So Mike should say: Mike suka ngengombal. Just repeat. (What is the response if it’s not sincere? I don like. So Mike should say” Mike likes flattering)

.... (Two students repeated the dialogue)
T: Sit down. O.K. This is interesting you know because one makes another model theme or topic by promoting a compliment that is not sincere, for example: Oh you’re like Ariel Noah. Jawabannya should be?
(The answer should be?)

Ss: No...

T: ‘Are you kidding?’ But the way they express the compliment should be natural, tidak naik. Jangan terlalu serius.
(It’s not rising. Don’t be too serious).

T: I want you to be natural. It’s O.K. Class, the other student? Speak to your friend.

.... (Two students practiced a dialogue)

S: Hey Mike you look so handsome today.

T: Hey you must be careful if your friend says you’re handsome (laughing).

Ss: (laughing)

T: It’s natural. Dinormalkan ya Mas Mike. ‘Bagus banget arloji kamu.’
(Make it normal. ‘What a nice watch.’)

.... (Two students repeated the dialogue)

T: O.K. Sudah? (Enough?) Good. Be expressive, class. I want you to be expressive, not so formal. You do it just the way you get in touch with your friends as usual just in a break time. So just not the kind of formal way. And then you once more please.

.... (Two students practiced a dialogue)

T: Thank you. Big appaluse.

.... (Teacher and students clapped their hands)

T: So from those volunteers you have the way to express in English culture and from now on you can express based on the situation. Then, now beside expressing compliments, actually we still have the other one. Usually when we are not in a good condition when your friend’s not in good condition and unhappy or sad, so of course you show cares or show?

Ss: Symphaty

T: Symphathy. In what situation you express this?

Ss: .....

T: Badmood, sad, gloomy. Right. And then what do usually do when you heard this someone else feels unhappy of get accident have bad scores for a test and then other sitation that tends to be bad. What do you usually say to other people in this kind of condition?

Ss: Symphathy

T: Symphathy. Can you give me examples?

S: Take a pity

T: Take a pity? O.K. The symphathy is close to our. So you must culture awareness.

So I give you all together sympathy and compliments. Both expressions are different. Now we go to expressing sympathy. The situation is like this. When you took a walk in Malioboro street then your friend told you that “Oh what is this. My wallet’s lost.” And then you say “Are you sure?” Yes lost. And then what will you say then?

S: I’m sorry to hear that

T: I am sorry to hear that. What else? Beside that Ss : Borrow my money

T : You can borrow my money. It’s the solution but the expression coming out from your that I want to hear first from you actually. OK?
  I’m sorry to hear that. Kok bisa? What is ‘ kok bisa?’

  (Really? Are you sure it’s lost?)

T : ‘Oh my God.’ It can be. And then followed by? And then we come to the recomendation, solution.
  ‘Yuk kita lapor polisi. Bisa saja.*
  (’Why dont we go to the police station to report this accident?’ It can be)

T : So in expressing symphathy the most important thing is that the first response comes from your mouth considering condition or situation and then followed by blablabla O.K supporting your expressing of symphaty. And then class, now mmm there are some situation that is – stomachache when someone has stomachache what will you say then? And then the next when you have several new pimples. What is pimple?

Ss : Kedinginan.... Jerawat
  (Feeling cold... Acne)

T : Jerawat. I don’t care because I have, too (laughing). Yes, you got several new pimples. Ada jerawat- jerawat yang baru.
  (There are some new acnes)
  So? I’m sorry to hear that?

Ss : (laughing)

T : No. And then? Some other situations that we feel so... O.K. Class beside I’m sorry to hear that we could express with you have my symphathy O.K.? Right.
  Now I give you some situations with the expressions and response ya. There’s two students Nina and Dina...eh Nina and Dino. Nina’s father... He has been dismissed from his job. What is ‘dismissed’?

Ss : Dipecat
  (Fired)

  (Yes, fired)

T : And then your friend’s sad. So you can start with ‘Dino you look so sad what’s wrong with you.’ And then Dino say that ‘Mmm you know that my father... my father has been dismissed from the job’. And then your answer is? First, the first thing that you say is ‘Oh my God.’ Really? Is that true? Are you sure?’ And then?

Ss : Symphaty

T : ‘You have my symphathy.’ What else?

Ss : Poor.

T : Don’t say ‘Poor you’ ‘Poor you’ It is Indonesian style. OK? Kasian deh, lu

S : (laughing)

T : So in making the expression of symphathy usually it is started with ‘Oh my God. Are you sure? Are ou serious? How can?’ And then followed by the expression of sympathy ‘You have my sympathy.’ And then the answer is ‘Thank you.’ And then followed by the next utterances. I think you say ‘It is the God’s destiny. You still have some spirits to motivate your father to make another job.’ So, followed by some suggestions or recomendations. This is the procedure of how to express sympathy. Then I think in expressing sympathy it is like in Indonesian expression. ‘Kamu sedih kenapa?’ ‘Anu e nilaiku tu matematika mosok dapat 4. Lho kok bisa sih?’

(Why do you look so sad? I got four in math exam. How come?)

(School bells rang)

T : O.K class, now for coming week, I’ll give you by the end of the session, setelah jam ke-8 kalian mungkin... You can bring your book. (...after 8th session perhaps)
First make expression of compliment and then followed by the expression of sympathy, Two dialogs. And underline the utterances O.K. Class thank you very much for now. Do your task. See you next week.
Assalamualikum wr wb.
(Peace be upon you)

Ss : Walaikumsalam wr. Wb.
(Peace be upon you, too)
TRANSCRIPT 3

Subject: Bahasa Inggris Wajib
Class: XI MIA 2
Teacher: Drs. ZA Fauzan, M.Pd
Topic: Expression of Hope and Wish
Date: 6 September 2014
Time: 08.45-10.30

T: Morning
Ss: Morning, Sir

(A student suddenly entered the classroom)

T: May... May....
S: Mmmm...
T: May I... Apa? (What?)
S: Join the class.
T: May I join the class please.
S: May I join the class please.
T: Please do.

(I don’t punish you. It is to make you smarter. If it’s automatic, it won’t burden you. It’s been on your lips and you don’t need to think.). It is hoped that English is on your lips, not on your dream. Automatical. That’s good. That’s better.

Before I continue, do you have the print out? Any money? Money, please. Seribu cukup ya?

(Is one thousand rupiahs enough for it?)

Ss: Yes

(They haven’t ever joined my class. If you don’t want to be left behind, you must do like other friends. If not same, it means you’ve been left behind, because you’ve never joined English class. That you have a lot of extracurricular activities does not mean you don’t need English. No. Your job here is to study.)

Ss : (silent)

T : Today we have a homework ... Opinion number one up to number?
    How many?

T : What page?
    Number one. Apa? Ardiyanto, number one?

Ss : ....

T : Number two?

Ss : ....

T : Number three?

Ss : ....

T : Number four?

Ss : Wearing earring for male students.

T : Apa? O.K. Wearing earring for male students. Number five? .... Wearing short skirts for female students. O.K You give opinion. What you must do here – There are three acts next you ask opinion then second?

Ss : Disagree.

T : O.K. Disagree. Disagree on the first idea.... First you ask opinion. Second you give opinion. Everyone?
    This part is not agree and disagree. This is your opinion. Once again. So agree and disagree you use in my opinion, in my mind, to my mind. Ya ta?

Ss : According

T : According to me. This is the second, not agree or disagree, ya.

.... (Students did the task)

(Some students knocked the door)

S : May I join the class?

T : O.K.

(Some students give out the printed material)

T : Coba ya. This is asking opinion. Yang ini in my opinion. Itu penggabungan antara good dan not good terus diberikan reason-nya. So you must give the reason. First you give the idea reason: I think.....

(A teacher suddenly entered the classroom to give new school uniform patches for the students)

.............

T : ....Pakai wish?

Ss : Tidak terjadi.

(Reading the passage) ‘Hopes are something we want to happen.’ Sesuatu yang mungkin terjadi. And we work hard to make it happen. Dan kita bekerja keras untuk mewujudkannya. But we are not sure. Kita nggak yakin... whether it will happen or not and sometimes we cannot do for it. Tidak bisa berbuat apa-apa. Hopes and dreams have future intention. Ini menurut Benn. Look at the example. I am hoping for good weather tomorrow. Hope plus for plus noun phrases. Frase kata benda. Good weather tomorrow. Number two I’m hoping for a good grade in English. Good grade. Apa good grade?

Ss : Nilai yang baik
T : Nilai yang bagus. O.K. Number 1 tadi apa? For Some good weather.
Ss : Cuaca yang bagus
T : Tomorrow?
Ss : Besok
T : Terjadi nggak sekarang?
(Is it happening now?)
Ss : Belum
(No)
T : Belum terjadi. Bisa terjadi?
(It hasn’t happen but it can)
Ss : Bisa ya. Insya Allah.
(It can be. God willing)
(It can happen or not. Do you get good grade or no? Can it happen? Tomorrow it can. This is hope)
T : Teras yang second. I hope to study in America next year. To study in America next year. Bisa terjadi?
(Then the second one. Can it happen?)
Ss : Bisa...
(Yes)
T : To study. We use apa? To plus... To study kata kerja. Untuk belajar di Amerika next year. Berikutnya something beneficial for my country. To do something beneficial?
Ss : Yang menguntungkan
T : For my country. To verb one. I hope that there is enough food in the party. ... Noun phrase diikuti oleh clause. Kalimatnya adalah subject, verb, and clause. Number 3. I hope my brother passes the test. Lulus apa tidak?.. I hope he finds my wallet. Finds my wallet. Ketemu apa tidak?
Ss : Belum
T : Ini ‘mungkin’ hilang. Number next. I hope Iwan have a good time in Bali. Saya harap Iwan... have a good time?
Ss : ...
T : My brother has a good time in Jakarta. Jadi that itu bisa dihilangkan. I hope Susi sees us. .. Pass by? Pass by? Pass away?
Ss : Meninggal
(To die)
T : Kalau orang Jawa itu tilar donya. Sama makna tapi ada yang kasar.
(The Javanese says ‘tilar donya’. Both are same but different in conotation)
O.K, next another example. I want to become a doctor. Want hampir sama dengan hope. I am hoping, ya. Hoping to finish all my work. I hope I will realize. I hope that I will always be honest. Apa honest?

Jujur

I hope that I will never lie. Never lie?

Tidak bohong.

I hope that I will never smoke?

Tidak pernah merokok.

Kalau tidak merokok smoke cigar. I want to... Another example on your copy. There are two ya. Hopes and wishes. Tapi hanya ‘hope’ saja. (But we will only discuss ‘hope’) Sekarang, let’s go. Hope and wish. We use I hope when there is a good chance. Good chance? Apa chance?

Kesempatan

...that something might happen. Yang mungkin terjadi. You can say... Example This cake will turn out. Ini makananya the cake may turn out. Cake nya bisa. I hope this cake will turn out. Ini salah. Kenapa? Pakai will. Don’t use will. We use present. Ini makananya will namun ungkapannya nggak pakai will. Number 3. I hope we can still be friends. Saya harap kita masih jadi teman. Jadi teman nggak?

Terus jadi teman nggak? Harapan. We will be friends in the future. Sekarang sudah friends harapannya besok masih. We will be.

Kalau pass by?

Lewat.

Pass away?

Meninggal

Pass lulus. Lulus apa tidak?

Bisa ya.

Bisa ya bisa tidak. Meaningnya gimana ini? His final exam... Berikutnya, I hope can visit Mars someday. Saya harap saya bisa mengunjungi Mars someday. Bisa terjadi nggak? Bisa. Nanti kalau dewasa jadi astronaut. Kalau sekarang nggak terjadi karena sekolah. Makanya apa? I will... yang visit siapa? (It can happen or not. What does it mean? Next, I hope I can visit Mars someday. Can it happen? Yes. Later when you are adult, you will become astronauts. Now it can’t because you are still in high school. What does it mean? Who visits?)

I
T: I will visit Mars. Kapan?
   (When?)
Ss: Someday.
T: Apa someday?
   (What does ‘someday’ mean?)
Ss: Suatu hari.
T: Suatu hari kapan?
   (When will it happen?)
Ss: Kapan kapan.
T: Next exercise A. You do number 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5. The rests are for your homework.
   .... (Students did their task)
T: Mistakes. Do you know mistakes?
Ss: Kesalahan.

............
T: OK now, number six to number five for your homework.
Ss: Number six to?
T: Number six to fifteen. Number six to fifteen. This is for your homework. Now let’s continue. Part B... B. This is the opposite. Exercise A you try to give the meaning. Exercise B you try to...to make a hope. Example number one: You are already to go to bed. I hope....
Ss: I hope a nice sleep.
T: I hope... pakai to.... I hope to sleep. I hope that I sleep.
Ss: I hope that I sleep.
T: I hope... Pakai that... I hope that I have nice sleep. I have that I get better tomorrow. Apa kira-kira?
   (What do you think?)
Ss: Sehat.
   (Healthy)
T: Sehat. After...
Ss: wake up
T: Wake up or get up? What is the difference? Apa? Orang Jawa nggomong aku mau esuk jam 4 wis tangi ning durung tangi. Tangi ning rung rung tangi.
   (Pardon? The Javanese says this morning I woke up at 4 but I didn’t get up).
T: ‘Wake up’ means you open your?
Ss: Eyes
T: ... eyes. ‘Get up’ means you leave your bed. ‘Wake up.’ ‘Get up.’ Bahasa Jawanya sama. Aku wis tangi ning rung tangi.
   (In Javanese both have same meaning. I have opened my eyes but I haven’t leave my bed.)
T: What else? ‘I hope to get a nice day.’
S: I hope I get nightmare.
T: Anda jangan pakai ini ‘nightmare’, ya. Don’t use ‘nightmare’. Apa nightmare?
Ss: Mimpi buruk.
(Bad dream)
T : Mimpi buruk. Last night if you... a lion eats you. What does it mean? A lion eats you?
Ss : (silent)
T : A lion eats you means you get a boyfriend. You will get a girlfriend. Mimpi dicokot ula.
(Suppose your last night dream is that you are bitten by snake)
T : Is it good or not? Digigit ular apa? (What does ‘digigit ular’ in English?)
Ss : Bitten by snake.
T : O.K. Now, you do number 2, 3, 4. Number 1 what is your hope.... Try to have two. .....
.... (The teacher left the class. Students did the excercise)

T : Dalam bahasa Inggris tidak ada ‘What time did you sleep?’ Tidak ada. Itu pertanyaan rancu. ‘Kapan Anda tidur tadi malam? Jam berapa Anda tidur?’ Itu pertanyaan yang salah. Kapan Anda tidur kita tidak tahu. Yang ngerti itu bukan kapan kita mulai tidur tapi adalah saat kita naik ke tempat tidur. Tidur itu tak terasa kan jam berapa. O.K? (In English there is no question like ‘What time did you sleep?’ No. That’s ambiguous. ‘When did you sleep last night? What time did you sleep?’ That’s inappropriate. We don’t know exactly when we started sleeping. What we know is when we stay in the bed. We can’t exactly know when we start sleeping.)
Number 2. You can make with to verb and clause.
T : Next number: I hope there are more hours in a day. Saya harap ada jam tambahan dalam sehari. There are 24 hours a day. Kita harap ada lebih dari 24 jam. It’s impossible. ‘I wish I studied something more practical.’ Belajar sesuatu yang lebih praktis. Berarti meaningnya apa?
Ss : (silent)
T : Berarti meaningnya ‘I don’t study something practical.’ Walaupun past maknanya present. ... O.K. (Therefore, the meaning is ‘I don’t study something practical’. Although it is in past form, it has present meaning)

(Schoolbells rang)
T : O.K. Let’s continue later. See you next week. Wassalammualaikum wr wb (Peace be upon you.)
Ss : Walaikumsalam wr wb (Peace be upon you, too.)
T : Good morning everybody.
Ss : Good morning
T : Assalamualaikum wr wb
   (Peace be upon you)
Ss : Walaikum salam wr. wb.
   (Peace be upon you too)
T : How are you today?
Ss : I’m fine and you?
T : Very happy. Are you happy now?
Ss : Yes.
T : Why happy?
Ss : Because....
T : Why? Because of your father or your mother gave you a lot of pocket money?
Ss : No
T : No? Yes. Sometimes yes sometimes no. Alright. O.K. I think I gave you some assignments to collect to make a home recording. Have you finished doing?
Ss : No.
T : Why not?
Ss : Nothing. Busy.
T : Very very busy. So would you please collect it if you are finishing? You can revise you can record if you have. You haven’t?
S : Ditulis nggak, Pak?
   (Do we need to write the script or not, Sir?)
   (The script. You may write the script).
T : The recording is O.K. But I hope you make a very good dialog a very good script very good pronunciation intonation. So, I told you that you can consult me before recording. If necessary you can consult me. So, I gave you sixteen minutes to finish. Please finish in sixty minutes and later on please collect to me, right? especially the recording and if you haven’t written down the script please write the it first and then practice it and then record it.
S : Pak, cari tempat yang nggak berisik boleh?
   (Sir, may I find a quiet place?)
T: O.K. You can find a quiet place to record your dialogue. Outside is OK. Fifteen minutes. Remember right fifteen minutes. If you finish you can collect, submit to me.
S: Pak, satu kelas dalam 1 flashdisk atau satu kelompok?
   (Sir, Is this flashdisk for the assignments of one class or one group?)
T: No. O.K.

.... (Students discussed the dialogue)
T: Do you have any remotes please? No? Get me a stick
   (A student turned on the projector)
S: (asking something)
T: Pardon? What? Do you ask me? You have finish you can collect. Through bluetooth is O.K but wait a minute please.
T: Wait a minute. Please sit down first.

T: Sudah ya?
   (Finished?)
T: Is it clear? The picture is clear. The pictures are good enough, I think. Funny perhaps. What do you think about the pictures? For the students who have finished please look at the picture. O.K Now. What do you think about the picture? What do you think?
Ss: Cartoon
T: Cartoon? Yes. O.K. About the color? What do you think?
Ss: Bold
T: Yes. Do you think is the picture for you, or for your younger brother, or sister? It is for adult or child or kids.
Ss: Kids
T: O.K. Kids. No matter what the picture is for you but please while waiting for your friends, write a sentence for each picture, O.K? Write a sentence. You can also discuss with your friend and I think you have some keywords in the top. Please read aloud together.
Ss: (repeating what teacher says)
T: O.K please write one sentence for each picture. You can discuss while I receive your recording.

.... (Teacher checked students who were working outside)
S: Pak, kalau mengajak ke kantin itu ‘command’ atau apa?
   (Sir, does asking someone to go to the canteen belong command or not?)
T: Kalimatnya mana?
   (What is the sentence?)
S: ‘Will you go to the canteen?’
T: Request.
   (Teacher entered the class)
T: Come on picture one. You can find any name. It’s O.K. The person you like.
T: You can do it in your book or the board. Come on quickly. Quickly please. You have discussed with your friend

-------
S: No. 1 ya, Pak?
(I do number one, Sir)
T: O.K.
T: Arum, what number?
S: Five
(Some students entered the class. They collected the recording to the teacher)
T: Di HP kemarin ya? Ini HP tak pakai.
(Do you save the recording in your cellphones yesterday? (Sorry), I’m still using it now)

----------
T: Alright. If you have finished
(Other students collected the recording)
T: Thank you... Please write down one sentence for one picture. Any idea, but based on the picture.

T: Come. Up to you.
Ss: Sudah, Pak.
(Finished, Sir)
T: Thank you
Thank you
Good. Nice. That’s correct.
T: This one?
S: Itu jadi satu.
(In one folder)

......
T: O.K. Please write down one sentence for one picture. Ten minutes. Come on. Come on. Please try to write sentence in simple idea or in simple form. You can use some keywords in the picture while I’m checking your presence (Teacher checked students’ presence)
T: It is now 3 September. It’s very very very crowded yes? Hanif Afifah sakit ya?
(Hanif Afifah is sick, right?)
Ss: Yes.
.... (Teacher continued checking students’ presence)
T: Alright now orally please say about the pictures using the keyword on the tip.
Picture what?
‘Ridwan is reading the book.
Rina and body are dancing together.
Tiwi is eating candy.
Yudha and Yoga are walking together.’ O.K.
Example of tenses are present continuous tense.

Teacher walked through the classroom. He checked students’ work

......

Ss : Time signal, Pak.

T : Time signal you have more than three or four. Listen please.

School bell rang

T : In interrogative there is a question mark...... If you haven’t finished I give you another. O.K? Thank you very much for attention and joining. See you tomorrow. Assalammualakum wr wb.

(Peace be upon you.)

Ss : Walaikumsalam wr wb.

(Peace be upon you, too.)
T  : Assalamualaikum wr wb
   (Peace be upon you)
Ss : Wassalamualaikum wr wb
    (Peace be upon you, too)
T  : How are you?
Ss : I’m fine and you?
T  : Very well. Thank you. Well. I think we still have some discussion. And I have already given back your book.
Ss : Yes
T  : And we have to discuss. The first, we have the story of the Enchanted Fish. Right? Have you got the story? You have the idea of the story? Not yet? But you have answered the questions, I think.
Ss : Yes
T  : Yes. Mmm. In your textbook page 1. Page 6. O.K. You have question about the story of the fisherman. The question 1, what is your answer? Yes or no?
Ss : No.
T  : How do you know? Yes or no? No ‘How did he feel about this?’ ‘How did he feel about it?’
Ss : He felt...
T  : Pardon?
The fisherman... Aloud please.
Ss : The fisherman felt ashamed the fish.
T  : Do you get the same answer?
Ss : Yes
T  : The question is ‘How did he feel about it?’ He felt ashamed to the fish. Yes or no? No Question 2. The story doesn’t reveal out the end. What do you think it might have happened? .....What is the meaning of the question? What is meaning. Might have happened?
Ss : Apa yang....(What might...)
T  : Apa yang? Might means? (What might?)
Ss : Mungkin (Perhaps)
(What might have happened)
T : Yes. Any reason please?
Ss : Animal and
T : The place might... Pardon?
Ss : (silent)
T : Everybody come on. Question 2.
Ss : I think it might be the prince changed into fish
T : It might be the prince had punishment and someone changed him into a fish. Might have happened. In past. What do you think? Perhaps. Another idea? Perhaps, maybe someone changed him into a fish. What else? Another idea. I think.....

(A student suddenly entered the classroom)
S : Excuse me Sir. May I join the class?
T : Please yes.
S: Thank you, Sir
T : What are you doing?
S : I had a trouble in traffic, Sir.
T : I think the fish made and he caught by a magician. Alright perhaps yes Number 3 ‘Do you think the prince
Ss : No
T : ‘What happened in the end of the story?’
Ss : (silent)
T : At the end of the story?
T : At the end of the story the fisherman’s wife
T : ‘If you had a chance to write the story, how would you end the story?’ If you wrote the story? Like this?
S : Yes. No
T : Perhaps yes perhaps no.
T : Who says maybe no? Another Idea?
Ending-nya mungkin seperti itu. Just think and imagine. If you have a chance to write the story... Sudah nulis kan?
(The end of the story is perhaps like that.... Have you written that?)
S : The same.
T : The same. If the same, we would not write anything. What do you think? Pardon?
S : The end of the story is same.
T : The same. O.K. Different idea? Please. Come on
S : Maybe the fishermen will quite happy but their wife become a fish and they’re life
T : The man lives happily with the fish but his wife become fish. Then?
S : And then the fish turns back into the prince
T : Thank you very much. That’s a good idea.
‘Imagine you are the fish on the story, can you write the point of view?’
What?
S: .... (reading aloud her answer)
T: O.K. Thank you. That depends on your idea. That's all.
Number 9? ‘What can we learn from the story?’ A narrative provides us what? What? At the end of the story usually, there is what?
Ss: (silent)
T: Pardon? Yes. What we call?
Ss: Moral value
T: Good. Moral value. What the moral value here?
S: Don’t be a fisherman.
T: What else? Only that?
S: Don’t be greedy.
T: Then?
S: Be thankful
T: Be thankful. Then what else? What else? That’s all?
Ss: O.K
T: That’s all...
Alright...
Now the next we. Please open page 17. Is it your homework, right?
Ss: Yes
T: We have decision. Now please write on the board dialog two. Would you please dialog two, page 17? Everybody?
Write on the right.
O.K.
(What is matching? Are you angry or not? What does matching mean?)
Ss: (laughing). The cloth.
(Matching is animal which sounds meow)
Ss: Kucing Pak!
(It’s cat, Sir!)
T: Oh iya ya.
(Oh I see)
T: Now I think you already understand the dialog. Next exercise page 19. ‘Fill in the blank.’ Page 19. Number one 1 to bla bla bla. 10 blank spaces. Please provide with the vocabulary on the top.
.... (Students did the exercise)
T: Next, now just think and write down any folklore you have ever heard or you have ever read in the past. Now please write a folklore in the blank space. Not very long. Not too long. Only short but complete. Understand? Do you understand what I mean?
Ss: Yes
T : Write down any folklore, legend myth or anything about the stories in this space in short but clear but complete idea. Right? Remember. Fiction or non fiction.

Ss : Non

T : You can create. You can imagine. You can create by yourself. Have you been told by your mom your grandma about the story or legend? Have you ever been told?

Ss : Kelinci dan Kura-kura.

(The Hare and the Tortoise)

T : Pernah belum? (Have you?)

T : Have you ever been told? Have you ever been told?

S : Bentul

T : Inggris padhakke Jawa... By your parents about any folklore, any fairytale. Pernah belum? (You use Javanese pronunciation in English... Have you ever?)

Ss : Pinokio... Cinderella.

... (Students started discussing the narrative text)

T : O.K. When you write any kind of narrative, it’s better for you to write once....?

Ss : One?

T : .... once upon a time.

Ss : A long time ago

T : A long long before.... Many many years ago.... There... Bla bla bla in the forest. One day....

.... (Students continued discussing the narrative text).................

T : O.K. One more important thing to remember when you write a narrative story: You must write the sentence in the form of past tense because it happened long before now, except in direct sentence, in direct speech. Kecuali dalam kalimat langsung. Kalau nggak langsung harus in the past tense, past verb.

(You don’t use it in direct sentence. If it is indirect, you must use past tense verbs)

(School bell rang)

T : O.K. I think it’s better to finish. Thanks for joining. Now, let’s say a prayer before.
T: Good morning, students.
Ss: Good morning, Ma’am
T: O.K. Saya sekadar mengingatkan saja. I know that you don’t want what happened to Davin happens to your friends anymore. I warn you. That’s only about the problem of attitude. Itu hanya masalah sikap. Paham ta maksudnya?
(O.K. I just want to remind you. I know you don’t want what happened to Davin happens to your friends anymore. That’s only the problem of attitude. Do you understand?)
Ss: (silent)
T: And now we will have a new material about invitation. Yang maju siap sekarang? Yuk? (Who will be the presenter today, please?)
Ss: (silent)
T: Herna, waktunya presentasi. (Herna, it’s your time to present.)
S: Assalamualaikum wr wb. We’re from group three. We will talk about formal invitation, so enjoy.......... (Student continued the presentation about formal invitation)
T: O.K. Mbak Mega and Herna, would you like to explain, I mean back to the character of invitation letter? Kembali ke presentasimu yang tentang undangan formal itu tadi. Perhaps you can explain using your own language. What you have shown you cite from the internet. Perhaps, the language is too difficult for us. So can you make it simple so that your friends can understand more?
S: Mmmmm. I’m trying to explain it with our daily language. I think basically the structure is just the same with the invitation letter in Indonesia.
T: O.K. If you say the same, would you like to write down on the blackboard, I mean the outline, the design? Perhaps you can show us the example based on that example please analyze the part. Kan ada salutation, ada dresscode, ada RSPV dan sebagainya. Nah itu. What I ask to you ‘Is it a must the formal letter must enclose the head?’
S: Ya. Kop.
(Yes. It’s the head of the letter)

T : Berarti ditulis saja biar temanmu paham. The head of letter. urutan pertama itu the head of letter atau dalam kurung kop surat.
(Oh. It better you write it so that your friends understand. The head of letter is in the first number)

T : Riski what are you talking about?
S : Mmmm. Nothing.
T : Nothing?

........(Students wrote down the structure of the formal letter on the blackboard. The teacher helped them. They communicated using Indonesian and Javanese)......

T : O.K. Any question? Ada yang perlu ditanyakan? Apa ada yang perlu dijelaskan?
(Is there any question to ask? Is there anything to explain to you?)

Ss : (silent)

T : Itu cara membuat undangan resmi. Itu kan resmi. The design, masalah opening nanti tergantung Anda mau membahas apa.
(Those are the procedures of writing formal invitation. The opening will depend on what you are going to discuss)

T : Perhaps Rudi. Do you have a question?
S : Mmm. No.
T : No? It’s clear enough. Lumayan ta?

T : Do you prepare the excercise for them, Herna?
S : No. Ini sudah exercise lho Bu.
(No. What I have been explain is the exercise, Ma’am)

T : No question? O.K. If you have no question, write down my question. Based on the invitation letter shown by Herna and Mega answer these following questions. Number 1......(Teacher read aloud the question while the students note them all)

T : O.K. Please do it.
Ss : (silent)

...... (All students did the exercise. They sometimes communicated with the teacher using Javanese or Indonesian)......

T : Herna, would you like to check your friend if they have finished?
S : O.K. Ma’am.

...... (The appointed students checked her friends’ work)

T : You can ask in English
S : Petra, have you done? Kowe kan telat mau.
(You come late today.)

S : Iya

S : Have you done? OK.

...... (The students and the teacher discussed the answer).....

T : O.K. Number five/ Sudah? Mbak, don’t close the slide. Jangan ditutup dulu. Please you go to your chair.

T : Next exercise. First you analyze.... there is now for your cognitive ability. This is now for your psychomotor. Write a formal invitation letter based on some situations below.
Perhaps you are the chairman of Casello Cup Event; you want to invite some people or expert to judge some competitions on Casello Cup Event. One letter; one judge.

Any question about this instruction? Ada pertanyaan tentang perintah ini?

Ss : (silent)

T : Kan ada banyak. There are many judges to invite. You can choose one. Free. And include the text organization, there is head of letter, there is date, address.

..... (Students did the excercise)

S : Tiga ya Bu

T : Three. I said ‘Three’ Judges to invite if you don’t know the name, if you don’t know the title, just free. Bebas. Based on your imagination. Berdasarkan khayalan kalian saja. Profesor sapa ngana.

T : O.K. Although the judges are only in your imagination, you have to use the real situation. Don’t be too bombstic. Jangan terlalu muluk-muluk ya. Mosok Prof Dr.... Mosok gelare Profesor Doktor kok mung disangoni satus ewu ya mesakke ta ya.

(Don’t be too bombastic. Is it irrational that the experts whose title are professor and doctor are only given one hundred rupiahs for the fee)

T : O.K. Listen. Perhaps, you can do it at home, but you have to type it and then you submit in one folder in a class, satu kelas dalam satu folder. You submit it when you have the first test. We wil have the test after we discuss the procedure text. Next meeting, we will still have Mbak siapa itu?

Ss : Nisa

T : ... Mbak Nisa to discuss to discuss formal but not official, formal tapi tidak kantoran seperti itu. And then, next Friday we discuss the procedure text. Then we will have the first test. And you have to submit. Then the next you may have the midterm.

O.K. Thank you. See you next meeting.

Ss : See you later.

S: The first. The second.
T: Yes. It's Javanese style But we now start learning English right. We have to try to the international paradigm... because English is to be accepted by everyone all around the world.
Suppose you go to Italy, Japan or even to Egypt....... (b) So, what do you choose? The first or the second? (c)
S: (saying something unclear)
T: It depends where you are whether you in Javanese or English. In English you can express the compliment just the way it is - apa adanya. But sometimes for Javanese it quite ignores the norm for Javanese people to proud themselves. (d) | Dec   | | P1: English teacher
