Thank you so much for your love, motivation and prayers.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

All praise be to Allah SWT, the Most Gracious and the Most Merciful, who has given me remarkable blessing and strength, so I can finish this thesis. Eternal peace may also be given to Muhammad SAW, his family, friends and companions.

In this opportunity, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to the following for their contributions throughout the completion of this study.

First of all, I would like to express my gratitude for the first and second supervisors of this thesis. My best gratitude goes to my first supervisor, Joko Priyana, Ph.D, for his supervision, suggestions, guidance, and feedback all the way through the process of writing this thesis. My sincere thanks may also be sent to my second supervisor, Lusi Nurhayati, S.Pd, M.Appl.Ling, for her great supervision and suggestions.

Secondly, my gratitude is conveyed to Ibu Marsudiningsih, S.Pd, the English teacher of SMA N 2 Yogyakarta, where I did this research. Furthermore, I would like to express my appreciation to the students of X PMIIA 3, as the subject of this research.

The third, a special thank also goes to my beloved friends of UNY 2010 and KKN-PPL UNY Nexaga: Isty (also as my materials design’ advisor), Febriyani, Banatul, Yohana, Novi, Evy, Anggun, Ratna, Etika, Nunggal, Kartika, Murni, Adzkia, Evi, Yustine, Riska, Lucia, Vinda, mas Yonki, mas Edhum, mas Tomy, bang Dedi and all supporting and inspiring people whom I cannot mention by name.

Finally, I hope that this thesis may be helpful for the readers. However, I realize that this thesis is far from being perfect. Therefore, any criticism, ideas, and suggestions are highly appreciated for the improvement of this thesis.

DEVELOPING INQUIRY-BASED LEARNING MATERIALS
FOR GRADE X STUDENTS OF SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

ABSTRACT

The aims of this research were: (1) to find out the target needs of grade X students of senior high schools, (2) to find out the learning needs of grade X students of senior high schools, and (3) to develop inquiry-based learning materials for grade X students of senior high schools in learning English.

This is a Research and Development (R&D) research study. The subjects of the research were the students of class X PMIIA 3 of SMA N 2 Yogyakarta in the academic year of 2014/2015. Two types of questionnaires were used in this research. The first was a needs analysis questionnaire distributed to the students to identify their target and learning needs. The second questionnaire was an expert judgment questionnaire adapted from Instrumen Penilaian Buku Bahasa Inggris SMA to assess the appropriateness of the developed materials. The research procedure adapted the Jolly and Bolithos’s model in Tomlinson (1998). The steps of the research were conducting a needs analysis, writing the course grid, developing the materials, doing expert judgment and revising the materials. The data of the needs analysis were analyzed quantitatively using frequency and percentage, and then the results were used as the basis to develop the course grid. The course grid was used as the guideline to develop the tasks of the first draft of the learning materials. The first draft was evaluated by a materials evaluator. The results of the materials evaluation were analyzed through descriptive statistics and used to revise the first draft of the materials.

This study developed three units of inquiry-based learning materials. Each unit covers all the four skills and consists of introduction, main lesson and reinforcement tasks ranging from 28 to 32 tasks. The input was in the form of spoken and written texts, vocabulary list and grammar explanation. The students are encouraged to do discussion and involve in active investigation to solve and do tasks. Most of the tasks are done in a small group discussion and in pairs. Based on the results of materials evaluation, the content, language, presentation and graphic of the developed materials are considered appropriate. The mean score of all aspects of the developed materials was 3.80 which is categorized as “Very Good”.
CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of the Study

Curriculum 2013 contains some differences compared to the previous curriculum. The drafts of Standards Graduate of Competence of 2013 and the Standards of Contents of English of 2013 for SMA state that the character education is part of the overt curriculum; therefore, in implementing the curriculum, an English teacher should integrate the teaching of values in teaching and learning process. Attitude is learned in the real product or shown in learners’ behaviors. English teaching and learning process is no longer conducted limited only in the school but in the learning environment. The content of curriculum 2013 is thematic integrative in which all of classes use theme as its unit of learning material structure meanwhile the assessment is based on competence based, standard based, authentic evaluation and portfolio. Furthermore, Curriculum 2013 requires learners to not only listen to the teacher’ explanation, but also involve actively in the learning process through observations, collect, analyze, synthesize information, and draw conclusions which is called scientific approach. Regarding curriculum 2013 which applied scientific approach, the Act of Indonesian Education and Cultural Minister Number 65 Year 2013 states that to strengthen the scientific approach, thematic-integrated (inter thematic subjects), and thematic (in a subject), discovery/inquiry learning can be applied. Further, in regard to curriculum, English teaching and learning process including the materials are expected to be able to develop the scientific attitude, scientific creativity and the intelligence of learners. Besides, ideally learning materials should cover the learners’ needs to develop their competencies in the knowledge, skills, attitude, and religiousness domains.

However, learning materials are prominent problems in teaching and learning process. The problem is the learning materials available used in teaching and learning process in some schools have not applied scientific method yet. The English teacher tries to combine and compile materials from many sources and use students’ worksheet to fulfill the teaching and learning needs. Meanwhile, the usage of the students’ worksheet to fulfill the teaching and learning needs does not represent the concept of scientific approach applied in curriculum 2013. The language of the materials from combination of some sources and the students’ worksheet are also not relevant to the learners’ needs. Considering the problems above, the researcher plans to develop inquiry-based learning materials for grade ten of senior high school.

According to Wells (1999) inquiry is pursuing significant questions through using questions and ways of researching from a range of knowledge systems. Meanwhile, Longman Dictionary of Language Teaching and Applied Linguistics defines inquiry learning as learners develop processes associated with discovery and inquiry by observing, inferring, formulating hypotheses, predicting and communicating. In line with the processes, Kuhlthau (2007: 24-25) states that in the process of inquiry-based learning, from generating a question or problem to be solved up to communicating and sharing their findings, learning through inquiry empowers students with the knowledge, skills, and dispositions to become independent thinkers and lifelong learners. Hacker (1999) also states that through reflecting on the process during inquiry-based learning activities, students are given opportunities to explore and understand both the cognitive and affective domains of “learning to learn”. Therefore, the design of Inquiry based learning materials will involve in the construction of knowledge through learners’ active involvement through observations, inquire, collect, analyze, synthesize information, draw conclusions, and communicate the result.

B. Identification of the Problems

Based on the interview with the English teachers on March, 5th 2014 and April, 30rd 2014, some problems were found. They are described below.

Firstly, the materials available and used in the teaching and learning process have not applied the scientific method yet. To fulfill the teaching and learning needs, the English teachers try to combine and compile materials from many sources. The teachers combine the materials from a course book entitled English Pathway (2013) written by Th. M. Sudarwati and Eudia Grace and published by Erlangga publisher, the students’ worksheet and some online sources from internet. The language in the existing materials used in teaching and learning process is also not specified by the learners’ need.

Secondly, the problem was found in the students’ worksheet (LKS). Students’ worksheet used in the teaching and learning process entitled Bahasa Inggris IPA/IPS students’ worksheet published by PT. Intan Pariwara (2012) are not relevant to the concept of scientific approach applied in curriculum 2013. The content of the students’ worksheet is not derived from the core competencies of Curriculum 2013. In addition, the students’ worksheet is not designed based on the steps of scientific approach. Meanwhile, to develop their own learning materials which apply scientific approach are not easy work to accomplish by the teachers because the limited training of the application of new curriculum. The teachers feel confused to apply scientific approach in language teaching and learning process including the materials.

The last problem was related to the availability of the audio materials and the audio visual materials. The audio materials available are only employed as a listening training activity for grade XII who will face the final examination. Meanwhile for grade X and XI, it is usually the teacher who acts as the model for listening activities.

In regard to the scientific approach applied in Curriculum 2013, the Act of Indonesian Education and Cultural Minister Number 65 Year 2013 states that discovery/inquiry learning can be applied to strengthen the scientific approach, thematic-integrated (inter thematic subjects), and thematic (in a subject). Therefore, considering the problems above and the benefit of Inquiry-based learning, the researcher plan to develop Inquiry-based learning materials for grade ten of senior high school.

C. Delimitation of the Problem

The research focuses on designing inquiry-based learning materials for grade ten students of senior high school. The materials are developed in the form of the course book which consists of four skills.

D. Formulation of the Problems

Based on the limitation of the problem above, the problems of this study can be formulated as follows:

1. What are the target needs of the grade X students of senior high schools?
2. What are the learning needs of the grade X students of senior high schools?
3. What are the appropriate inquiry-based learning materials for grade X students of senior high schools?

E. Objectives of the Research

Related to the formulation of the problem above, the objectives of this study are as follows:

1. To find out the target needs of of the grade X students of senior high schools.
2. To find out the learning needs of the grade X students of senior high schools.

3. To develop appropriate inquiry-based learning materials for grade X students of senior high schools.

F. Significances of the Research

This study is expected to give some contributions to the English teaching and learning in the following ways:

1. For English Education Department
   This study is expected to be used as a reference to other researchers who conduct the same studies.

2. For the School
   Later on, the materials that have been developed by the researcher can be stored in the school library and can be used as a source by the teacher.

3. For English teacher
   This research is expected to be useful for providing materials for teaching for the teacher and for encouraging the teacher to develop materials which are appropriate for their students.

4. For the Student
   From this study, the students are expected to develop their higher order thinking skills (researching, organizing, thinking abstractly, questioning and reflecting). The inquiry-based learning materials are expected to encourage learners’ scientific attitude and knowledge for lifelong learning.
CHAPTER II

LITERATURE REVIEW

This chapter discusses the literature review and the conceptual framework of the research. In the literature review, the researcher examines some theories underlying the research. The conceptual framework figures out the researcher’s concept in developing the learning materials.

A. Literature Review

1. English Language Learning in Senior High School

a. Theory of learning

1) Definition of language learning

Tomlinson (1998: 4) states that learning is normally considered as a conscious process which consists of the committing to memory information relevant to what is being learnt. Meanwhile, Kimble in Hergenhahn and Olson (2009: 1) defines learning as a relatively permanent change in behavioral potentialities that occurs as result of reinforced practice. In line with Tomlinson and Olson’s definitions, further, Brown (2000: 7) defines language learning in the domain of research and inquiry as acquisition processes; perception and recalling process of information or skills on learners’ memory system; relatively persistent process but subject to forgetting; a change in behavior; and it involves learners’ active and focus involvement in some forms of reinforced practices. From the definitions above, it can be concluded that looking from inquiry’s perspective, language learning involves more than just the process of perception but also the process of recalling in learners’ memory or learners’ change in behavior because of reinforced practice.

2) Characteristics of Senior High School students

Senior high school students of teenager are categorized into adolescence, the characteristics of adolescent learners according to Harmer (2001: 38-39) are (1) they are less lively, less humorous, less motivated, and presents outright discipline problems than adults; (2) individual identity has to be created among classmates and friends; peer approval are more important for the student than the attention of the teacher; (3) they would be much happier is such discipline problems i.e. problem with their friends did not exist; (4) they are disruptive in the class because of some factors i.e. boredom; (5) they have a great capacity to learn, a great potential of creativity and an excited commitment to things that interest them.

3) Language learning in the classroom

Harmer (2001: 25-26) proposes three elements which need to be present in the language classroom to help the students learn effectively: engage, study, and activate. Engage in relation to the activities and materials means such activities and materials have to arouse students’ interest to make them engage with the topic, exercise, or language they are going to deal with. The engaging activities can include games, music, discussions, stimulating pictures, dramatic stories, amusing anecdotes, etc.

Study means activities where the students are asked to focus on language and how it is constructed. Meanwhile, activate can be defined in the form of exercises and activities which are designed to give students opportunity to use language as freely and communicatively as possible. These activities include role-plays, advertisement design, debate and discussions, story and poem writing, etc.

b. Curriculum 2013

1) Curriculum 2013 in General

Since the academic year of 2013/2014, the Indonesian Ministry of Education and Culture has developed the new curriculum called Curriculum 2013. The new curriculum has started to be implemented in some schools nationwide. According to the Indonesian Ministry of Education and Culture year 2013, learning process in curriculum 2013 is competencies–based learning.
Competencies–based learning strengthens learning process and authentic assessment to achieve attitudes, knowledge and skills competences. Authentic assessment is a comprehensive assessment which is conducted to assess the input process and output learning (including the domains of attitudes, knowledge, and skills). Authentic assessment assesses the readiness of learners, as well as the learning processes and outcomes of learning as a whole. The integration of the three components of assessment (input - process - output) will describe the capacity, style, and learning outcomes of students, even it is able to produce instructional effect and the effects of accompaniment (nurturing effect) of the learning.

The characteristics of the learning process at any educational institution are closely related to the Standards Graduate of Competence and Standards of Content. Standards Graduate of Competence provides a conceptual framework of learning objectives to be achieved. Meanwhile, Standards of Content provide a conceptual framework of learning activities and the learning process derived from the level of competence and scope of the material. In accordance with the Standards of Competence, learning objectives include the development of the domains of attitudes, knowledge, and skills are elaborated for each educational unit. The reinforcement of learning process is done through a scientific approach, namely a learning process which encourages learners to be able to observe, ask, try /collect data, associate, and communicate. One of seven characteristics of Curriculum 2013 is the competence is expressed in the form of class core competences which further detailed in the learning subject basic competences. Core competences become the organizing elements of the basic competences. All the basic competences and the learning process are developed to achieve the competency stated in core competences.

2) The Structure of Curriculum for Senior High School

The Indonesian Education and Cultural Minister states that the English teaching and learning process in senior high schools is aimed to improve English communication ability including all four skills in the written and spoken forms.

The basic competences of grade X of senior high school cover the teaching of some texts. As stated before, compared to the previous curriculum, curriculum 2013 contains some differences. The difference lays on the organization; therefore, the curriculum still emphasizes on teaching text. Introducing text, text to compliment, text to show care, text to ask intention, text to congratulate, text to ask about event in the past time, announcement, descriptive text, narrative text, and recount text are the materials to be taught to grade ten students of senior high school. Besides the teaching of knowledge and skills of the texts stated before, the basic and core competences of grade X also cover the teaching of religious and social values which are well-behave, caring, honest, discipline, confident, responsible, cooperation, and loving peace. The teaching of these values are integrated in the teaching and learning process.
The complete version of the core and basic competences of grade ten of senior high school is available in the Appendices.

2. Inquiry-based Learning

a. Definition of Inquiry-based learning

As the name proposed, inquiry has the same meaning as investigation. According to Oxford learners dictionary, inquiry means investigation or act of asking questions or collection information about somebody or something. In line with the definition, Wells (1999) defines inquiry as pursuing significant questions through using questions and ways of researching from a range of knowledge systems. Meanwhile, Longman Dictionary of Language Teaching and Applied Linguistics defines inquiry learning as learners develop processes associated with discovery and inquiry by observing, inferring, formulating hypotheses, predicting and communicating.

Further, Kuhlthau (2007: 2) states that inquiry is an approach to learning which requires investigation, exploration, search, quest, research, pursuit, and study more than simply answering questions or getting a right answer. Meanwhile, looking from the scientific process, Llewellyn (2005: 24) defines inquiry as learners’ active exploration using their critical, logical, and creative thinking skills to propose questions of the topic they engaged.
Therefore, it can be concluded that effective inquiry is more than asking questions or answering questions but a process where students are actively involved in their learning; they formulate questions, use a variety of sources to investigate widely and then build new understandings, meanings and knowledge and then communicate their learning to others. In line with the definition, later the materials designed are expected to develop appropriate inquiry-based learning materials for the learners.

b. Constructivism

Constructivism, as a perspective in education, is based on experimental learning through real life experience to construct and conditionalize knowledge; students construct their own understanding and knowledge of the world through experiencing things and reflecting on those experiences. Llewellyn (2005: 28) explains that constructivism is a theory about how people come to know and what they know. It is based on premise that by reflecting on their prior experiences, people construct or make meaning about the world around them based on the context of their existing knowledge.

Constructivism is a theory how people learn. Examples of constructivist theory may be found in the works of John Dewey, Jerome Bruner, Lev Vygotsky, Jean Piaget, and George Kelly. It is problem based, adaptive learning, that challenges faulty schema, integrates new knowledge with existing knowledge, and allows for creation of original work or innovative procedures.

In Alberta Education (2004: 80) inquiry-based learning from constructivist learning theory is characterized as students’ active exploration, risk taking, curiosity, motivation, critical and creative engagement, and their connections with real-life situations and real audiences. The types of learners are self-directed, creative, innovative, drawing upon visual/spatial, musical/rhythmic, bodily kinesthetic, verbal/linguistic, logical/mathematical, interpersonal, intrapersonal, and naturalistic intelligences. The purpose in education is encouraging students to use active techniques (experiments, problem solving) to create more knowledge, to reflect on and talk about what they are doing and how their understanding is changing. The educator’s role is to mentor the learner during heuristic problem solving of ill-defined problems by enabling quested learning. The learning goal is the highest order of learning: heuristic problem solving, metacognitive knowledge, creativity, and originality that may modify existing knowledge and allow for creation of new knowledge. As explained in Kulhthau (2007: 14) a constructivist approach views learning as students’ involvement in active processes of constructing deep understanding and this construction is an active, ongoing learning process that continues throughout life.
From the definition above, it can be concluded that inquiry is a tool for constructivism, a seeking for truth, information, or knowledge by questioning. This approach to inquiry learning is based on constructivist learning theory.

c. Components of Inquiry-based learning

Inquiry approach consists of some components. According to Garton (2005: 23) the inquiry approach possesses five general components which consist of question, student engagement, cooperative interaction, performance evaluation, and variety of resources as shown in the following figure.

!Component Diagram

(Garton, 2005: 23)

1) Questions: learning process usually began with essential questions which can stimulate investigation and learners’ curiosity of a phenomenon. To answer these questions students are required to use the top of Bloom Taxonomy in which they are required to do several steps; evaluating (make a thoughtful choice between options, with the choice based upon clearly stated criteria), synthesizing (invent a new or different version), and analyzing (develop a thorough and complex understanding through skillful questioning). The answers of the questions can’t be found for example in the text book because students have to invent and construct the answers.

2) Students’ engagement: in inquiry learning process, students have an active involvement, meanwhile the teacher’s role is just as a facilitator. Students do not just passively write down the answers but they are required to create a unique product that shows their understanding in conducting the investigation.

3) Cooperative interaction: students are asked to work in pairs or group and discuss their ideas. In this case, students are reminded that learning process is not a competition. The answers of the questions asked by the teacher can come in all shapes and forms and all the answers may be right.

4) Performance evaluation: as stated before, in answering the problem, students are asked to create a unique product that shows their understanding in conducting the investigation. This product can be in the form of presentation slides, graphs, posters, essay, song, mural, and others. Through these products, teacher does the evaluation.

5) Variety of resources: students can use a variety of learning resources, such as textbooks, reference books, magazines, websites, television, video, posters, interviews with experts, etc.

d. Steps of Inquiry-based learning

There are some various steps of inquiry-based learning proposed by some scholars. Collete and Chiappetta (1986), Kuslan and Stone (1968), and Victor (1989) in Lawson (2010: 86) identified five steps of inquiry method which were: (1) learners explore perplexing phenomena and are asked to state a problem or questions/question; (2) learners are encouraged to propose and screen hypotheses; (3) learners design and conduct experiment to test hypotheses; (4) learners organize and analyze the data obtained; (5) learners are guided to formulate a conclusion, or sometimes they suspend judgment.

In line with the steps above, Sund and Trowbridge (1973: 63) propose six steps of mental process in inquiry: (1) learners ask insightful questions about natural phenomenon; (2) learners formulate problems; (3) learners formulate hypotheses; (4) learners design investigative approach including experiments; (5) learners carry out the experiments; (6) learners synthesizing knowledge.
In addition Llewellyn (2005: 21) divides the inquiry-cycle into six stages, they are: (1) during inquisition phase, the learners explore and pose some questions to initiate their inquiries; (2) in the acquisition phase, based on learners’ prior experience or background knowledge, they brainstorm possible ideas and solutions to the inquiry; (3) after brainstorming possible ideas and solutions to the inquiry, in supposition phase learners state a hypothesis to test the questions being investigated; (4) during implementation phase, learners design a plan to test their prediction and carry out the plan; (5) in the summation phase, learners record and analyze their observations. They also compare the findings of the observations to their original ideas in supposition stage; (6) finally, in exhibition phase, learners communicate their findings and new information in the form of poster display, PowerPoint presentation, or written or oral report.

Furthermore, Provenzo and Buxton (2007: 78) described one common inquiry model or 5E learning cycle into five components as explained in Llewellyn (2005: 47-48): (1) Engagement stage, the teacher introduces the topic of the lesson and the objectives of the learning; (2) Exploration stage, the learners carry out the investigation; they raise questions, develop hypotheses to test, and collect data; (3) Explanation stage, the learners analyze and interpret the data or information collected during the exploration; (4) Extension stage, the learners apply the concepts that have been learnt to different context; (5) Evaluation stage, the learners summarize the relationship between variables studied in the lesson and do evaluation about their works.

Therefore, the steps of inquiry applied in the developed materials are from the adaptation of 5E learning cycle and the inquiry cycle proposed by Llewellyn (2005: 21). In general, the steps of Inquiry in the materials will be:

1) Orientation. In this stage, learners will get clear information about the topic and learning objectives that they are going to learn. Different to the getting started activities which focus in giving background knowledge of what learners are going to learn, in orientation stage by giving the topic or the objectives of the learning to the learners, it functions to encourage the learners to think to solve the problem from the beginning of the learning process. For example, in learning introducing text, the learners learn about the learning objectives in listening and speaking sections. The objectives are to respond to somebody who introduces himself or herself to you and to introduce you and others.

2) Formulating a problem. In this stage, learners study the topic and the learning objectives which will stimulate learners’ exploration. Later referring to the objectives, they make relevant questions as many as possible. For example, after learners learn about the objectives in learning introducing text in the listening and speaking sections, they formulate some questions to initiate their inquiries, such as “What expressions are used to introduce yourself and others?”.

3) Proposing a hypothesis. In this stage, learners are asked to brainstorm possible ideas and answer the questions in formulating the problem stage based on their current knowledge. This stage functions to connect what the learners already know and motivate them to bring their own questions to the phenomenon.

4) Collecting data. Once questions are posed, learners are encouraged to gather information on the question area through research from sources. When enough information related to the topic of inquiry is gathered, the learners are expected to categorize or outline and highlight the important information relative to the topic. This helps learners make connections with new learning and prior learning. In this stage, to answer the questions related to the topic being investigated (the social function, text structure, and language features of introducing text), learners in this stage collect some information about the problem through research from sources which including activities such as evaluating books, exploring internets and others information resources critically.

5) Testing the hypothesis. In this step, learners sort out, classify, and identify relationships among the data to find out patterns to answer the formulated questions. They investigate social function, text structure, and language features of the introducing text and compare the model with other examples of the same text type by doing the tasks. Learners collaborate and work together either in pairs or in group to gather and share information about their understanding of the social function, text structure, and language features of the introducing text.

6) Formulating a conclusion. In this stage, learners communicate their answers to the questions orally and/or in writing. They make a conclusion of knowledge they obtained about the social function, text structure, and the language features of the introducing text. By describing the information they have found, learners learnt to confront conflicting ideas and form their own evidence-based opinions, and to be ready to take a stand and defend it. As peers listen to others’ presentation, they take notes and list their questions and prepare to give positive feedback.

7) Creating a text. In this step, learners create texts to express their thoughts or ideas. The steps of creating a text divided into semi-guided and free-guided in which learners work independently with the text. Learners should also be encouraged to utilize self-assessment throughout the learning process. In learning introducing text, the learners are finally asked to do role-play based on some situations related to introducing someone or others. Learners are also asked to write their own e-mail which includes expressions of introducing.
Moreover, related to the levels of inquiry apply in the materials, one of four levels of continuum proposed by Banchi and Bell (2008: 26-27) will be used by the researcher. According to them, there is a four-level continuum—confirmations, structured, guided, and open inquiry which is useful in classifying the levels of inquiry in an activity. The continuum focuses on how much information (e.g., guiding question, procedure, and expected results) is provided to the students and how much guidance the teacher will provide. At the first level, confirmation inquiry, students are provided with the question and procedure (method), and the results are known in advance. At the next level, structured inquiry, the question and procedure are still provided by the teacher; however, students generate an explanation supported by the evidence they have collected. At the third level, guided inquiry, the teacher provides students with only the research question, and students design the procedure (method) to test their question and the resulting explanations. At the fourth and highest level of inquiry, open inquiry, students have the purest opportunities to act like scientists, deriving questions, designing and carrying out investigations, and communicating their results. Considering the levels of inquiry above, the developed materials adapt and apply the guided inquiry level.
e. Bloom Taxonomy

In regard to the process of inquiry, it is expected that the developed materials apply questions which can foster and help the learners to construct their understanding to produce deeper learning. Therefore, the researcher applied the revised Bloom taxonomy (Taxonomy of cognitive objectives) proposed by Krathwohl (2012).

The original taxonomy by Benjamin Bloom is credited with developing a way to categorize levels of reasoning skills in the 1950s. The hierarchy of Bloom’s Taxonomy is often depicted as a pyramid, with simple knowledge-based recall questions at the base. It provided carefully developed definitions for each of the six major categories in the cognitive domain. The categories were Knowledge, Comprehension, Application, Analysis, Synthesis, and Evaluation.

The revised taxonomy have some differences compares to the original one. The differences can be summarized into some points: (1) the names of six major categories were changed from noun to verb forms as thinking is an active process; (2) the subcategories of the six major categories were also replaced by verbs and some subcategories were reorganised; (3) the knowledge category was replaced with the word remebering to describe a category of thinking; (4) comprehension and synthesis were retitled to understanding and creating respectively, in order to better reflect the nature of the thinking defined in each category.

The Structure of the Cognitive Process Dimension of the Revised Taxonomy are shown in the following figure.

In order, the levels are:

- Remember or retrieving relevant knowledge and information from long-term memory.
- Understand or determining the meaning of instructional messages.
- Apply or using a procedure in a given or another familiar situation.
- Analyze or breaking material into its parts and detecting how the parts relate to one another and to an overall structure or purpose.
- Evaluate or justifying based on criteria and standards.
- Create, generating new ideas or putting elements together to form a novel, coherent whole or make an original product.

f. The benefit of Inquiry-based learning

Besides to strengthen the scientific approach, thematic-integrated (inter thematic subjects), and thematic (in a subject) as stated in the Act of Indonesia Education and Cultural Minister number 65 year 2013, inquiry learning offers many benefits for the students and the teacher. Kuhlthau (2007: 24-25) states that in the process of inquiry-based learning, from generating a questions or problem to be solved up to communicating and sharing their findings, learning through inquiry empowers students with the knowledge, skills, and dispositions to become independent thinkers and lifelong learners. Further, she explains that the process helps the students to develop research competency and subject knowledge as well as foster their motivation, reading comprehension, language development, writing ability, cooperative learning, and social skills. In which all of these have been identified as essential for successful lifelong learning.

Through the investigation process, students are able to answer questions, develop solutions, or support certain viewpoints now and in the future time, Alberta Learning (2004: 3). Meanwhile through reflecting on the process during inquiry-based learning activities, students are also given opportunities to explore and understand both the cognitive and affective domains of “learning to learn” (Hacker, 1999; Kuhlthau, 1988). Wells (1999) explains that through inquiry, a student’s meta-cognitive skills can be developed. It is because through inquiry, learners do not just have to memorize material and then reiterate it on a test; instead, they have to develop skills for researching, organizing, thinking abstractly, questioning and reflecting. Meta-cognitive skills are part of the “learning to learn” skills that are transferable to new learning situations, in school and out of school (Hacker, 1999; Kuhlthau, 1988).

Further, the benefit of inquiry learning related to students’ life is proposed by Myers (2001) who explains that by connecting the students' social world with what they are learning; it helps them understand the unknown. Thus, according to him, inquiry is not only developing questions, but examining how these questions impact the world around them also. They concern about their world, historical and cultural world. This is accomplished through their active involvement in their learning.

Finally to be successful inquiry-based learning, in Alberta Education (2004: 15) it is explained that the topics of the inquiry are of personal interest to the students. Students need to have a choice of topics about which they truly wonder and care, and there needs to be an identifiable time when students work on their inquiries, and they also need to be allowed to generate their own topic questions. In other words, interest and motivation are significant elements in inquiry learning. In line with the explanation, Wells (2004: 83) also states that it has to be ensured that the inquiry topics engage the students, and the challenges that are presented to them are connected with their interests, preferences and relevant past and anticipated future experiences.

In sum, through inquiry-based learning, learners can be independent learners and develop their skills and intrinsic motivation which are essential to prepare them for problem solving and lifelong learning. These skills are also applicable to all areas of their life and will help them in their personal, school, work and social lives. In regard to the benefits offered by Inquiry-based learning, later the materials designed are expected to be able to develop this learners’ learning to learn skills.

3. English Learning Materials

a. Definition of Materials

Materials are substantial components in teaching and learning process. Tomlinson (1998: 2) defines materials as anything which is deliberately used to increase the learners’ knowledge and/or experience of the language. Furthermore, he states that materials obviously in the form of cassettes, videos, CD-ROMs, dictionaries, grammar books, readers, workbooks or photocopied exercises. Richards and Schmidt (2002: 322) also describes materials in language teaching as anything which can be used by teachers or learners to facilitate the learning of a language. Materials may be linguistic, visual, auditory, or kinesthetic, and they may be presented in print, audio or video form, on CD-ROMS, on the Internet or through live performance or display. In short, materials refer as anything sources of possible input which can be used by teachers or learners to increase learners’ knowledge and/or experience of the language which are presented in print, audio or video form.

b. Materials development

In Indonesia, schools and even teachers still face difficulties to choose course books which meet their learners’ need and interest to achieve the learning goals; therefore materials development is a recommended way to be applied in teaching and learning situation. Graves (2000: 150) describes materials development as creating, choosing or adapting, and organizing materials and activities so that students can achieve the objectives that will help them reach the goals of the course. Tomlinson (1998: 2) also describes it as anything which is done by people (the writers, the teachers, or the learners) to provide sources of language input of the language which is designed to promote language learning. Therefore, it can be concluded that material development is any activities done by writers, teachers, or learners in ways designed to help the students reach the goals of the course.

c. Consideration for developing materials

There are some principles to be considered in the process of materials development. Hutchinson and Waters (1987: 107-108) propose six principles which will guide materials developers in actual writing of the materials: (1) materials provide stimulus of learning. It means that good materials should encourage learners to learn. Therefore, good materials should contain interesting text, enjoyable activities, opportunities for the learners to use their existing knowledge and skills, and content which both learners and teachers can cope with; (2) materials help to organize the teaching and learning process, by providing a path through the complex mass of the language to be learnt. This principle means to maximize the learning opportunities, good materials should provide a clear and coherent unit structure which will guide the teacher and learners through various activities; (3) materials embody a view of the nature of the language and learning. Therefore, good materials should truly reflect of what a materials developer think and feel about the learning process; (4) materials reflect the nature of the learning task. In another word, good materials should reflect the complexity of the tasks yet appear manageable; (5) materials should introduce teachers to new techniques. This principle means good materials should have a very useful function in broadening the basis of teacher’s training;
(6) good materials should provide model of correct and appropriate language use.

Meanwhile, Tomlinson (2010) denotes that the materials should meet some principles, they are: (1) materials should provide sufficient opportunities for the learners to practice the language in order to achieve the agreed outcomes; (2) the output materials should encourage the learners to practice the real language, than just practicing a particular thing on the developed materials; (3) the output materials should be able to help the learners to be accurate, fluent and effective in using the language in the daily life context;
(4) the output should encourage the students’ feedback.

In addition, Graves (2000: 152-155) also propose fifteen considerations when designing and organizing the activities in the developed materials: (1) the activities should draw learners’ experience and their current situation. The activities also should be relevant to them; (2) the activities should focus on learners’ outside of class needs to meet the learners’ needs; (3) the activities should make the learners feel confident in transferring what they have learnt outside the class; (4) the activities should allow the learners to problem solve, discover, and analyze so that the learners can engage and use the language in the learning process; (5) the activities should help the learners develop specific skills and strategies so that they can transfer skills to other situations; (6) the activities should help the learners learn and practice specific language and skills they need for authentic communication; (7) the activities should integrate the four skills of listening, speaking, reading, and writing because those skills mutually reinforce each other; (8) the activities should enable learners to understand how the text is constructed to make them understand in learning similar texts; (9) the activities should enable learners to understand cultural context and differences; (10) the activities should enable learners to develop social awareness. It means that activities should make the learners have more confident in target culture and at the same time understand their own culture better; (11) the activities should be as authentic as possible to make the learners see relationship and gain experience with real language use; (12) the activities also should be vary the roles and groupings so that the learners get different types of practices and responsibility; (13) the activities should consist of various types and purposes to provide enough practices for the learners; (14) when possible the activities should use authentic texts so that the learners are familiar with the language used in the real world; (15) the activities should employ a variety of materials to engage the learners in the learning process and to meet different learning needs.

Regarding the principles, having an obvious list dealing with aspects to achieve through the materials is necessary. In an attempt to realize such materials, there are some models of materials development to refer.

d. Steps of material development

As a set of materials production done by writers, teachers, or learners to help the students reach the goals of the course of a particular academic period, the materials development process should be well-organized. Jolly and Bolitho in Tomlinson (1998: 98) propose some steps to develop materials as illustrated in the figure below.

Figure 2.3 Jolly and Bolitho’s Material Development Process (1998: 98)
The process of materials development as proposed by Jolly and Bolitho (1998: 97) starts with the identification of needs for materials. In the first place, the teacher identify the learners’ needs to create the materials which meet the learners’ needs. After that in the process of exploration of the needs, the teacher explores the area of need in terms of what language, what meaning, what functions, what skills etc. which need to be presented in the materials. Later by considering the contextual, pedagogical realization and physical production, the teacher finds suitable ideas, contexts, or texts to design appropriate exercise, activities, instruction, and graphic of the materials. After those process of materials production, the learners use the materials and ending with the evaluation whether the materials has met the objectives or not.

Regarding this research, the research procedure in this study used stages of materials design proposed by Jolly and Bolitho (1998) above with some adaptations to meet the conditions of the research. It is because there is no try out in the step of this research.

e. Criteria of good learning materials

Richards (2001: 263) states that good learning materials should be engaging, at an appropriate level of difficulty, and provide motivating and useful practice. Rowntree (1997) in Richards (2001: 263) proposes some criteria of the good materials that they should be:
• arouse the learners’ interest
• remind them of earlier learning
• tell them what they will be learning next
• explain new learning context to them
• relate these ideas to learners’ previous learning
• get learners to think about new content
• help them get feedback about their learning
• encourage them to practice
• make sure they know what they are supposed to be doing
• enable them to check their progress
• help them to do better

(Rowntree 1997, 92)

For Inquiry-based learning materials, good learning materials should consist of:

(1) tasks which facilitate the learners to solve problems from the beginning of the learning process;
(2) tasks which require the learners to formulate problems and propose hypotheses;
(3) tasks which give the learners background knowledge of what they will learn next;
(4) tasks which require the learners to collect data, test the hypotheses, and draw conclusions;
(5) tasks which encourage the learners to practice what they have learnt from the previous parts (to create);
(6) reinforcement tasks which enable the learners to check their progress and help them to do better;
(7) additional tasks which remind the learners of their learning; help the learners get feedback about their learning; and arouse their interest of the learning topic being discussed.

4. Unit Design Development

a. Task continuity

According to Nunan (2004: 125), the terms ‘continuity’, ‘dependency’ and ‘chaining’ refer to the same thing which are the interdependence of tasks, task components and supporting enabling skills within an instructional sequence. Thus, in developing the unit of the materials, the decisions on what to teach first, second, and last is a crucial thing. Krashen (2002) state that in order to have a good organization of tasks, the tasks should be graded well, by considering the level of difficulty, from the easiest to the most difficult, so the goal of language acquisition can be achieved. Nunan (2004) also emphasizes the importance of grading a task in terms of determining the level of difficulty of the task. According to Nunan (2004), determining task difficulty has a crucial role, as without determining the task difficulty, the materials developer will not be able to sequence the task well (2004: 85). Richard, Platt and weber (1986:125) on Nunan (2004: 113) proposes the key principle of task grading as follows:

the arrangement of content of a language course or textbook so that it is presented in a helpful way. Gradation would affect the order in which words, word meanings, tenses, structures, topics, functions, skills, etc. are presented. Gradation may be based on the complexity of an item, its frequency in written or spoken English, or its importance for the learner.

Difficulty in task development may vary in nature. Nunan (2004: 114-115) proposes that difficulty may be categorized by the complexity of grammatical items, such as the length of the text, propositional density, the amount of difficult vocabularies (vocabularies with low frequency to appear), the speed of spoken texts and the number of speakers involved, the explicitness of the information, the discourse structure and the amount of support provided to the listener or reader such as photographs, drawings, tables, graphs. Another factor causing difficulties of the task is the type or genre of the input text. Considering the grade and the sequence of the input is also an important thing for example applying top-down schematic knowledge which can facilitate learning comprehension. Hammond and Derewianka (2001) on Nunan (2004) argue that ‘friendly’ texts will be easier to process than an abstract one.

Referring to the explanations above, it can be concluded that to grade and sequence the tasks well, the process of the components of task and the stages of knowledge acquisition in a classroom activity should be taken into account. Nunan (2004: 126) proposes the task grading in the following table.

</table>
In short, the stages above explain that to develop the unit of the materials, it may start with the comprehension task that only needs receptive skills. The next stage is allowing students to do some simple actions in controlled production activities and exercises and finally to ones requiring authentic communicative interaction in productive activity.

5. Task development

a. Definition of Tasks

Tasks can be defined in some ways. Tomlinson (1998: xvi) defines tasks as activities in which learners are asked to use the target language in order to achieve a particular outcome within a particular context (e.g. solving a problem; planning a meeting; selecting candidates for an interview). A similar definition is given by Richards and Schmidt (2002: 539) who state task is an activity which is designed to help achieve a particular learning goal. Meanwhile, Nunan (2004: 1) defines tasks as real-world or target tasks, and pedagogical tasks. Target tasks, as the name implies, refer to uses of language in the world beyond the classroom; pedagogical tasks are those that occur in the classroom. Furthermore he defines pedagogical task as a piece of classroom work that involves learners in comprehending, manipulating, producing or interacting in the target language meanwhile their attention is focused on mobilizing their grammatical knowledge in order to express meaning, and in which the intention is to convey meaning rather than to manipulate form. Finally, Ellis (2003: 16) defines task as a work plan that requires learners to process language pragmatically in order to achieve an outcome that can be evaluated in terms of whether the correct or appropriate propositional content has been conveyed. From the definitions above, it can be concluded that task can be defined as activities designed to help learners achieve a particular outcome within a particular context.

b. Tasks Components

Nunan (2004: 40) suggests that a task consists of the following elements: content, materials, activities, goals, students, and social community and should contain input, roles, settings, actions, monitoring, outcomes and feedback. Furthermore, he proposes that a minimum specification of task will include goals, input and procedures, and that these will be supported by roles and settings as shown in the following figure.

| Goals → | TASK | ← Teacher role |
|        | Input → | ← Learner role |
|        | Procedure → | ← Setting |

1) Goal

In developing the task, the teacher has to decide the goals of the task first. Goals are the vague, general intentions behind any learning task. It may relate to a range of general outcomes (communicative, affective or cognitive) or may directly describe teacher or learner behavior. Another point worth noting is that goals may not always be explicitly stated although they can usually be inferred from the task itself. Additionally, there is not always a simple one-to-one relationship between goals and tasks (Nunan, 2004: 41-42).

2) Input

The second component of the task is input. ‘Input’ refers to the spoken, written and visual data that learners work with in the course of completing a task. Data can be provided by a teacher, a textbook, some other source, or alternatively can be generated by the learners themselves (Nunan, 2004: 47). It is important for the teacher to give as much as possible opportunities for the learners to engage with authentic materials to comprehend oral and written language outside the class. Authenticity according to Nunan (2004: 49) refers to the use of spoken and written material that has been produced for purposes of communication not for purposes of language teaching. Therefore, for language teaching and learning process which aim both at developing academic skills or preparing students for further study can employ authentic materials.

3) Procedures

The third component of the task is procedures. ‘Procedures’ specify what learners will actually do with the input that forms the point of departure for the learning task (Nunan, 2004: 52).

Some ways of evaluating procedures according to Nunan (2004: 53-56) are: (1) it can be analyzed in the terms of to which the sorts of communicative behaviors tasks might be expected to use in genuine communicative interactions outside the classroom; (2) analyzing in terms of the tasks focus of goal whether they are basically concern with skills getting or skills using; (3) analyzing them those that focus the learner on developing accuracy and those that focus on the development of fluency; (4) analyzing the tasks’ focus of control.

4) Teacher and learners roles

‘Role’ refers to the part that learners and teachers are expected to play in carrying out learning tasks as well as the social and interpersonal relationships between the participants (Nunan, 2004: 64). Considering the statement above, therefore, the developed materials should encourage or allow learners to explore and apply active strategies in the classroom. In addition, for teacher may need to strike a balance between the roles that they feel appropriate and those demanded by the students.

5) Setting

Nunan (2004: 70) defines setting as the classroom arrangements specified or implied in the task. It also requires consideration of whether the task is to be carried out wholly or partly outside the classroom. In line with the definition, Wright (1987: 58) stated that the arrangement of the task can be done individually, in pairs, in groups, or in a whole class mode. In sum, setting can be defined in terms of learning mode and environment. In learning mode, the learners learn based on the class arrangements whether they have to carry the task individually or in group. Meanwhile in learning environment it is about where the learning takes place.

c. Task Types

There are some kinds of task types, but in this discussion, it is limited only to real world task and pedagogic task as proposed by Nunan (2004: 1) and Richard (2001: 162). Nunan (2004: 1) defines tasks as real-world or target tasks, and pedagogical tasks: target tasks, as the name implies, refer to uses of language in the world beyond the classroom; pedagogical tasks are those that occur in the classroom. Further, he (2004: 4) criticizes that a pedagogical task is a piece of classroom work that involves learners in comprehending, manipulating, producing or interacting in the target language meanwhile their attention is focused on mobilizing their grammatical knowledge in order to express meaning, and in which the intention is to convey meaning rather than to manipulate form. In line with the statement, Richards (2001: 162) has proposed the typology of pedagogical tasks which consist of jigsaw tasks, information-gap tasks, problem-solving tasks, decision-making tasks, opinion exchange tasks.

d. Principles of Task-based Language Teaching

To create meaningful tasks, there are some underlying principles to follow. Nunan (2004: 35-38) summarizes seven principles for task-based language teaching as described below.

a) Scaffolding

The first principle state that in the beginning of the learning process, learners should not expect to produce language that has not been introduced before. Therefore, by providing warming-up activities in the materials, it will give supporting framework for the learners to deal with the activities they are going to learn.

b) Task dependency

The second principle in developing a certain set of tasks is that the organization of the tasks is developed in the sequence. For example, when the learners write a certain type of text, the product is the output of the reading activities done before.
Meanwhile, when the learners perform a certain type of text orally, the product is the output of the listening activities done before.

c) Recycling

The third principle states that the developed tasks should provide opportunities to the students to activate the “organic” learning principle. It means that this principle allows the learners to encounter a particular language item and then to introduce the item in a range of different environments. For example, the function of “expressing like and dislike” and “yes/no questions with do/does” will be different in the context of entertainment to the context of food.

d) Active learning

The fourth principle is the importance of active learning within the classroom activities. The point is the learner who is doing the work. It is because learners learn best through doing. Through actively using the language they learn, learners will gain the language maximum exposures.

e) Integration

The developed tasks need to be delivered in ways the students can grasp and create a clear relationship between linguistic form, communicative function and the semantic meaning of the language they are learning. In other words, the grammatical, lexical and phonological components in the developed tasks are taught in integration.

f) Reproduction to creation

The developed task should encourage the learners to do reproductive activities. At first they may reproduce the language models given by the teacher through the book, or the tape. After they have reproduced the language, they need to continue the step into the creative one, by combining the language with their original idea.

g) Reflection

At the end of the developed unit, the learners should be given an opportunity to make reflection on what they have learned and how well they are doing.

6. Materials Evaluation

Materials evaluation is a crucial step in the process of developing learning materials. Tomlinson (1998) states that material evaluation aims to measure the value of the materials. He also states that materials evaluation is the systematic appraisal of the value of materials in relation to their objectives and to the objectives of the learners using them. Evaluation can be pre-use or focuses on predictions of potential value. It can be whilst-use or focuses on awareness and description of what the learners are actually doing whilst the materials are being used. And it can also be post-use and focuses on evaluation of what happened as a result of using the materials. Richards and Schmidt (2002: 322) also defines materials evaluation in language teaching as the process of measuring the value and effectiveness of learning materials. This evaluation aims to find out, which components of the learning materials need to be fixed and improve for the sake of learning outcomes improvement. In sum, it can be concluded that material evaluation is the systemic appraisal to measure the value and effectiveness of materials in relation to learners and learning objectives.

Regarding to the context in this research, this study used the expert judgment questionnaire to know their opinion and suggestion toward the materials. The materials are evaluated by materials evaluators by referring to the guideline of materials evaluation (Instrumen Penilaian Buku Bahasa Inggris SMA) as proposed by government. The aspects of materials evaluation cover; content appropriateness, presentation appropriateness, language appropriateness and lay-out appropriateness of each unit of the developed materials.

B. Conceptual Framework

The purpose of this research is to develop appropriate inquiry-based learning materials for grade ten of senior high school. The reason to conduct the study is based on the consideration of the objectives of the teaching and learning process in senior high school which is aimed to improve English communication ability including all four skills in written and spoken form and the application of the new curriculum 2013 which applies scientific method. The Act of Indonesian Education and Cultural Minister number 65 year 2013 state that to strengthen the scientific approach, thematic-integrated (inter thematic subjects), and thematic (in a subject), discovery / inquiry learning can be applied. Another consideration is the learning materials because materials are important components within the curriculum and are the most substantial and visible component of pedagogy (Nunan, 1991: 22). However, in reality, most the materials used in some schools have not applied scientific method yet. In addition, the usage of students’ worksheet (LKS) and materials from online sources do not represent the scientific concept in the new curriculum. Those language used in the existing materials are also not relevant to the learners’ need.

Considering the problems above, it is necessary to develop inquiry-based learning materials for grade ten of senior high school because these materials are expected to encourage learners’ scientific attitude and knowledge for lifelong learning. According to Wells (1999) inquiry is pursuing significant questions through using questions and ways of researching from a range of knowledge systems. Meanwhile, looking from the scientific process, Llewellyn (2005: 24) defines inquiry as learners’ active exploration using their critical, logical, and creative thinking skills to propose questions of the topic they engaged. In line with the processes, Kuhlthau (2007: 24-25) states that in the process of inquiry-based learning, from generating a questions or problem to be solved up to communicating and sharing their findings, learning through inquiry empowers students with the knowledge, skills, and dispositions to become independent thinkers and lifelong learners. Hacker (1999) adds that through reflecting on the process during inquiry-based learning activities, students are given opportunities to explore and understand both the cognitive and affective domains of “learning to learn”.

There are some various steps of inquiry-based learning proposed by some scholars. In general, the steps are orientation, formulating problems, proposing hypotheses, collecting data, testing hypotheses, and formulating conclusions. Therefore, the design of inquiry-based learning materials will involve in the construction of knowledge through learners’ active involvement through, observations, collect, analyze, synthesize information, and draw conclusions to foster some skills for successful lifelong learning.
CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

This chapter describes the methodology of the research. It puts the emphasis on the type of the research, research setting, research subject, research procedure, research instruments, data collection technique, and data analysis technique.

A. Type of the research

The objective of this research is to develop appropriate inquiry-based learning materials for the grade X of senior high school; therefore, this research is classified as Research and Development (R & D). Borg and Gall (1983: 772) define the term R & D as a process used to develop and validate educational product. Related to the product, further they (2003: 569) state that the findings of the R & D research are used to design new products and procedures, which systematically field-tested, evaluated, and refined until they meet specified criteria of effectiveness, quality, or similar standards. A similar definition of the term R & D is given by Gay (1983: 10) who defines R & D as an effort to develop an effective product that can be applied for the educational program.

The final product of this research is the materials developed based on the result of need analysis. Thus, the materials are expected to meet the students’ needs.
B. Research Setting

The research was conducted in May 2014 at SMA 2 Yogyakarta which is located in jalan Bener, Tegalrejo, Yogyakarta. In this school, there are 27 classes in which in each grade there are 9 classes.

C. Research Subject

The subjects of this research study were the students of grade X class X PMIIA 3. The number of research subject was 30 students. The study focuses on developing appropriate inquiry-based learning materials for grade ten of senior high school.

D. Research Procedure

Research procedure used in this study combined the model of R n D cycle proposed by Borg and Gall (2003: 570) and stages of materials design proposed by Jolly and Bolitho in Tomlinson (1998) with some adaptation to meet the conditions of the research. The scheme of steps of materials development in this research is shown in figure below.

1. Conducting needs analysis

The need analysis was the first stage conducted in this study. The data were obtained by distributing questionnaire among grade X students of SMA 2 Yogyakarta. Conducting need analysis is needed to collect specific information related to learners’ learning needs and target needs. This analysis was then used as a basis on developing inquiry-based learning materials which were suitable to what students really need.

2. Writing the course grid

In this stage the course grid was developed based on the students’ needs which were previously assessed through need assessment questionnaire. There was also consideration about core competences and standard competences which underlay English teaching in SMA. The course grid was made to plan, order, and organize the content of the materials. It became a guideline to develop the tasks of the learning materials.

3. Developing the materials

The English learning materials were developed based on the course grid. The materials covered all the four skills and there were three units that have been developed.

4. Expert judgment

After the first draft has been designed, as a means to evaluate the developed materials, expert judgment questionnaire was proposed to the materials expert to assess whether the materials had meet the requirements of appropriate content, language used, presentation, and graphic. The expert judgment questionnaire was adapted from the criteria proposed by BSNP (2011). The expert was also provided some spaces to write their opinions and suggestions.

5. Revising

After getting the feedback from the expert judgment, the result of the expert judgment questionnaire were analyzed and used to evaluate and revise the first draft of the materials. Based on the revision, the researcher created the final draft of the material design.

E. Research Instruments

The instruments which the researcher used in collecting the data for the purpose of this research was questionnaires. There were two kinds of questionnaires guidelines used here and they were distributed twice. The first were made for obtaining the data for the learners’ need and the learning need analysis and this type was for students. Meanwhile the second was expert judgment questionnaire and this type was proposed to the materials expert as a means to evaluate the developed materials. The outline of the questionnaire for needs analysis is listed below.

The second instrument was questionnaire used to assess the materials (Expert Judgment). The questionnaires were distributed to expert of materials of English Education Department. Since each unit was evaluated through a questionnaire, there were three questionnaires to distribute to the expert. The questions were adapted from BSNP of Instrumen Penilaian Buku Bahasa Inggris SMA. The organization of the second questionnaire is listed below.

F. Data Collection Technique

As the researcher has explained earlier, the data of this research were collected twice. Firstly, the data about the learners’ needs and the learning needs analysis collected by distributing the first questionnaire guidelines. Secondly, the researcher collected the data about the evaluation of the developed materials from the expert judgment questionnaire.

G. Data Analysis Technique

The type of data collected was quantitative data obtained from the questionnaires. The researcher employed the mode of data analysis as follows:
a. Needs analysis questionnaire

This research was using two kinds of questionnaire, which were analyzed differently. The data of need analysis questionnaire were analyzed using frequencies and percentages. The highest percentages of the answers of each question were considered representing the students’ needs. The percentage is calculated by dividing the frequency by the total of the respondents and then result is multiplied by 100%.

b. Expert judgment questionnaire

Meanwhile, for the second questionnaires to evaluate the developed materials proposed to the expert judgment, the questionnaire used Likert-Scale as the measurement. The results of the questionnaire were calculated by using the formula proposed by Suharto (2006: 52-53).

Based on the result of the materials evaluation, it was found that the highest score was 4 and the lowest score was 3 then,

R = \frac{4 - 3}{4} = 0.25

The data calculation above shows that the range of each four categories was 0.25. Then, the results of the calculation were converted to descriptive analysis in terms of its goodness as proposed by Suharto (2006: 52 - 53). The indicator to measure is the Mean (X).

CHAPTER IV

RESEARCH FINDINGS AND DISCUSSIONS

This chapter presents the findings and discussions of the research. It provides the description of the research findings and discussions. The research findings consist of the results of the needs analysis, the course grid, the first draft materials and the expert judgment.

A. Research Findings

1. The Results of the Needs Analysis

The first stage of the research was conducting a needs analysis. The needs analysis was conducted to assess the target and learning needs of the students. The questionnaire was distributed in May, 9th 2014. The questionnaire was in the form of multiple choices questions and the students were allowed to choose more than one option. The highest percentage was considered as students need.

a. Target needs

Hutchinson and Waters (1987) define the target needs as learners’ view about the target situation. The analysis of the target needs is divided into three points which are necessities, lacks, and wants.

a) Necessities

Necessities are defined as the type of needs determined by the demands of the target situation. The following tables show the views of SMA N
2 Yogyakarta students about the target goals and the demand of their target situation.

In terms of goal the students want to reach in learning English, from the result above it can be seen that 53.33 % of the respondents learn English to support their later education and job.

In terms of the demand of target situation, the tendency as shown on the table shows that 90% of the students claim they need to be in advance level in order to support their later education and job.

b) Lacks

Lacks is the gap between what the learners know already and what the learners do not know. The students’ views about their lacks are shown in the following tables.

c) Wants

Wants is what the learners expect about language area that they want to master. The following tables show students’ general wants in learning English.

From the result above, in the terms of learning topic or theme, 40 % of respondents or the highest percentage like to learn topics or themes which relate to their daily life.

b. Learning needs

To differentiate between target needs and learning needs, Hutchinson and Waters (1987: 54) state that learning needs refer to what the learners need to do in order to learn. As stated by Nunan (2004) learning needs are represented through seven components of task. The analysis of learning needs of the students is divided into some points which are input, procedures, learners’ role, teacher’s role, and setting as seen from the task components point of view.

a) Input

Input’ refers to the spoken, written and visual data that learners work with in the course of completing a task. The students’ view about the input that should be carried out in the designed task is shown in the following tables.

Table 4.7 Learning needs (listening input)

From the result above it can be seen that 63.33 \% of respondents think the appropriate materials for them in listening activities are authentic materials; meanwhile in terms of the length of listening input, half of respondents admit that they can acquire intermediate number of words.

b) Procedures

Procedures specify what learners will actually do with the input that forms the point of departure for the learning task. The students’ view about the procedures of what they should do with the task is shown in the following tables.

From the table above, it can be seen that the highest percentage or 66.66 % of students sometimes identify things they have not understand when they are learning English. A half of the respondents (50 %) also answer that they sometimes formulate their own questions in learning English. 36.66 % of the students also state that they usually formulate their own hypothesis to answer the questions they formulate before and they usually use some learning sources in answering the questions. The result of the table above also shows that most of the students as individual or in group usually use the data they collect before to answer the questions and 40 % of the respondents also answer that they sometimes communicate the answers of the questions to the others.

In terms of the teacher’s role, almost half of the students (43% of the students) wish the teacher to create an active environment for the students to involve in solving and doing the task followed by give suggestion, correction, and comment in every result of students’ learning.

e) Setting

Setting can be defined as the classroom arrangements specified or implied in the task. It also requires consideration of whether the task is to be carried out wholly or partly outside the classroom. The students’ view about the setting of how the task should be carried out is shown in the following tables.

In terms of setting, it is shown that most of the students 36% and 33% of the students feel more confident to learn English both outside and inside the classroom. Moreover, for the classroom arrangement, it can be seen that the highest percentage or 30% of the respondents prefer to learn in small group consists of 3 – 4 people.

2. Course Grid

After the needs analysis was conducted and the results were analyzed, the course grid was designed by referring to the result of the students’ needs analysis questionnaire. The course grid was also designed by referring to the English curriculum in Curriculum 2013 for Senior High School. It consists of the identity of the course grid, the number and names of the unit, the titles of the unit, the topic of the unit, the basic competencies, indicators, language focus, language functions, type of tasks, procedures to do the tasks and also the sources taken to develop Inquiry-based learning materials for grade X students of Senior High School.

a. Course Grid of Unit 1

Unit 1 covers basic competencies (1.1; 2.2; 3.1; 4.1; 4.2). The topic of this unit is introducing oneself and others. The grammar is simple present tense. The complete version of the course grid for unit 1 is available in the Appendices.

b. Course Grid of Unit 2

Unit 2 covers basic competencies (1.1; 2.1; 2.3; 3.2; 3.4; 4.3). The topics of this unit are compliment and congratulate others. The grammars are noun and noun phrase. The complete version of the course grid for unit 2 is available in the Appendices.

c. Course Grid of Unit 3

Unit 3 covers basic competencies (1.1; 2.1; 3.7; 4.8; 4.10). The topic of this unit is favorite figure of people. The grammar is simple present tense. The complete version of the course grid for unit 3 is available in the Appendices.

3. The first draft of the materials

The first draft of materials is Inquiry-based learning materials which consist of three units. Each unit consists of about 27 tasks divided into four main parts; Introduction, Main Lesson, Reinforcement and Fun Spaces and Cultural Shot.
As presented in the diagram above, each unit of the materials has four main parts. The introduction part consists of several tasks. The tasks divided into orientation, formulating problems and proposing hypotheses, and getting started. Orientation and formulating problems and proposing hypotheses are steps of Inquiry-based learning which are adapted into the materials. Different from getting started, in “orientation” part by presenting the topic and the objectives of the learning in each sections (Listening and Speaking section and Reading and Writing section) to the learners, this part functions to encourage the learners to think to solve the problems from the beginning of the learning process. In “formulating problems”, the learners study the topic and the learning objectives. The learners will be asked to make questions. This part is designed to stimulate learners’ exploration to make relevant questions related to the topic and the learning objectives. Later in “proposing hypotheses”, the learners will be asked to brainstorm possible answers and propose temporary answer of the questions in “formulating the problem” part based on their current knowledge. While “orientation” part encourages the learners to think to solve the problems from the beginning of the learning process, “getting started” part consists of a few tasks that gives the learners’ background knowledge especially related to the topic before going to the main lesson.

The main lesson consists of several tasks that are designed to lead the learners to achieve the target competencies stated in the learning objectives. The tasks are divided into two main parts: let’s act and let’s do more. In let’s act, it is the combination of some following steps related to approach that the researcher used. They are “collecting data”, “testing the hypothesis”, and “formulating conclusions”. This part aims to guide the learners to collect information and identify the answers of the questions that they proposed before. Learners can collaborate and work together either in pairs or in group to gather the answers. Next, they should present or communicate the answers of the questions orally and/or in writing to the class. Last, in let’s do more, the learners will be asked to create a text. The tasks in “creating” part are divided into semi-guided and free-guided tasks in which the learners work independently with the text.

Following the main lesson is reinforcement. Reinforcement part consists of four sections. They are homework, let’s check your competence, self-reflection, and summary. Homework and let’s check your competence parts aim to help the learners to recall, check and enrich their understanding of what they have learnt in the materials. Another section is self-reflection. This part gives opportunity for the learners to do their own-self assessment and reflect the process of their learning and how much they learnt. While summary part contains the summary of the main lesson of each unit of the materials. Additionally, every unit is also featured with fun spaces or cultural shot which are relevant with the materials.

4. The expert judgment

After all of the units of the materials were developed, the materials were then evaluated by an expert. The purpose of the evaluation was to get the expert’s opinion about the first draft of the materials. The instrument for the expert judgment was a questionnaire. The item of the questionnaire were adapted from Standard of Course Book Assessment for Senior High School by BSNP and it consists of content appropriateness, language appropriateness, presentation appropriateness, and graphic appropriateness.

There was an expert who evaluated the materials in this stage. The materials expert is a credible lecturer from English Language Department of Yogyakarta State University. The expert was to fill the questionnaire about the appropriateness of the materials. He gave the assessment by choosing the option “SA”, “A”, “D”, and “SD”.

The result of the expert judgment questionnaire were then analyzed and used to evaluate and revise the first draft of the materials. The results of the questionnaire were analyzed using descriptive statistics. Central tendency was employed to analyze the result and the mean (x) was used as the measure of the tendency.

</table>

From the table above, it can be seen that the mean value of the appropriateness of the content of unit 1 is 3.7. The value is in the range of $3.5 < X \leq 3.74$ which falls into the “good” category.

b) The Appropriateness of the Language

The second aspect to evaluate was the appropriateness of the language. The language in this context refers to the language of the instructions and the language of the texts in the materials. Table 4.23 shows the results of language appropriateness analysis of the Unit 1 of the developed materials.

Table 4.23 The Appropriateness of the Language of Unit 1

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Related to the appropriateness of the language use of Unit 1, the mean value is 3.83. It is categorized as “very good” as the value is in the range of $3.75 < X \leq 4$.

c) The Appropriateness of the Presentation

The third aspect to evaluate is the appropriateness of the presentation of the materials. The following table shows the results of the presentation appropriateness of the Unit 1 of the developed materials.

The table above shows that the mean value of the appropriateness of the presentation of unit 1 is 3.94. It is categorized as “very good” because its position is in the range of $3.75 < X \leq 4$.

d) The Appropriateness of the Graphic

The last aspect to evaluate was the appropriateness of the graphic. The graphic evaluation consists of the appropriateness of the layout, the illustration, and the font that are used. The appropriateness of the graphic of the Unit 1 of the developed materials can be seen in the following table.

Table 4.25 The Appropriateness of the Graphic of Unit 1

<table>

<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>The use of font type in the learning materials can be easily read by the learners.</td>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

From the table above, it can be seen that the mean value of the appropriateness of graphic of unit 1 is 3.5. The value is in the range of $3.5 < X \leq 3.74$. It means that the aspect falls into a “good” category.
2) The Revisions of Unit 1

Based on the result of the expert judgment and suggestions proposed by the expert, the materials in the Unit 1 are good enough. However, there are still some aspects that need revision as described below.

Firstly, in terms of content appropriateness, there is only a minor weaknesses. The suggestion proposed by the expert is that the teaching of the social function, linguistic features, and the text structure should be more detail.

The second aspect is language. There are a few grammatical and spelling mistakes in the developed unit. Some grammatical and spelling revisions are needed to revise the unit.

Thirdly, in terms of presentation, there is only a minor weaknesses. The expert suggests that there should be an additional task to guide the learners to produce or create a text.

Finally, in terms of graphic, there are some suggestions proposed by the expert that there should be an additional space for the learners to do their tasks and some pictures can be added to help the learners to create the text being discussed.

The following table describes the points of revisions of Unit 1 and their revisions.

b. The Results of the Expert Judgment and Revision of Unit Two

1) The Results of the Expert Judgment

a) The appropriateness of content

The first aspect to evaluate was the appropriateness of the content.

The table below shows the results of content appropriateness analysis of the Unit 2 of the developed materials.

d) The Appropriateness of the Graphic

The last aspect to evaluate was the appropriateness of the graphic.

The graphic evaluation consists of the appropriateness of the lay out, the illustration, and the font that are used. The appropriateness of the graphic of the Unit 2 of the developed materials can be seen in the following table.

4. The use of font type in the learning materials can be easily read by the learners.

From the table above, it can be seen that the mean value of the appropriateness of graphic of unit 2 is 3.5. The value is in the range of $3.5 < X \leq 3.74$. It means that the aspect falls into a “good” category.

2) The Revisions of Unit 2

Based on the result of evaluation of all aspects of the materials, the materials in Unit 2 are considered appropriate. However, there are still some mistakes found in the materials. The suggestions are described below.

In terms of content, the only suggestion proposed by the expert is that the teaching of the social function, linguistic features, and the text structure should be more detail.

In terms of language, the expert recommends some grammatical revisions in the tasks. In term of presentation, the expert suggests an additional task to guide the learners to produce or create a text.

In term of graphic, the expert suggests some changes in the lay-out of the tables in task. Some spaces and pictures can be added to help the learners to do their tasks and create the text being discussed.

c. The Results of the Expert Judgment and Revision of Unit Three

1) The Results of the Expert Judgment

a) The appropriateness of content

The first aspect to evaluate was the appropriateness of the content.

</table>
From the table above, it can be seen that the mean value of the appropriateness of the content of unit 2 is 4.00. The value is in the range of $3.5 < X \leq 4$ which falls into the “very good” category.

b) The Appropriateness of the Language

The second aspect to evaluate was the appropriateness of the language. The language in this context refers to the language of the instructions and the language of the texts in the materials. Table 4.33 shows the results of language appropriateness analysis of the Unit 3 of the developed materials.

Related to the appropriateness of the language use of Unit 3, the mean value is 3.83. It is categorized as “very good” as the value is in the range of $3.75 < X \leq 4$.
c) The Appropriateness of the Presentation

The third aspect to evaluate is the appropriateness of the presentation of the materials. The following table shows the results of the presentation appropriateness of the Unit 3 of the developed materials.

After formulating questions, learners propose temporary answers of those questions.

After proposing temporary answers, learners collect information, identify the correct answers of the questions, and communicate the answers to others.

The learning materials are featured with the summary of the main lesson in each unit.

The learning materials are featured with homework tasks.

The learning materials are featured with evaluation tasks.

The learning materials are featured with cultural or fun part which are relevant to the learning process.

The table above shows that the mean value of the appropriateness of the presentation of unit 3 is 3.94. It is categorized as “very good” because its position is in the range of $3.75 < X \leq 4$.

d) The Appropriateness of the Graphic

The last aspect to evaluate was the appropriateness of the graphic. The graphic evaluation consists of the appropriateness of the lay out, the illustration, and the font that are used. The appropriateness of the graphic of the Unit 3 of the developed materials can be seen in the following table.

4. The use of font type in the learning materials can be easily read by the learners.

From the table above, it can be seen that the mean value of the appropriateness of graphic of unit 3 is 4.00. The value is in the range of $3.75 < X \leq 4$. It means that the aspect falls into the “very good” category.

2) The Revisions of Unit 3

The means of all aspects of materials evaluation show that the materials of Unit 3 are considered to be appropriate in terms of content, language, presentation and graphic.

First of all, in terms of content there is no specific suggestion proposed by the expert. The content is excellent and needs no revision.

The second aspect to evaluate is language. There are only minor grammatical mistakes need to revise within the unit.

In terms of presentation, there is a minor weaknesses. The expert recommends an additional task to guide the learners to produce or create a text.

The last aspect to evaluate is graphic. The expert agrees that the layout are excellent. There is no weakness found in terms of the lay-out of unit 3.

B. Discussion

The learning materials which are developed in this research is addressed to grade X students of Senior High School. In designing the materials, there are some steps that must be conducted. This first step was started from the process of conducting needs analysis. The data of the need analysis were obtained by distributing questionnaire to the students of grade X. Conducting needs analysis is needed to collect specific information relate to learner’s learning needs and target needs. Therefore, the questionnaire were developed in accordance with the principle of needs analysis proposed by Hutchinson and Waters (1987). In addition, in terms of target needs, the analysis were divided into three components which are necessities, lacks, and wants as in line with Hutchinson and Waters (1987) theory. The results of the needs analysis were then used a basis to develop the Inquiry-based learning materials which are suitable to learners’ needs.

The second part of the target needs refers to learning needs. According to Hutchinson and Waters (1987: 54), learning needs refer to what the learners need to do in order to learn. The results of analysis were also used to determine the task’s components of the developed units. The analysis were divided into some key components which are input, activities (procedure), setting, learners’ role, and teacher’s role as in line with task component theory proposed by Nunan (2004).
First is input. Based on the result of the needs analysis, the input text needed by the learners are those related to their daily lives. Since the developed materials cover all the learning skills, the input text given was in the form of spoken and written text. Most of the learners consider authentic materials such as news, radio broadcasts, movies, and songs or monolog and dialog with some pictures provided in intermediate number of words as the appropriate materials to be learnt.

The second component is procedure (activities). Since the materials were developed based on Inquiry-based learning, the needs analysis also examine the use of the steps of inquiry process in the procedure of the developed units as in line with Llewellyn theory (2005). Llewellyn (2005: 24) defines inquiry as learners’ active exploration using their critical, logical, and creative thinking skills to propose questions of the topic they engaged. By referring to the needs analysis results, most of the students claim that sometimes they identify things they have not understood first when they are learning English. They also sometimes formulate their own questions and hypothesis, use some learning sources in answering the questions, use the data they collect before to answer the questions, and finally present the answers to the class when they learn English.

Learners answered differently to the questions related to activities. Most of learners choose answering questions based on the text to assist them learning listening and writing. In terms of the speaking activities, most learners state they want doing role-playing; meanwhile for the pronunciation activities, the results of the needs analysis shows that the learners like to listen and repeat after the teacher. In writing activities, the two options with highest percentage in the needs analysis show that most of learners want to write the same text with the model text and write text based on pictures, tables, diagrams, or graphic. To assist them in learning grammar, most of the learners answer that they like to identify the wrong sentence structure and then correct it, meanwhile for vocabularies activities, they want to find new vocabulary in the text or the meaning in dictionary.

The third component is setting. Nunan (2004) describes the term setting as the classroom arrangements specified or implied in the task. The needs analysis reveal that most of the learners prefer working in small groups consisting of 3 – 4 people, individually, and in pairs. To meet the needs, the tasks are designed mostly in pairs and in small group consisting of 3 – 4 people.

The last aspect is learners’ role and teacher’s role. Based on the results of the needs analysis, in terms of learners’ role, most of learners consider that they want to do discussion and involve in active investigation to solve and do the task. Meanwhile, in terms of teacher’s role, almost a half of the learners wish the teacher to create an active environment for them to involve in solving and doing the task. Therefore, to meet the needs, most of the developed tasks emphasize the process of investigation and discussions.

The next step after conducting need analysis is developing a course grid. It is in accordance with stages of materials design proposed by Jolly.
and Bolitho in Tomlinson (1998). Before the materials are developed, the course grid was made as a guideline to develop the tasks. The course grid was developed based on the students’ needs which were previously assessed through needs assessment questionnaire. There was also consideration about core competences and standard competences which underlay English teaching in SMA.

The materials cover all the four skills. The materials which include the four skills are based on Grave theory (2000) stating that activities should integrate the four skills of speaking, listening, reading, and writing because those skills mutually reinforce each other. In the developed materials, there are three units. Each unit consists of different number of tasks. The first unit consists of 32 tasks, the second unit consist of 31 tasks, and the last unit consist of 28 tasks. Despite the fact that each unit consists of random number of tasks, they have similar pattern. The unit is started with the title of the unit, a picture describing the topic of discussion, and a brief description about the unit. The first task is “orientation” that is the first step of Inquiry-based learning. This part functions to encourage the learners to think to solve the problems from the beginning of the learning process. The second task is “formulating problem” and “proposing hypothesis”. These tasks are designed to stimulate learners’ exploration to make relevant questions and answers related to the topic and the learning objectives being studied. After that, the task is a lead-in task that is developed to give the learners’ background knowledge especially related to the topic before going to the main lesson. The second part is the main materials which cover the two cycles (listening-speaking and reading-writing). This part is divided into two main parts: let’s act and let’s do more. In let’s act, it is the combination of “collecting data”, “testing the hypothesis”, and “formulating conclusions”. It provides the learners with sufficient number of tasks which aim to guide the learners to collect information, identify the answers of the questions that they proposed, and finally present or communicate the answers of the questions orally and/or in writing to the class. Meanwhile in let’s do more, the learners will be asked to create a text.

The developed materials are also featured with reinforcement part which consists of four sections. Homework and let’s check your competence parts are designed to help the learners to recall, check and enrich their understanding of what they have learnt in the materials. Meanwhile there are also a summary part entitled “Let’s make a summary” and a self-assessment part entitled “Let’s make a reflection”. Additionally, every unit is also featured with fun spaces or cultural shot which are relevant with the materials.

The next stage after materials’ development is materials evaluation. As a means to evaluate the developed materials, four point Likert-scale questionnaire were proposed to the materials’ expert. The items of the questionnaire were adapted from BSNP of Instrumen Penilaian Buku Bahasa Inggris SMA that evaluate the appropriateness of the content, language, presentation, and graphic of the developed materials. Based on the results, Inquiry-based learning materials that are developed are considered appropriate for grade X students of senior high school.
CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

This research has three main objectives namely finding out the target needs and the learning needs of grade X students of senior high school, and developing an appropriate Inquiry-based learning materials for the grade X students of senior high school. This chapter describes the conclusions drawn from the findings and the discussions of the research and presents suggestions propose to other materials developers and the teachers of senior high school.

A. Conclusions

1. Target Needs

Based on the results of the needs analysis, it can be concluded that the target needs can be listed as follows:

a. The main goal of the learners to learn English is to support their later education and job.

b. Most of the learners’ current level of English proficiency is intermediate. They can understand the content or the purpose of complicated texts and give comments or opinions about the texts. However, they state that they need to be in advance level in order to support their later education and job.

c. Most of the learners admit that they find some difficulties in communicating English especially related to listening and vocabulary.
d. Most of the learners state that English language teaching and learning process should make them communicate well in English.

e. Most of the learners state that they like to learn English through topics or themes which are related to their daily life.

2. Learning needs

In terms of learning needs, the learners’ view about what they need to do in order to learn is classified into some components. The first component is the input, the learners need texts which relate to their daily life and consist of intermediate number of words. The learners also need some pictures and new vocabularies provided related to the topic being discussed. In terms of activity, the learners prefer answering some comprehensive questions based on the texts given, doing role-playing, listening and repeating after the teacher to learn pronunciation, writing the same text with the model text, writing text based on pictures, tables, diagrams, or graphic, identifying the wrong sentence structure, and finding new vocabulary in the text or the meaning in dictionary. To do the tasks, learners prefer working in small groups consisting of 3 – 4 people, in pairs, or individually in outside or inside the classroom. Meanwhile in terms of teacher’s and learners’ role, the learners want the teacher to create an active environment for the students to do discussion and involve in doing and solving the task.
3. Characteristics of Inquiry-based learning materials for grade X students of Senior High School.

Based on the results of materials evaluation, the developed materials are considered to be appropriate. The following paragraphs describe the characteristics of the developed materials.

The first part of each unit is the title of the unit. The three units have a title that reflects the topic of the unit. The title is featured with pictures and an overview paragraph which function as an attention getter. It gives the learners a more explanation of what they are going to do.

Then, following the title is the main parts of the unit. Each unit of the materials has four main parts. The introduction part consists of several tasks. Firstly, there are orientation, formulating problems and proposing hypotheses which are steps of Inquiry-based learning adapted into the materials. This part is aimed to encourage the learners to think to solve the problems from the beginning of the learning process and to stimulate learners’ exploration to make relevant questions and the answers relate to the topic and the learning objectives. The next part is a warming-up task. This task functions to give the learners modality to learn the topic of the unit before going to the main lesson.

The next part is the main lesson of the unit. It is divided into two main parts: let’s act and let’s do more. The tasks provided in Let’s Act are designed to lead the learners to achieve the target competencies stated in the learning objectives. This part is also aimed to guide the learners to collect information, identify the answers of the questions that they proposed before, and finally present the answers of the questions orally and/or in writing to the class. After the learners are given sufficient inputs through the process of doing the tasks, then they are given a chance to produce certain text types in Let’s Do More.

The last part of the unit is the reinforcement. Reinforcement part consists of homework, let’s check your competence, self-reflection, and summary sections. Homework and let’s check your competence represent the topic of the unit. By doing homework and evaluation, learners have more time to recall and check their understanding of what they have learnt before. Another part is self-reflection. The availability of this assessment is important for the learners to check the process of their learning and how much they learnt. The last part is summary. By exploring this part, it will be easier for the learners to access the main lesson of each unit of the materials. In addition to the main parts of the unit, there are relevant fun spaces or cultural shots in each unit of the materials.

B. Suggestions

The final product of this research is Inquiry-based learning materials for grade X students of senior high school. Considering the research findings, there are some suggestions proposed to the English teacher in senior high school and other materials developers who conduct similar research.
The first suggestion is that the English teacher in senior high school and the materials developers may develop Inquiry-based learning materials which relate to learners’ daily lives. The results of the needs analysis show that the input text needed by the learners are those related to their daily lives in family, school, and society.

The second suggestion is related to the input of the materials. Based on the needs analysis, learners like to learn authentic materials which are in the intermediate level. Authentic materials such as news, radio broadcasts, movies, and songs or monolog and dialog with some pictures and new vocabulary are considered as appropriate input.

The third suggestion is concerned with the learners’ role and teacher’s role. From the results of the needs analysis, it is suggested that the design of the materials should encourage the learners to do discussion and involve in active investigation to solve and do the tasks.

Finally, because there is no try out in the step of this research, it is suggested for the teachers or the other materials developers to try out the developed materials in the learning process. It will be better if the learners are also given an opportunity to give their opinion related to the developed materials.

II. Analisis kebutuhan siswa dalam pembelajaran bahasa Inggris
1. Apakah tujuan Anda belajar bahasa Inggris di sekolah?
   a. Agar mendapatkan nilai rapor yang bagus.
   b. Agar memenuhi syarat lulus Ujian Nasional.
   c. Agar menunjang pendidikan di jenjang yang lebih tinggi atau pekerjaan setelah lulus sekolah.
   d. Agar mendapatkan pengetahuan tentang bahasa Inggris dan budayanya sehingga dapat berkomunikasi dengan baik dalam bahasa Inggris.
   e. Lainnya
      (tuliskan)........................................................................................................
2. Kemampuan bahasa Inggris Anda saat ini berada pada level...
   a. pemula (beginner): dapat memahami kalimat dan ungkapan sederhana yang sering muncul dalam kehidupan sehari-hari.
   b. menengah (intermediate): dapat memahami inti atau maksud dari teks yang rumit dan memberi tanggapan mengenai teks.
   c. mahir (advanced): dapat memahami berbagai macam teks dan memahami makna tersirat yang terdapat dalam sebuah teks.
   d. lainnya
      (tuliskan)........................................................................................................
3. Kesulitan berkomunikasi dalam bahasa Inggris yang sering Anda alami adalah dalam hal (jawaban boleh lebih dari satu)...
   a. listening
   b. speaking
   c. reading
   d. writing
   e. vocabulary
   f. grammar
   g. pronunciation
   h. lainnya
   (tuliskan).............................

4. Untuk dapat menunjang pendidikan ke jenjang yang lebih tinggi atau menunjang pekerjaan Anda kelak, seharusnya Anda berada pada level?
   a. Pemula (beginner): dapat memahami kalimat dan ungkapan sederhana yang sering muncul dalam kehidupan sehari-hari.
   b. Menengah (intermediate): dapat memahami inti atau maksud dari teks yang rumit dan memberi tanggapan mengenai teks.
   c. Mahir (advanced): dapat memahami berbagai macam teks dan memahami makna tersirat yang terdapat dalam sebuah teks.
   d. Lainnya
   (tuliskan).................................................................

5. Pelajaran bahasa Inggris seharusnya dapat membuat Anda...
   a. memahami ungkapan-ungkapan bahasa Inggris.
   b. memahami berbagai macam teks bahasa Inggris.
   c. memahami kata-kata dalam bahasa Inggris termasuk arti dan cara pengucapannya yang baik dan benar.
   d. berkomunikasi dengan baik dalam bahasa Inggris.
   e. lainnya
   (tuliskan)........................................................................................................

6. Apakah Anda terbiasa mengidentifikasi hal-hal yang belum Anda mengerti ketika belajar Bahasa Inggris?
   a. Ya.
   b. Sering.
   c. Kadang-kadang.
   d. Tidak.

7. Apakah Anda terbiasa merumuskan pertanyaan-pertanyaan Anda sendiri dalam belajar Bahasa Inggris?
   a. Ya.
   b. Sering
   c. Kadang-kadang.
8. Apakah Anda terbiasa merumuskan jawaban sementara Anda sendiri dari pertanyaan-pertanyaan yang Anda rumuskan sebelumnya dalam belajar Bahasa Inggris?
   a. Ya.
   b. Sering
   c. Kadang-kadang.
   d. Tidak.

9. Apakah Anda terbiasa menggunakan buku-buku, internet, atau sumber lain untuk memperoleh data/informasi untuk menjawab pertanyaan-pertanyaan Anda dalam belajar Bahasa Inggris?
   a. Ya.
   b. Sering
   c. Kadang-kadang.
   d. Tidak.

10. Apakah Anda sebagai individu terbiasa menggunakan data/informasi untuk menjawab pertanyaan Anda dalam belajar Bahasa Inggris?
    a. Ya.
    b. Sering
    c. Kadang-kadang.
    d. Tidak.

11. Apakah Anda dalam sebuah kelompok terbiasa menggunakan data/informasi untuk menjawab pertanyaan Anda dalam belajar Bahasa Inggris?
    a. Ya.
    b. Sering
    c. Kadang-kadang.
    d. Tidak.

12. Apakah Anda terbiasa melaporkan/mengkomunikasikan pada orang lain jawaban yang Anda peroleh dari pertanyaan-pertanyaan Anda sendiri dalam belajar Bahasa Inggris?
    a. Ya.
    b. Sering
    c. Kadang-kadang.
    d. Tidak.
13. Di dalam pembelajaran mendengarkan (listening), bentuk teks sebagai input pembelajaran seperti apa yang Anda inginkan?
   a. Monolog dan dialog.
   b. Monolog dan dialog yang disertai gambar.
   c. Monolog dan dialog yang disertai kosa kata baru.
   d. Materi otentik seperti acara berita, siaran radio, film, dan lagu.
   e. Lainnya (tuliskan).............................................................................................

14. Berapa panjang teks sebagai input pembelajaran mendengarkan (listening) yang mampu Anda pahami?
   a. > 250 kata (panjang)
   b. > 200 kata (sedang)
   c. > 150 kata (pendek)

15. Di dalam pembelajaran berbicara (speaking), bentuk teks sebagai input pembelajaran seperti apa yang Anda inginkan?
   a. Monolog dan dialog.
   b. Monolog dan dialog yang disertai gambar.
   c. Monolog dan dialog yang disertai kosa kata baru.
   d. Materi otentik seperti acara berita, siaran radio, film, dan lagu.
   e. Lainnya (tuliskan).............................................................................................

16. Berapa panjang teks yang anda inginkan dalam pembelajaran berbicara (speaking)?
   a. > 250 kata (panjang)
   b. > 200 kata (sedang)
   c. > 150 kata (pendek)

17. Di dalam pembelajaran membaca (reading), bentuk teks sebagai input pembelajaran seperti apa yang Anda inginkan?
   a. Teks bacaan terdiri dari beberapa paragraf.
   b. Teks bacaan disertai daftar kosa kata.

</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Formulating problems and proposing hypotheses</td>
<td>Referring to the objectives above, make relevant questions. Examples are provided for you and propose temporary answers to your questions based on your current knowledge.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Description:
In these tasks, learners are asked to make relevant questions and propose temporary answers of the questions based on their current knowledge. These tasks are aimed at stimulating learners’ exploration to make relevant questions and propose possible answers of the questions.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Task 3</th>
<th>Instruction:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Warm-up</td>
<td>Listen to the recording and then number the pictures based on the words you hear.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Description:
This task leads the learners to have background knowledge about the scope of the unit topics. By numbering the pictures based on the words they hear, it is expected that the learners will have view about what they will learn.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Task 4</th>
<th>Instruction:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>

Task 6
Instruction:
In pairs, listen to the dialogue and then state whether the statements below are TRUE or FALSE. Correct the false statement. Before listening to the dialogue, read the statements first and then jot down the important information. Compare your answers with your friends’ answers and then report the answers to the class. Number one has been done for you.

Description:
In this task, the learners are given chance to check their understanding about introducing text. They are asked to listen to the recording and the learners will have to state whether the statements are TRUE or FALSE and correct the false statement. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.

Task 7
Instruction:
Listen to the dialogue in Task 6 and in groups of three answer the questions below. Before listening to the dialogue, read the questions first and then jot down the important information you hear to answer the questions. After that, report your answers to the class. Number one has been done for you.

Description:
In this task, the learners will have to listen to the dialogue and the answer questions. This task leads the learners to grasp the expressions which are used to introduce, ask, and respond to others’ introduction. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.

Task 8
Instruction:
Referring to the dialogue in Task 6, in pairs answer the questions below. Share your answers with your friends.

Description:
In this task, the learners answer the questions related to the dialogue. It is expected that the learners will have deeper understanding about the social function of introducing text. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.

Task 9
Instruction:
Study the following explanation about Simple Present Tense.

Description:
In this task the learners will be given chances to learn the explanation of simple present. This covers the formulas of simple present tense, the examples and the uses. It is expected that the students will grasp the concept of Simple Present Tense in an introducing text. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.
Task 10
Instruction:
In pairs, listen to the dialogue carefully. Before listening to the dialogue, read the transcript first. There are twelve differences between what you hear and what you read. Underline and correct them. Act it out with your friends.

Description:
After the learners learn the theory about simple present tense, they are encouraged to identify 12 differences between what they hear and what they read. They have to underline and correct the differences. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.

Task 11
Instruction:
Read the explanation in Task 9, and then in groups of three, study the following sentences and find the differences by classifying the answers on the table below. After that, share the answers with the class.

Description:
In this task, learners are asked to find the differences of sentences containing V1 by classifying the answers on the provided table. It is expected that the learners will have deeper understanding about the use of V1 in an introducing text. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.

Task 12
Instruction:
Match the following expressions with their responses on the right.

Description:
In this task, the learners will have to match the expressions with their responses. This is to lead the learners to grasp more expressions. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.

Task 13
Instruction:
Read the expressions in Task 12 once again. Say those expressions with the correct pronunciation. Listen and repeat after your teacher.

Description:
Through this task, learners are encouraged to say the expressions with the correct pronunciation. This task is aimed at guiding the learners to drill the pronunciation of the expressions. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.

Task 14
Instruction:
Study the list of expressions below.

Description:
In this task the learners will be given chances to learn more deeply about the expressions to introduce, ask, and respond to others’ introduction. This covers the examples of the expressions. It is expected that the learners will have deeper understanding about expressions which can be used to introduce, ask, and respond to others’ introduction. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends.
| Task 15 | Instruction:
Listen to the dialogue, fill in the blank spaces with the suitable expressions below. Then, act it out with your friends. Before listening to the dialogue, read the transcript first and then jot down the main point.
Description:
After the learners learn the expressions, they are encouraged to listen to the dialogue, fill in the blank spaces with the suitable expressions, and then act it out with their friends. This task gives a chance to learners to use and practice the expressions the learners have learnt before. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends. |
| Task 16 | Instruction:
Read the dialogue in Task 15 and then classify the expressions into the expressions of introducing, asking and responding to others who introduce themselves. Then, report your answers to the class.
Description:
This task leads the learners to recall the expressions they have learnt before by classifying the expressions into the expressions of introducing, asking and responding to others who introduce themselves. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends. |
| Task 17 | Instruction:
Study the following explanation and then in groups of three, identify and compare the generic structure of the following dialogues. Share your answer with the class.
Description:
By studying the explanation about the generic structure of introducing text, in this task the learners are given two passages of introducing text. They will have to identify and compare the generic structure of the two dialogues. It is expected that the learners will have deeper understanding towards parts of introducing text. By doing this task, learners are collecting and analyzing data. They are also asked to share their findings to their friends. |
| Task 18 | Instruction:
In pairs, ask five of your new classmates about their names and information about them using the expressions you have learnt before. Then, complete the following table.
Description:
This task belongs to creating stage in which the learners should work independently. This task is semi-guided task, learners are asked to ask five of their new classmates about their names and information using the expressions they have learnt before. |
| Task 19 | Instruction:
Works in groups of two or three. Have a conversation based on the following situations.

APPENDIX F

THE FIRST DRAFT OF THE MATERIALS
At school and in your daily life, you meet new people and you need to introduce yourself to them and also possibly introduce your friends to others. You also need to ask and respond to others who introduce themselves to you. What do you say when you meet somebody for the first time? Do you know how to introduce yourself or somebody to others in English?

Do you like reading and writing? Have you ever read or written a text to your new friend? Can you read and write such texts effectively? You can learn about those in this unit.
1. Listen and Speak

Orientation

Study the learning objectives below.

In this section, you will learn:

✓ Listening:
  ➢ Responding to somebody who introduces himself/herself to you.

✓ Speaking:
  ➢ Introducing you and others.

Formulating problems & proposing hypotheses

TASK 2

Referring to the objectives above, make relevant questions. Examples are provided for you.

In pairs, listen to the dialogue carefully. Before listening to the dialogue, read the transcript first. There are twelve differences between what you hear and what you read. Underline and correct them. Act it out with your friends.

Situation: Today is the first day of lesson for freshman in grade X. Nugroho introduces himself to his new friends.

Nugroho: Hi, my name is Nugroho. What’s your name?
Marini: I’m Marini. Pleased to meet you.
Nugroho: Pleased to meet you too. By the way, where do you come from, Marini?
Marini: I come from Padang. What about you?
Nugroho: I am from Yogyakarta. I just moved here last week.
Marini: Really? Then, where do you live now?
Nugroho: I live on jalan Merdeka.
Marini: Oh, jalan Merdeka is near a course which I learn playing violin. My hobbies are playing violin and listening to music. What is your hobby, Nugroho?
Nugroho: My hobby is travelling.
Marini: Ni Ida, this is Nugroho. His hobby is travelling like you.
Nugroho: Nice to meet you too.
Ni Ida: Have you ever been to Mount Bromo? I plan to go there with my family next week. Want to join us? You can invite your family too.
Nugroho: Wow, that sounds great. I had one brother and his hobby is climbing mountain. He is a member of the environmental club in his campus. My family loves travelling. They will like it.
Ni Ida: Good then. We can go together.
Nugroho: Ok, thanks Ni Ida.
Ni Ida: You’re welcome.
Read the explanation in Task 9, and then in groups of three, study the following sentences and find the differences by classifying the answers on the table below. After that, share the answers with the class.

1. My name is Nugroho.
2. What is your name?
3. I am Marini.
4. Where do you live?
5. I live on jalan Merdeka.
6. My hobbies are playing violin and listening to music.

TASK 17

Study the following explanation and then in groups of three, identify and compare the generic structure of the following dialogues. Share your answer with the class.

Introducing yourself or others

There are some things to do that are likely happening when you want to introduce yourself to others or introduce your friend to others. They are:

1. Greeting

   Greet somebody you want to introduce yourself to. In the United States for instance, it’s also a common thing to offer a handshake when meet a new person.

2. Introducing

   Exchange names. Introduce yourself by telling your name. Immediately, after you’ve stated your name, ask for the other person’s name.

3. Revealing a little bit of your background

   It depends on the context of the conversation, but start off by telling another person something about yourself. You might start off with where you’re from and what do you do. Telling someone those things may lead to many conversation topics such as: your hobby, your family, etc.

4. Closing/parting

   After you’ve met someone for the first time, you can end the conversation by restated that you enjoyed meeting them, saying thanks and good bye.
Dialogue 1

Asep: Hello.
Arya: Hi.
Asep: I am a new member of this football club. Are you a new member too?
Arya: Oh you are one of the new members. No, actually I have been one year with this club.
Asep: Oh, so you are in grade eleventh right?
Arya: Yes, I am.
Asep: By the way, my name is Asep. I am a new student of grade X.
Arya: I am Arya. Do you like football Asep?
Asep: Yeah, I like football very much. What about you? Besides football, what is your hobby?
Arya: My hobbies are playing football and singing. I am a vocalist of rock band.
Asep: Wow, that’s cool.
Arya: Thank you.

Dialogue 2

Cut: Good afternoon.
Ida: Good afternoon.
Cut: My name is Cut. You are my classmate in X C, right?
Ida: Yeah, you are right. I am Ida. Nice to meet you.
Cut: Nice to meet you too. Anyway, why don’t you go home?
Ida: I am waiting my brother to pick me up.
Cut: So do I. Where are you from, Ida?
Ida: I am from Karet, Bantul.
Cut: Oh, you are from Bantul. Me too.
Ida: Really? Where do you live, Cut?
Cut: I live on Jalan Wates.
Ida: Oh, I know that street. By the way, does your brother study in our school too?
Cut: No, my brother is a student of Yogyakarta State University. Both of my parents are lecturer there. How about you Ida? How many brothers and sisters do you have?
Ida: Wow, that’s great. I have one sister and no brother. My sister is two years older than me. She studies here too. Oh there she is. I got to go. Good bye, cut. See you tomorrow.
Cut: Bye. See you.

Dear Cut,

I hope you are doing great. I was happy to see your advertisement in the magazine under the pen-pal section. You are exactly the kind of friend I have been looking for! Your interests match mine exactly!

My name is Maria May. I am a girl. I am sixteen years old and come from Malaysia. I am the only girl in my family. I’ve three younger brothers. They give me much trouble sometimes! But anyway, I love them still. My father is a farmer (actually we all live on a farm) and my mom is a teacher. She teaches eleventh grade of students at the school I go to. I’m doing my tenth grade. My school is just about thirty minutes walk from home. Mom and I usually go together walking to school.

Just like you, I love reading, especially novels. I have a big collection of novels of all kinds! I am also a music lover. I spend most of my afternoon days listening to music. I’ve actually made a couple of songs of my own! Do you like singing as well? Travelling is one of my hobbies that I really enjoy. I’ve been to many places. One of the places I visited recently was India. It is a great place and I wouldn’t mind living there! The people are lovely and there are many wonderful sights to see. Which places have you visited yourself?

I am so glad to add you to my pen-pal friends. I love writing letters too. I really can’t wait to get a letter from you! By the way, after this semester of school, I’ve intentions of having holiday in Indonesia. It would certainly be nice to see you in person!

Please write and tell me about yourself and your country. I am very much looking forward to hearing from you.

Take care,

Maria May.

Adapted from: www.e-how.com
Questions:
1. Who sends the letter?
2. How does Maria know about Cut?
   Is there anybody introducing Maria to Cut?
3. Does Maria want to be Cut’s friend?
4. How does Maria introduce herself to Cut?
   What information does she explain?
5. Does Cut come from the same country like Maria? Clarify.
6. Does Maria have any brothers or sister? How do you know?
7. What are Maria parents’ professions?
8. What is Cut’s hobby that you can infer from the text?
9. How many Maria’s hobby that she tells from the letter?
   Mention.
10. Will Maria meet Cut later? How do you know?

Did You Know?
Having a penfriend or pen-pal (sometimes known as keypal if computers are used) is an excellent way for students to practice their English. This can either be done the old fashioned way by sending the letter through the post office (now known as snail mail for its slow pace) or by e-mail using the internet. Having penfriends are good for you because you can communicate with people of the same age in real situations.

TASK 24

Read the letter in Task 23, in groups of three, answer the following questions. Discuss with the class.

Questions:
1. Why does Maria send the letter?
2. Why does Maria choose Cut as one of her pen-pals?
3. What expression does Maria use to introduce herself?
4. How does Maria tell about her family and her hobbies?
5. What expression does Maria use to ask Cut to introduce herself?
Study the following explanation about Simple Present Tense. In pairs, complete the e-mail using the correct form of verbs. After that, read it aloud and then display the answers in your class wall magazine.

The simple present tense is one of the verb forms which we use when an action is happening right now or when it happens regularly.

Jakarta, 26th, November 2014

Dear Mark,
Hello! Thank you for your letter. It was great!

As you know, I am Arya. I will be turning 16 next month.

There are four people in my family.

I am from Indonesia.

I have some hobbies.

Bye for now and write back soon!

Your pen-friend

Suppose you get a new pen-pal friend from magazine or website online, individually write your email. Write it at 150 – 200 words.
Find a song entitled “Introducing Me” by Nick Jonas. Listen to the song and fill in the blank spaces using words from the box below. After that, summarize how the singer introduces himself. Share the answers with your friends.

Introducing Me

I'm, I'm (1) ________ at wasting time
I think lyrics need to rhyme
And you're not asking
But I'm trying to grow a mustache

I (2) _______ cheese, but only on pizza, please
And sometimes on a homemade quesadilla
Otherwise it smells like feet to me
And I, I really (3) ________ it when the moon looks like a toenail
And I (4) ________ you when you say my name
If you (5) ________ know
Here it goes
Gonna tell you this
The part of me that'll show if you're close
Gonna let you (6) ________ everything
But remember that you asked for it
I'll try to do my best to impress
But it's easier to let you take a guess at the rest
But you wanna hear what (7) ________ in my brain
My heart, will you ask for it, for your perusing?
At times confusing, possibly amusing
Introducing me

But you wanna hear what lives in my brain

Doo doo, doo doo doo doo to
Doo doo, doo doo doo doo to
La la la la
La la la la la la la la, da

I never (8) _________ a dog to watch my food
And I like to (9) ________ to the word "dude"
As a noun, or an adverb, or an adjective
And I've never really been into (10) ________
I like really cool (11) ________ and superheroes
And checks with lots of zeros on 'em
I love the (12) ________ of violins
And making someone (13) ________
If you wanna know
Here it goes
Gonna (14) ________ you this
The part of me that'll show if you're close
Gonna let you see everything
But remember that you asked for it
I'll try to do my best to impress
But it's easier to let you take a guess at the rest

But remember that you asked for it
Individually, write an e-mail at about 150 – 200 words based on the following situation. Don’t forget to ask your classmates to give you feedback to revise your email. Put your revised drafts in your class wall magazine.

Situation: Suppose you get a scholarship to study at Australia, write an e-mail to your cousin’s friend who lives and also learn at the same school you want to go. Introduce yourself and ask him/her about himself/herself and the school.

Dear Ni Ida,
I heard that you have the final exam and you got the highest score at English subject in your school. I know you always study hard. Congratulation! You did it very well.
Uncle Wayan

Dear Cut,
Well, I knew it was only a matter of time before you got a reward of all your hard work and brilliance idea in the office with a promotion. Congratulations on your new position. You’ve done a great job. Best wishes for continual success.
Your brother,
Teuku

Dear Markus,
I just heard about the news of the result of your National Examination. Your name is in the list of highest score students in province. What an excellent success. Congratulations! Hope you get into the best university.
Putri

Dear Azmi,
I have watched with great delight your performance at Indonesian voice yesterday. You won the competition. I know you always do your best. I must congratulate you on your winning. You’re really a great singer.
Titis

Dear Nughroho,
You must be very happy to be a winner in English debate competition after putting in so much hard work and effort. You are really a great student. I congratulate you. Your achievement is an example to all. Stay humble like usual and once again, congratulations!
Your best friend
Marini

Dear Aunty Rini,
Congratulations! I just heard the wonderful news regarding your wedding. Uncle Rizki is lucky to have in you such a nice and charming wife. At the same time you are equally lucky to have him. He is really a good man. I wish you both all the best in the years to come.

Congratulations on winning reading competition in Jakarta. You did it very well. We are proud of you.
Dear Andrew,

Words are really fail to express my joy at the news of your selection as the new school principal in SMA N 1 Makassar. Congratulations on your success. You’ve done a great job. Your selection, is however, no surprise because your excellent personality and superior intelligence. A man selected as a school principal at such a young age as yours stands chances of reaching the highest position in the school. It is an added pleasure for us all that the place of your new position is just at a distance of 10 miles from our home and we can always expect you after every fortnight.

We all send you our heartiest congratulations and best wishes.

Your cousin,

Azmi

Hibar Syahrul Gafur

Hibar Syahrul Gafur is a student of grade VIII of SMP N 1 Bogor. He comes from an ordinary family. He is the only son of his parents. He has one older sister.

Hibar Syahrul Gafur has brown skin. His face is round. He has black short hair, a pointed nose, thick eyebrows, and black slanted eyes. His body is thin.

Hibar Syahrul Gafur is a smart and creative person. He gets an achievement scholarship in his school. Hibar Syahrul Gafur also holds up his winning invention. Affected by the news that women often become victims of sexual abuse because men consider them weak, Hibar saw an opportunity to design something that women can use to ward off attackers, electricity shoes. His shoe feature a nine-volt battery packed into the sole along with circuitry to increase the voltage, all connected to two electrodes along the front of the shoe, which are cunningly disguised as decorative flourishes. A crude design by his own admission, it was still good enough to win fifth prize in LIPI’s National Young Inventors Awards. At 2013 International Exhibition of Young Inventors in Malaysia, which was held in Kuala Lumpur, Hibar returned home with a gold medal in the safety and health category.

Vote for Your Favourite Singer

Azmi, the chairman of student council says:
Raisa is a talented gorgeous singer. Her face is oval. She is tall. She has black long hair, black eyes, and a pointed nose. And she has unique beautiful voice. She is also a nice and cheerful person. She is very friendly to everyone and her fans like me. She always wears simple and casual clothes but that what makes her looks more beautiful and natural.

Marini, the secretary of student council says:
Afgan is well-known as a talented young singer. He has an oval face and black short hair. Afgan has a nice smile because he has dimples on his cheeks. He has a sweet voice and has received many awards for his work as a singer. He is also a quiet, down-to-earth, and hilarious person. Afgan also really loves his fans, “afganisme” until he dedicates one song in his second album for them.

Do the texts have a similarity in their structures?

THE FINAL DRAFT OF THE MATERIALS
INQUIRY-BASED LEARNING MATERIALS

FOR GRADE X STUDENTS OF SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

HARA SEKARWANGI ENGLISH STUDY PROGRAM (102022440641)
At school and in your daily life, you meet new people and you need to introduce yourself to them and also possibly introduce your friends to others. You also need to ask and respond to others who introduce themselves to you. What do you say when you meet somebody for the first time? Do you know how to introduce yourself or somebody to others in English?

Do you like reading and writing? Have you ever read or written a text to your new friend? Can you read and write such texts effectively? You can learn about those in this unit.
1. Listen and Speak

Orientation

TASK 1

Study the learning objectives below.

In this section, you will learn:

- Listening:
  - Responding to somebody who introduces himself/herself to you.
- Speaking:
  - Introducing yourself and others.

Formulating problems & proposing hypotheses

TASK 2

Referring to the objectives above, make relevant questions. Examples are provided for you.

In pairs, listen to the dialogue carefully. Before listening to the dialogue, read the transcript first. There are twelve differences between what you hear and what you read. Underline and correct them. Act it out with your friends.

Situation: Today is the first day of lesson for freshman in grade X. Nugroho introduces himself to his new friends.

Nugroho : Hi, I am Nugroho. What’s your name?
Marini : My name is Marini. Pleased to meet you.
Nugroho : Pleased to meet you. By the way, where do you come from, Marini?
Marini : I am from Padang. What about you?
Nugroho : I am from Yogyakarta. I just moved here last week.
Marini : Really? Then, where are you live now?
Nugroho : I live in jalan Merdeka.
Marini : Oh, jalan Merdeka is near a course which I learn playing violin. My hobbies is playing violin and listening to music. What is your hobby, Nugroho?
Nugroho : My hobby are travelling.
Marini : Ni ida, this Nugroho. His hobby is travelling like you.
Nugroho : Nice to meet you.
Ni ida : Have you ever been to Mount Bromo? I plan to go there with my family next week. Want to join us? You can invite your family too.
Nugroho : Wow, that sounds great. I had one brother and his hobby is climbing mountain. He joins pecinta alam in his campus. My family likes travelling. They will like it.
Ni ida : Good then. We can go together.
Nugroho : Ok, thanks Ni ida.
Ni Ida : You’re welcome.
Read the explanation in Task 9, and then in groups of three, study the following sentences and find the differences by classifying the answers on the table below. After that, share the answers with the class.

1. My name is Nugroho.
2. What is your name?
3. I am Marini.
4. Where do you live?
5. I live on jalan Merdeka.
6. My hobbies are playing violin and listening to music.

Study the following explanation and then in groups of three, identify and compare the generic structure of the following dialogues. Share your answer with the class.

Introducing yourself or others

There are some things to do that are likely happening when you want to introduce yourself to others or introduce your friend to others. They are:

1. Greeting

   Greet somebody you want to introduce yourself to. In the United States for instance, it’s also a common thing to offer a handshake when meeting a new person.

2. Introducing

   Exchange names. Introduce yourself by telling your name. Immediately, after you’ve stated your name, ask for the other person’s name.

3. Revealing a little bit of your background

   It depends on the context of the conversation, but start off by telling another person something about yourself. You might start off with where you’re from and what do you do. Telling someone those things may lead to many conversation topics such as: your hobby, your family, etc.

4. Closing/parting

   After you’ve met someone for the first time, you can end the conversation by restated that you enjoyed meeting them, saying thanks and good bye.
Dialogue 1
Asep: Hello.
Arya: Hi.
Asep: I am a new member of this football club. Are you a new member too?
Arya: Oh you are one of the new members. No, actually I have been one year with this club.
Asep: Oh, so you are in grade eleventh right?
Arya: Yes, I am.
Asep: By the way, my name is Asep. I am a new student of Grade X.
Arya: I am Arya. Do you like football Asep?
Asep: Yeah, I like football very much. What about you? Besides football, what is your hobby?
Arya: My hobbies are playing football and singing. I am a vocalist of a rock band.
Asep: Wow, that’s cool.
Arya: Thank you.

Dialogue 2
Cut: Good afternoon.
Ida: Good afternoon.
Cut: My name is Cut. You are my classmate in X C, right?
Ida: Yeah, you are right. I am Ida. Nice to meet you.
Cut: Nice to meet you too. Anyway, why don’t you go home?
Ida: I am waiting my brother to pick me up.
Cut: So do I. Where are you from, Ida?
Ida: I am from Karet, Bantul.
Cut: Oh, you are from Bantul. Me too.
Ida: Really? Where do you live, Cut?
Cut: I live on Jalan Wates.
Ida: Oh, I know that street. By the way, does your brother study in our school too?
Cut: No, my brother is a student of Yogyakarta State University. Both of my parents are lecturers there. How about you Ida? How many brothers and sisters do you have?
Ida: Wow, that’s great. I have one sister and no brother. My sister is two years older than me. She studies here too. Oh there she is. I got to go. Good bye, Cut. See you tomorrow.
Cut: Bye. See you.

Do the dialogues have a similarity in their structures?

Dear Cut,

I hope you are doing great. I was happy to see your advertisement in the magazine under the pen-pal section. You are exactly the kind of friend I have been looking for! Your interests match mine exactly!

My name is Maria May. I am a girl. I am sixteen years old and come from Malaysia. I am the only girl in my family. I’ve three younger brothers. They give me much trouble sometimes! But anyway, I love them still. My father is a farmer (actually we all live on a farm) and my mom is a teacher. She teaches eleventh grade of students at the school I go to. I’m doing my tenth grade. My school is just about thirty minutes walk from home. Mom and I usually go together walking to school.

Just like you, I love reading, especially novels. I have a big collection of novels of all kinds! I am also a music lover. I spend most of my afternoon days listening to music. I’ve actually made a couple of songs of my own! Do you like singing as well? Travelling is one of my hobbies that I really enjoy. I’ve been to many places. One of the places I visited recently was India. It is a great place and I wouldn’t mind living there! The people are lovely and there are many wonderful sights to see. Which places have you visited yourself?

I am so glad to add you to my pen-pal friends. I love writing letters too. I really can’t wait to get a letter from you! By the way, after this semester of school, I’ve intentions of having holiday in Indonesia. It would certainly be nice to see you in person!

Please write and tell me about yourself and your country. I am very much looking forward to hearing from you.
Take care,
Maria May.

Questions:
1. Who sends the letter?
2. How does Maria know about Cut?
   Is there anybody introducing Maria to Cut?
3. Does Maria want to be Cut’s friend?
4. How does Maria introduce herself to Cut?
   What information does she explain?
5. Does Cut come from the same country like Maria? Clarify.
6. Does Maria have any brothers or sister? How do you know?
7. What are Maria parents’ professions?
8. What is Cut’s hobby that you can infer from the text?
9. How many Maria’s hobby that she tells from the letter?
   Mention.
10. Will Maria meet Cut later? How do you know?

Did You Know?
Having a penfriend or pen-pal (sometimes known as keypal if computers are used) is an excellent way for students to practice their English. This can either be done the old fashioned way by sending the letter through the post office (now known as snail mail for its slow pace) or by e-mail using the internet. Having penfriends are good for you because you can communicate with people of the same age in real situations.

TASK 24
Read the letter in Task 23, in groups of three, answer the following questions. Discuss with the class.

Questions:
1. Why does Maria send the letter?
2. Why does Maria choose Cut as one of her pen-pals?
3. What expression does Maria use to introduce herself?
4. How does Maria tell about her family and her hobbies?
5. What expression does Maria use to ask Cut to introduce herself?
Study the following explanation about Simple Present Tense. In pairs, complete the e-mail using the correct form of verbs. After that, read it aloud and then display the answers in your class wall magazine.

Your pen-friend

TASK 28  Suppose you get a new pen-pal friend from magazine or website online, individually write your email. Write it at 150 – 200 words.
HOMEWORK

Find a song entitled “Introducing Me” by Nick Jonas. Listen to the song and fill in the blank spaces using words from the box below. After that, summarize how the singer introduces himself. Share the answers with your friends.

I'm, I'm (1) ________ at wasting time
I think lyrics need to rhyme
And you're not asking
But I'm trying to grow a mustache

I (2) _______ cheese, but only on pizza, please
And sometimes on a homemade quesadilla
Otherwise it smells like feet to me
And I, I really (3) ________ it when the moon looks like a toenail
And I (4) ________ you when you say my name
If you (5) ________ know
Here it goes
Gonna tell you this
The part of me that'll show if you're close
Gonna let you (6) ________ everything
But remember that you asked for it
I'll try to do my best to impress
But it's easier to let you take a guess at the rest
But you wanna hear what (7) ________ in my brain
My heart, will you ask for it, for your perusing?
At times confusing, possibly amusing
Introducing me
Doo doo, doo doo doo doo to
Doo doo, doo doo doo doo to

La la la la
La la la la la la la la, da

I never (8) _________ a dog to watch my food
And I like to (9) ________ to the word "dude"
As a noun, or an adverb, or an adjective
And I've never really been into (10) ________

I like really cool (11) ________ and superheroes
And checks with lots of zeros on 'em
I love the (12) ________ of violins
And making someone (13) ________
If you wanna know
Here it goes
Gonna (14) ________ you this
The part of me that'll show if you're close
Gonna let you see everything
But remember that you asked for it
I'll try to do my best to impress
But it's easier to let you take a guess at the rest

But you wanna hear what lives in my brain
My heart, will you ask for it, for your perusing?
At times confusing, possibly amusing
(15) __________________ me

Well, you probably know more than you ever wanted to
So be careful when you ask next time
So if you wanna know
Here it goes
Gonna tell you this
The part of me that’ll show if you’re close
Gonna let you see everything
But remember that you asked for it

I’ll try to do my best to impress
But it’s easier to let you take a guess at the rest
But you wanna hear what lives in my brain
My heart, will you ask for it, for your perusing?
At times confusing, hopefully amusing
Introducing me

Doo doo, doo doo doo doo to
Doo doo, doo doo doo doo to Doo doo doo do

Individually, write an e-mail at about 150 – 200 words based on the following situation. Don’t forget to ask your classmates to give you feedback to revise your email. Put your revised drafts in your class wall magazine.

Situation: Suppose you get a scholarship to study in Australia, write an e-mail to your cousin’s friend who lives and also learns at the same school you want to go. Introduce yourself and ask him/her about himself/herself and the school.

LET’S CHECK YOUR COMPETENCE

TASK 31

Listen to the recording and then complete the following short dialogues. After that, act it out with your partner.

source: www.gogrilmagz.com
Hi, Arya. I am a new student here. I just moved from Bangka Belitung. Nice to meet you.

Nice to meet you too.

I am from Cilacap but now I live on jalan Bener.

I have one older brother. He is kind. He always helps me to do my homework.
Hi! How are you, Azmi? I’m fine and I hope you are doing great. I was happy to see your advertisement in the Youth Online Club in the pen-pal section. You are exactly the kind of friend I have been looking for.

I am John Park and I am 16 years old. I am half British and Korean. My father is Korean while my mother is British. I like playing football and just like you, I love watching movies, and travelling.

I am the only child in my family. I don’t have any brothers or sisters. Sometimes I wish I had an older brother who I could play and travel with. My father’s name is Park Ji Won. He is an engineer. He doesn’t like travel to many places. My mother’s name is Victoria Aniston. She is a doctor. She is kind.

I live in Kingston, London. Our house is small but we have a big garden. There are two floors. During the daytime, I like playing foot ball with my friends in the garden. About my school, well, I go to Kingston High School. I go by bus. My school is very big. We have so many students and two buildings.

At the weekend, I have extra lessons on Saturday morning but the rest of the time is my free time so I usually watch movies in my cable television. Once a month I also go to cinema to watch new movies which are intersting for me. On Sundays I like going out with my friends. We usually travel together to see some sights around London. How about you, Azmi? Do have many movies collection?

Please write and tell me about yourself and intersting places to go travelling in your country and don’t forget to answer my email.

Dear Andrew,

Words are really fail to express my joy at the news of your selection as the new school principal in SMA N 1 Makassar. Congratulations on your success. You’ve done a great job. Your selection, is however, no surprise because your excellent personality and superior intelligence. A man selected as a school principal at such a young age as yours stands chances of reaching the highest position in the school. It is an added pleasure for us all that the place of your new position is just at a distance of 10 miles from our home and we can always expect you after every fortnight.

We all send you our heartiest congratulations and best wishes.
Your cousin,
Azmi

Hibar Syahrul Gafur

Hibar Syahrul Gafur is a student of grade VIII of SMP N 1 Bogor. He comes from an ordinary family. He is the only son of his parents. He has one older sister.

Hibar Syahrul Gafur has brown skin. His face is round. He has black short hair, a pointed nose, thick eyebrows, and black slanted eyes. His body is thin.

Hibar Syahrul Gafur is a smart and creative person. He gets an achievement scholarship in his school. Hibar Syahrul Gafur also holds up his winning invention. Affected by the news that women often become victims of sexual abuse because men consider them weak, Hibar saw an opportunity to design something that women can use to ward off attackers, electricity shoes. His shoe feature a nine-volt battery packed into the sole along with circuitry to increase the voltage, all connected to two electrodes along the front of the shoe, which are cunningly disguised as decorative flourishes. A crude design by his own admission, it was still good enough to win fifth prize in LIPI’s National Young Inventors Awards. At 2013 International Exhibition of Young Inventors in Malaysia, which was held in Kuala Lumpur, Hibar returned home with a gold medal in the safety and health category.
